Apple Crop Big, Pickers Lacking

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

Mid-Hudson growers are expecting a large crop of apples this year, possibly 10 per cent above last year's drought crop. The problem is, however, that there may not be enough people to pick them.

One reason given for the shortage of pickers is that various governmental programs are aimed to help the poor and uneducated, those who traditionally swelled the migrant worker ranks, and in that nobody today is bringing up his children to be migrant workers, the stream of seasonal help is fast drying up.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced that about 23 million bushels of apples are expected to be harvested this year in New York State, of which three to four million will be coming out of the valley.

If the required pickers are not available by the second week of September, or thereabouts, many apples may rot on the limb or fall to the ground.

A spokesman for Moriello Brothers, growers in New Paltz, claimed that there was a "good crop," there was "enough rainfall" to "size the apples well" but that "there is no question of a migrant help shortage."

William Palmer, cooperative extension agent of the County Department of Agriculture, told The Freeman that the worker shortage "had been anticipated" and that many of those who worked the crops in the past, "were finding employment in other areas" which were "more permanent" and that some of these workers were becoming "skilled and trained" for more lucrative employment.

Another grower in the mid-Hudson area said that "there will be less help than last year" and that "this will be one of the largest crops we've had."

It was pointed out that "the shortage facilities are OK" but "if we don't have farm labor a large percentage of apples will fall to the ground."

This grower also stated that "local help is practically non-existent."

New Social Security Bill Passes House

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has passed overwhelmingly a massive Social Security overhaul that would raise benefits, hike taxes and crack down on idle state welfare recipients.

But it probably will be months before the extra money is flowing to some 24.2 million current beneficiaries because the Senate isn't ready to consider the legislation at once.

Senate Conflicts

Moreover, a Senate conflict is brewing over those provisions of the House-passed measure intended to toughen federally aided state welfare programs.

"We're rough in this bill—make no mistake about that—but we don't mean to be inhuman," said Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, during Thursday's debate on the measure.

Mills' reference was to provisions imposing income limitations on persons eligible for federally backed state medicaid programs, requiring states to channel jobless welfare recipients into work or job training and limiting the proportion of children receiving welfare.

Under the measure, states could aid no more children than the proportion of children receiving aid in January 1967. The number could rise, but not their total proportion to the over-all child population of the state.

"We are not penalizing any child," Mills told the House. But he warned a taxpayers' revolt could wipe out welfare altogether unless limits were imposed.

He said the measure ultimately should result in pushing 300,000 adult recipients off the welfare rolls and into jobs.

The bill the House approved 415 to 3 Thursday provides a minimum 172½ per cent raise for Social Securities beneficiaries.

It also calls for staged increases in the payroll tax that finances the program, with a first-step maximum $44 jump—for those earning $7,600 or more annually—to begin next year. That would come by expanding the taxable base from $6,600 to $7,600. Employers of such workers also would feel the added tax bite.

And it eventually would raise the current 4.4 per cent Social Security tax to 5.9 per cent in 1987. That would mean a maximum jump of $158 for the worker earning $7,600—provided there were no expansions of the taxable base or tax hike in the meantime.

The measure also would raise the amount of money a Social Security recipient could earn without reduction of benefits and lower to 50 the age at which disabled widows could draw benefits from a deceased worker's account.

For Key Provisions of The Social Security Bill . . . . See Story on Page 5.

The Senate Finance Committee has scheduled hearings beginning Tuesday on the bill. However, a long Labor Day recess will interrupt its proceedings and handlers of the measure said they have no hope of a Senate vote earlier than mid-October.

If the Senate materially changes the measure, the resulting conference with the House may be protracted and difficult. There is strong sentiment in the Senate for relaxing the strict welfare limitations and some support for a higher level of Social Security benefits.

President Johnson originally requested a minimum 15 per cent boost in benefits.

Mills said during the debate that the panel had decided on what he called a slightly smaller benefit raise than the one Johnson recommended in order to avoid too steep an increase in the payroll tax.

House members applauded when Mills, taking cognizance of moves in the Senate to alter the House bill, issued what he called "a warning, not a threat" that if pushed too hard the House spokesmen at any future conference might "go to the point of being inflexible."

Confronted by 'Urban Crisis'

Rocky Unveils 21-Point Plan for Cities

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Against a background of racial tension illustrated by trouble in one of the state's major cities, Gov. Rockefeller and other state leaders have drawn a plan designed to meet the "urban crisis."

At a news conference called Thursday to outline the program, the Republican governor opened by noting that racial incidents have resulted in a curfew in portions of Syracuse. This, he said, "highlights the urgency, significance and importance" of finding solutions to problems bred by slums.

Democratic Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia was conspicuously absent from the cast of government leaders who met in Rockefeller's office to draft a 21-point proposal for combatting what the governor said was the "major domestic challenge of our time."

Travia, the Legislature's leading Democrat and president of the State Constitutional Convention, boycotted the meeting on the ground that Rockefeller had cast the discussion "in a political light."

Asked about Travia's refusal to attend, Rockefeller was conciliatory. He maintained that Travia's absence was due to "an unfortunate misunderstanding" and that the program did not involve "partisan issues."

Rockefeller said he was sure that Travia "when he goes over this list, will be in complete support of it."

The only Democrat to attend the meeting, Senate Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki, said he thought the plan merely represented an effort to implement President Johnson's proposals for relieving racial unrest in cities.

Key proposals agreed upon at the Rockefeller meeting were to:

—Ask the Constitutional Convention to approve provisions for the state to join private enterprise in comprehensive community development programs designed to improve housing, commercial, industrial, cultural and recreational facilities. The state could make loans to small businesses in need of operating capital.

—Request the Education Department to develop "supplementary aids" for slum area schools in time for action by the 1968 Legislature.

—Develop a program allowing tax incentives to businesses choosing to locate in slum areas and willing to train potential employes.

— Provide more vocational training schools, with no upper limit on the eligibility age.

—Establish more Urban College Centers in slum areas.

—Expand throughout the state payment of half the cost of enforcing building, housing and safety codes. The state now pays 50 per cent of the cost in New York City only.

— Increase the State Police and provide more aid in training local police forces.

— Establish information centers throughout the state to publicize available state services.

Many of the proposals would require constitutional or legislative approval before they could be implemented.

Rockefeller said it would be impossible to estimate the potential cost to state taxpayers until the amount of federal funding was known.

He and the other leaders dispatched a telegram urging New York's congressional delegation to support the President's request for funds.

The proposals were extracted from a series of recommendations drawn up by a committee of Republican governors convened by Rockefeller.

Travia said he would have been happy to discuss urban problems with Rockefeller, except that the governor announced the conference was to discuss implementation of the GOP recommendations. Rockefeller thus "made it impossible for me to attend...because he has restricted it to implementing action already agreed upon," Travia said.

State Supreme Court Justice Rules Addict Confinement Method Illegal

NEW YORK (AP) — The procedure established for the involuntary commitment of narcotics addicts for treatment under the state's new addiction control law has been declared unconstitutional by a State Supreme Court justice.

Justice Samuel A. Spiegel said in his decision Thursday that the key provision of the law involving involuntary commitment in effect compelled an addict to incriminate himself in violation of the Fifth Amendment.

Spiegel said also that the provision deprived an addict of a lawyer in violation of the Sixth Amendment and denied him due process in violation of the 14th Amendment.

The ruling applied to only one alleged addict. But it was considered likely that the ruling might cast doubt on the confinement of more than 400 addicts now being held under the section of the law declared unconstitutional. The law, which went into effect last April provides that an addict may be ordered to a center for compulsory treatment for up to three years.

Spiegel's decision was expected to be appealed to the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court.

A spokesman for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said the governor was "sure the question will be resolved by a higher court." Rockefeller made support of the narcotics control program a major issue in his campaign for re-election last year.

The governor's spokesman said the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld a California law after which the New York State law was patterned.

Spiegel's decision said: "In our zealous, paternalistic effort to accomplishish a compulsory rehabilitation, we cannot ignore the simple fact that a sick addict has the same inherent constitutional rights and is entitled to the same due process and protection afforded to all healthy people in our society.

Spiegel's ruling ordered the immediate release of Paul James, 24, of Manhattan, whose confinement against his will to the Edgecombe Reception Center in the Bronx was obtained by his mother on May 2. The ruling referred to James as an "alleged narcotic addict."

Under the new law, an addict may be compelled to undergo treatment even though he has not been convicted of a crime. If he has been convicted of a crime, he can be committed for up to five years of compulsory treatment. Narcotics addiction is not a crime under New York State law. But the unauthorized possession of narcotics is a crime.

Two State Supreme Court justices—Wilfred A. Waltmade and George Postel—ruled last month that the compulsory treatment of addicts was valid.

The justice suggested that the law be amended to provide that the original arrest warrant be returnable in court—rather than at a narcotics treatment center—and that the addict be advised of his rights to have counsel and to remain silent—the same rights accorded persons arrested in criminal cases.

DeLisios Safe, Evacuated

By LYNN MULVANEY

A 2:30 a. m. telephone call from a Florida ham radio operator today was the assurance Anthony DeLisio of Woodstock needed that his son, Stephen and family of Fairbanks, Alaska, were safe from the flood waters that ravaged that city earlier this week.

DeLisio had been trying to reach his son by phone for three days.

Costly Home Inundated

The young Alaskan lawyer's $35,000 home which he purchased new just eight months ago did not fare as well, however. The ham operator, told the senior DeLisio that his son reported it inundated "up to the eaves," just as 95 per cent of Fairbanks buildings were.

Young DeLisio's wife, Margaret, who is expecting a child shortly and the couple's one-year-old baby, were evacuated by jet to Seattle, Wash. DeLisio's in-laws who were visiting him at the time the flood waters rampaged, were also evacuated to a Fairbanks University site.

"We were having dinner when all of a sudden we were attracted by the sudden noise of water rushing down both sides of our street" Margaret explained to her father-in-law later today when he finally located her by phone in Seattle.

Margaret, who had thrilled to owning her first home said that the brown waters had turned her "dream house" into a mess.

Whether or not the house will be salvageable can only be determined after flood waters recede. The general outlook is dubious, however.

He Stays Behind

Young DeLisio, a partner in one of Fairbanks leading law firms and president of the Fairbanks Junior Chamber of Commerce, chose to stay behind "to do what he could to help the city and its people," according to the ham operator.

DeLisio's father said he was so excited when he received the message from Florida, he neglected to get the name of the ham operator who called or the place from which he was calling.

Young DeLisio, who attended Woodstock School, Blair Academy Prep School, Emory University and Albany Law School was district attorney of Fairbanks at the age of 25. He is listed in Who's Who in the Youth of America and has liked living in Alaska for the past five years where hunting and fishing are excellent.

The Fairbanks community which numbers 30,000 is now making efforts to get back on its feet before freezing weather sets in. The people were reported cheered yesterday when after weeks of rain, a brilliant summer sun shone on the city.

$2 Million Damage

President Johnson declared the region a major flood area Thursday which allows the Small Business Administration to make long term, low interest loans. The President also made $1 million available for recovery work.

Damage was placed at about $2 million.

State and local police officals revised the earlier death count of seven down to five, saying two bodies apparently were counted twice by police and rescue workers.

The Chena River, which hit flood stage at a little over 12 feet continued to drop slowly today. The U. S. Weather Bureau said it should be back to within a foot or so of its banks by noon Saturday-barring further rains.

Woodstock Gets Poll Machine

A new voting machine, boosting the total to eight, has been purchased by the Town of Woodstock.

The new machine automatically prints totals as soon as the polls close. It will now be possible for each election district to have two machines. Time spent in waiting lines will be greatly reduced, it is estimated.

Art Exhibit In Woodstock

The Gardner Gallery of Woodstock today disclosed they are currently exhibiting the art works of Art Pinajian and B. Sturtevant Gardner.

The gallery said both artists have included in their work many landscapes, seascapes and snow scenes, plus work covering many other areas.

Pinajian, who has spent many summers painting in Woodstock, began his career in the world of comics. However, he now spends most of his time in his studio with brush and oils.

Gardner, a familiar figure to Woodstock, spent a recent winter in this area and has recorded several winter landscapes within his collection.

The exhibition will remain through the Labor Day weekend.

Ticket Sale for Artists

A Collectors Choice will again be sponsored this year by the Woodstock Artists Association. Tickets are already on sale for the Sunday, Sept. 3, event.

The association said today purchase of a ticket entitles one to a four color original signed silk screen print by Julio de Diego, a reproduction of a drawing by Arthur Zaidenberg especially executed for the event.

The five artists are Brook Brokenshaw, Ainslie Burke, Cecile Forman, Edward Chavez and Hannah Small.

Translated VC Document Made Public

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officials made public today a translated copy of what they said was a top secret Viet Cong document dated March 1966 in which Communist leaders resolved "not to entertain any illusions concerning a negotiated settlement" of the Vietnam war.

"At a certain time," the document says, "We can apply the strategy of fighting and negotiating at the same time in order to support our armed struggle, and thus accelerate the disintegration of the puppet (South Vietnamese) army and regime, and create more conditions favorable for our people to secure a decisive victory.

"We are determined not to entertain any illusions concerning a negotiated settlement to the problem of Vietnam, and we must concentrate all our strength to destroy the enemy. Only when the American imperialists' aggressive will is crushed and the objectives of independence, peace, democracy and neutrality of the South are guaranteed can we negotiate a settlement of the Vietnam problem."

A spokesman for the U.S. Mission said the document is "one of the most significant" ever to come into the possession of the U.S. Command.

The document was reported to have been seized last April 21 in Khan Hoa Province, about 200 miles northeast of Saigon, by units of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division.

NEW MACHINE—Supervisor William R. West and Town Clerk Marjorie Harder demonstrate a new voting machine recently purchased by the Town of Woodstock. The total number of voting machines has now been boosted to eight.

Shorter Hours On Exchange Not Panacea

NEW YORK (AP) — Major Wall Street brokers are restrained in their assessment of effects of shorter trading sessions invoked by the stock exchanges in an effort to help them catch up with a mountain of paperwork built up during recent heavy volume.

They concede that the 90-minute cut in daily trading hours initiated Aug. 8 has helped in certain areas of clerical work, but they don't see it as the solution to their problems.

And they point out that the reduction in trading as a result of shorter sessions has cut into their commission income.

In the first six months of this year, volume soared to a daily average of 9.8 million shares from 8.2 million in the first half of 1966.

Trading Up

In the week ended Aug. 5, when regular 5½-hour trading sessions were in force, the daily average was 12.15 million shares.

Last week, when four sessions were cut to four hours, the average fell to 9.3 million shares. So far this week, with four-hour sessions still in effect, volume has dropped to 8.3 million shares daily.

This year's volume overwhelmed the brokers with clerical work involved in transferring ownership of shares.

Discussing the problem, a broker said:

"Each time a stock is purchased there are 10 steps to be taken in back-office procedure. All along the line a little more pressure is constantly being applied and people are tired. That's the reason behind all the delays that customers are encountering."

Normally it takes two or three days to transfer stock certificates. Recently some buyers have had to wait six weeks for their stocks.

The New York Stock Exchange said brokers reported that the problem is not as great as it was last week as a result of the volume decline.

Not Working

William Fleming, president of Walston & Co., one of the biggest brokerage houses, said, "In some areas where we hoped that the shorter trading hours would help, it hasn't materialized."

He said it wouldn't be possible to get a clear idea of the results of the exchanges' actions until after Friday, which has been declared an open date for settlement of stock certificate transfers.

This means that no settlements will have to be made until Monday, giving brokers a clear day for other work. Other clear settlement dates will be Aug. 25 and 29. Another big brokerage firm, Paine, Webber, Curtis & Jackson, said it had found "some relief" from the lower volume. It added that the full impact won't be felt "until we reached the settlement dates."

Aids Work Day

Carmin Saccardi, division director of operations for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the biggest of all brokerage houses, said the shorter hours "seem to primarily assist in areas of processing a trade by helping us complete our day's work."

A spokesman for Bache & Co. said, "The additional working time hasn't been the answer but the drying up of volume has helped."

He said that Bache, which he described as in reasonably good shape as far as paperwork is concerned, has consistently favored retaining the regular trading hours.

None of the brokers expressed a desire for continuation of the shortened hours beyond this week and the New York Stock Exchange said it would resume regular hours next Monday.

Boy, Woman Injured in Esopus Mishaps

An 8-year-old Esopus boy was painfully injured and a 31-year-old woman of the same community was hurt in separate accidents investigated late Thursday by Highland State Police.

Harold Henion Jr., 8, of Union Center Road, Esopus, was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance Service. Troopers said he suffered lacerations of the head.

Miss Mary Fitzgibbons, of 292 New Salem Street, Esopus, was taken to Benedictine Hospital by the same ambulance service. Troopers listed her injuries as cerebral concussion, whiplash of the neck and shock.

According to Trooper G. P. Rebhan of Highland, Leon Van Wagner, 83, of Ulster Park, was driving his 1941 car west on Union Center Road at 7:35 p. m. when he slowed for children he saw playing on the west side of the road. The Henion boy, troopers said, darted into the path of the vehicle and was hit by the left front fender. The child fell under the left front of the car authorities said. Trooper Philip Koenig investigated.

Records at Kingston Hospital listed the boy's condition today as fair.

Trooper Koenig reported that Miss Mary Fitzgibbons was driving her car east on New Salem Street at 4:30 p. m. yesterday when a vehicle operated by James J. Uhl Jr., 28, of RD 5, Kingston, came over the crest of a hill behind her and the vehicles collided.

The impact pushed the Fitzgibbons car into a driveway and against a tree stump, troopers said.

BABSON on BUSINESS

BURGLARY DANGER RISES

BABSON PARK, Mass., — Whether in the city or in the suburbs, people are a lot more likely nowadays to be victimized by burglars than ever before. So it is only sensible to know how best to avoid this disturbing—and often costly—circumstances. And to know, if it should happen, what to do to help recover lost possessions.

Many Breaks Could Be Prevented

Police experts on burglary pretty much agree that carelessness in locking doors and windows makes an easy in for housebreakers, most of whom are likely to be amateurs. The old adage that any burglar who wants to get in will find a way is not taken too seriously by most students of the way of thieves. If entrance is made difficult, chances are that the average felon will keep looking until he finds a house or an apartment that is an obvious easy mark.

Perhaps the "open sesame" for most breaks is the snap lock that clicks shut without the use of a key. Such a device can usually be opened in a moment or two by manipulating a thin, firm object, such as a charge card or a pocket calendar. Drop-bolt, double, and various types of "police" locks provide superior assurance against entry. Your locksmith will help on this matter, and will make certain that there are no weak sections of wood or glass around the lock that could be easily shattered by sudden force. Some reliable locks come with magnetic keys having neither teeth nor grooves so they cannot be duplicated.

Change of Locks Sometimes Advisable

It surely should not be considered "silly"—nor is it particularly costly — to have locks checked from time to time, and changed occasionally. When moving into a new house or apartment, it is definitely advisable to have the locks changed; same is applicable when maids or other domestics are replaced, especially if theirs was short-term or temporary tenure. Any police officer will advise altering locks in a newly rented apartment, and this is only common sense in a high-rise where strangers constantly move about.

Windows create somewhat of a problem, since they can often be smashed and a simple catch released. In crowded cities metal grilles are frequently attached either inside or outside the panes. While locked inside grilles are a better guard against burglary than those that can be priced off from the outside, they present a serious hazard for residents in case of fire. Many fire departments have strong ideas on this, and reportedly some big-city departments are testing out window locks that are both safe and burglar-resistant. Night lights are a good idea when a home is to be left vacant; and cooperation of neighbors is always helpful.

Even with the utmost precaution, robberies do take place. Authorities make it clear that they will be grateful if the victims do not put things in order after a place is ransacked. This makes it next to impossible to find the clues that most often lead to capture of a thief and recovery of the stolen goods. Insurance companies should be notified at once and provided with details on all valuable articles known to be missing. Both police and insurance agents are constantly appalled by people's inability to identify stolen goods. Insurees are urged to keep serial numbers of costly appliances. Women should not the furrier's mark on the skeins in a luxurious fur coat, since any identification is likely to have been ripped off. In the case of expensive jewelry and such items as sculpture and paintings, color or photographs should be taken and put in a secure place such as a safe-deposit box. It is wise, in fact, to keep notations of all valuables together in such a repository. This will do away with the vague descriptions and forgotten details that are so discouraging to police and insurance men.

Final reminder: Police officials insist that there is an excellent chance of successfully solving a burglary . . . if they are summoned immediately and if everything in the rifled home is left strictly as is until they have completed their inspection.

Woodstock Gets Poll Machine

A new voting machine, boosting the total to eight, has been purchased by the Town of Woodstock.

The new machine automatically prints totals as soon as the polls close. It will now be possible for each election district to have two machines. Time spent in waiting lines will be greatly reduced, it is estimated.

NEW MACHINE—Supervisor William R. West and Town Clerk Marjorie Harder demonstrate a new voting machine recently purchased by the Town of Woodstock. The total number of voting machines has now been boosted to eight.

Art Exhibit In Woodstock

The Gardner Gallery of Woodstock today disclosed they are currently exhibiting the art works of Art Pinajian and B. Sturtevant Gardner.

The gallery said both artists have included in their work many landscapes, seascapes and snow scenes, plus work covering many other areas.

Pinajian, who has spent many summers painting in Woodstock, began his career in the world of comics. However, he now spends most of his time in his studio with brush and oils.

Gardner, a familiar figure to Woodstock, spent a recent winter in this area and has recorded several winter landscapes within his collection.

The exhibition will remain through the Labor Day weekend.

Ticket Sale for Artists

A Collectors Choice will again be sponsored this year by the Woodstock Artists Association. Tickets are already on sale for the Sunday, Sept. 3, event.

The association said today purchase of a ticket entitles one to a four color original signed silk screen print by Julio de Diego, a reproduction of a drawing by Arthur Zaidenberg especially executed for the event.

The five artists are Brook Brokenshaw, Ainslie Burke, Cecile Forman, Edward Chavez and Hannah Small.

Translated VC Document Made Public

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officials made public today a translated copy of what they said was a top secret Viet Cong document dated March 1966 in which Communist leaders resolved "not to entertain any illusions concerning a negotiated settlement" of the Vietnam war.

"At a certain time," the document says, "We can apply the strategy of fighting and negotiating at the same time in order to support our armed struggle, and thus accelerate the disintegration of the puppet (South Vietnamese) army and regime, and create more conditions favorable for our people to secure a decisive victory.

"We are determined not to entertain any illusions concerning a negotiated settlement to the problem of Vietnam, and we must concentrate all our strength to destroy the enemy. Only when the American imperialists' aggressive will is crushed and the objectives of independence, peace, democracy and neutrality of the South are guaranteed can we negotiate a settlement of the Vietnam problem."

A spokesman for the U.S. Mission said the document is "one of the most significant" ever to come into the possession of the U.S. Command.

The document was reported to have been seized last April 21 in Khan Hoa Province, about 200 miles northeast of Saigon, by units of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division.

Shorter Hours On Exchange Not Panacea

NEW YORK (AP) — Major Wall Street brokers are restrained in their assessment of effects of shorter trading sessions invoked by the stock exchanges in an effort to help them catch up with a mountain of paperwork built up during recent heavy volume.

They concede that the 90-minute cut in daily trading hours initiated Aug. 8 has helped in certain areas of clerical work, but they don't see it as the solution to their problems.

And they point out that the reduction in trading as a result of shorter sessions has cut into their commission income.

In the first six months of this year, volume soared to a daily average of 9.8 million shares from 8.2 million in the first half of 1966.

Society Madhouse: Leary

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary urged a student group Thursday to "turn on and drop out" of society.

Society "is a madhouse," he said, "you just don't realize how nutty it is."

Flowers to Audience

Leary, accompanied by an assistant who threw flowers into the audience, spoke at a symposium of the National Student Association Congress held at the University of Maryland. He wore white Hindu-type garb, beads but no shoes.

The former Harvard professor, who lives in Millbrook, N. Y., noted that taking LSD "is like Russian roulette." He added: "Of course, we're all gambling men."

He said there were risks in taking LSD but "I feel there is no evidence of damage to the brain."

Dr. Sidney Cohen, chief of psychosomatic research at the Los Angeles Veterans Administration Hospital, shared the stage with Leary in the symposium.

Comments Criticized

Cohen criticized Leary's comments on LSD-inducted effects. "Many insights gained in such experiences may be valid," he said, "but many are ficticious."

3 Women Hurt in Mishap

Three elderly women suffered minor injuries Thursday following a one car accident on West O'Reilly Street.

Police said the injured were Loretta Bestle, 74, 88 Hone Street; Cecelia Smith, 69, of 277 Hasbrouck Avenue and Katherine Murphy, 77, 238 Clinton Avenue. The three were taken to Benedictine Hospital.

Police said Mrs. Smith suffered a broken nose. The other two complained of leg injuries.

The driver of the vehicle, Anne A. Goldrick of 84 West Chestnut Street, was not listed by police as injured.

According to police records, the auto was traveling west on O'Reilly Street when the operator attempted to apply the brakes. She told police the brakes didn't respond.

The car went out of control, police said, and hit into several small trees.

The wrecked auto was removed by Bryants towing service.

Meanwhile, police were summoned to Flatbush Avenue Thursday following a hit and run accident.

Officals said a car owned by Denis L. Kilmer, Colonial Garden Apartments, parked aside Flatbush Avenue, was struck late yesterday afternoon.

Police noted the auto was swiped along its side and that the driver of the unindentified vehicle left the scene without notifying authorities.

The jack-in-the-pulpit plant also is called Indian turnip. It grows from a turniplike root filled with a hot, burning juice, which is sometimes used in homemade cough medicine.

Sheriff's Report

County Jail Count Down

At the first of this month the Ulster County jail, for the first time in many months, had a population only slightly over capacity. The total number of prisoners held in the county jail was 50. The total capacity of the jail is 42 males and 14 females for a total of 56.

However, Sheriff William B. Martin's problem was not quite as simple as it appears because 49 of the prisoners were males to be housed in facilities for only 42. There was only one female prisoner in the women's jail section which has a capacity of 14.

There were 16 men being held for trial or grand jury action and 33 of the males were either convicted or sentenced to the institution. The only female in jail was serving time.

Busy Schedule

The month of July, according to Sheriff Martin's monthly report, was a busy one in the criminal department. A total of 199 criminal complaints were invesigated. The result was 21 arrests and 133 of the complaints were closed by investigation. Only 45 remained open.

There were 23 accidents investigated during July and 16 Vehicle and Traffic arrests were made.

Criminal warrants executed numbered 4 and misdemeanor warrants, including Family Court, 13.

Deputies covered 16,990 miles on patrol throughout the county. Property recoverd was $351. A total of 2,322 hours was spent in guard and desk duty and special details worked 284 hours. Officers from the office spent 48 hours attending schools.

In the Civil Department Sheriff Martin reports receipt of $4,910 from bails and fines and $9,339.22 from executions. Fees amounted to $2,371.21 which was turned over to the County Treasurer. Summonses and subpoenas numbered 71, district attorney summonses 22. There were 22 commitment orders, 36 income executions and 17 property executions.

Special Services issued 42 pistol permits, 61 pistols were registered, 75 persons were fingerprinted and 75 record checks made. Receipts of the department were $228.

In the county parking lot 48 summonses were issued and the income from the parking was $653.23.

Six complaints were investigated by the Navigation Patrol which covered 560 miles of river patrol. Six boats were given assistance and two accidents were investigated. The Navigation Patrol is maintained during the summer boating season.

Correction department reports 175 males and six females admitted to jail during July, a total of 181. Of these 114 were held for grand jury action or trial. Those sentenced to jail numbered 62.

Trusties worked a total of 2,780 hours which at $2 an hour, Sheriff Martin reports represented a savings of $5,560 to the county. The county saved $75 on haircuts through use of jail inmate service.

Society Madhouse: Leary

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary urged a student group Thursday to "turn on and drop out" of society.

Society "is a madhouse," he said, "you just don't realize how nutty it is."

Flowers to Audience

Leary, accompanied by an assistant who threw flowers into the audience, spoke at a symposium of the National Student Association Congress held at the University of Maryland. He wore white Hindu-type garb, beads but no shoes.

The former Harvard professor, who lives in Millbrook, N. Y., noted that taking LSD "is like Russian roulette." He added: "Of course, we're all gambling men."

He said there were risks in taking LSD but "I feel there is no evidence of damage to the brain."

Dr. Sidney Cohen, chief of psychosomatic research at the Los Angeles Veterans Administration Hospital, shared the stage with Leary in the symposium.

Comments Criticized

Cohen criticized Leary's comments on LSD-inducted effects. "Many insights gained in such experiences may be valid," he said, "but many are ficticious."

3 Women Hurt in Mishap

Three elderly women suffered minor injuries Thursday following a one car accident on West O'Reilly Street.

Police said the injured were Loretta Bestle, 74, 88 Hone Street; Cecelia Smith, 69, of 277 Hasbrouck Avenue and Katherine Murphy, 77, 238 Clinton Avenue. The three were taken to Benedictine Hospital.

Police said Mrs. Smith suffered a broken nose. The other two complained of leg injuries.

The driver of the vehicle, Anne A. Goldrick of 84 West Chestnut Street, was not listed by police as injured.

According to police records, the auto was traveling west on O'Reilly Street when the operator attempted to apply the brakes. She told police the brakes didn't respond.

The car went out of control, police said, and hit into several small trees.

The wrecked auto was removed by Bryants towing service.

Meanwhile, police were summoned to Flatbush Avenue Thursday following a hit and run accident.

Officals said a car owned by Denis L. Kilmer, Colonial Garden Apartments, parked aside Flatbush Avenue, was struck late yesterday afternoon.

Police noted the auto was swiped along its side and that the driver of the unindentified vehicle left the scene without notifying authorities.

Sheriff's Report

County Jail Count Down

At the first of this month the Ulster County jail, for the first time in many months, had a population only slightly over capacity. The total number of prisoners held in the county jail was 50. The total capacity of the jail is 42 males and 14 females for a total of 56.

However, Sheriff William B. Martin's problem was not quite as simple as it appears because 49 of the prisoners were males to be housed in facilities for only 42. There was only one female prisoner in the women's jail section which has a capacity of 14.

There were 16 men being held for trial or grand jury action and 33 of the males were either convicted or sentenced to the institution. The only female in jail was serving time.

Busy Schedule

The month of July, according to Sheriff Martin's monthly report, was a busy one in the criminal department. A total of 199 criminal complaints were invesigated. The result was 21 arrests and 133 of the complaints were closed by investigation. Only 45 remained open.

There were 23 accidents investigated during July and 16 Vehicle and Traffic arrests were made.

Criminal warrants executed numbered 4 and misdemeanor warrants, including Family Court, 13.

Deputies covered 16,990 miles on patrol throughout the county. Property recoverd was $351. A total of 2,322 hours was spent in guard and desk duty and special details worked 284 hours. Officers from the office spent 48 hours attending schools.

In the Civil Department Sheriff Martin reports receipt of $4,910 from bails and fines and $9,339.22 from executions. Fees amounted to $2,371.21 which was turned over to the County Treasurer. Summonses and subpoenas numbered 71, district attorney summonses 22. There were 22 commitment orders, 36 income executions and 17 property executions.

Special Services issued 42 pistol permits, 61 pistols were registered, 75 persons were fingerprinted and 75 record checks made. Receipts of the department were $228.

In the county parking lot 48 summonses were issued and the income from the parking was $653.23.

Six complaints were investigated by the Navigation Patrol which covered 560 miles of river patrol. Six boats were given assistance and two accidents were investigated. The Navigation Patrol is maintained during the summer boating season.

Correction department reports 175 males and six females admitted to jail during July, a total of 181. Of these 114 were held for grand jury action or trial. Those sentenced to jail numbered 62.

Trusties worked a total of 2,780 hours which at $2 an hour, Sheriff Martin reports represented a savings of $5,560 to the county. The county saved $75 on haircuts through use of jail inmate service.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, AUGUST 18, 1967

All Must Register

Some 13,400 from the city and county, out of approximately 60,000 eligible voters in Ulster County, have taken advantage of central registration for the November general election. Special resgistration days have been held in polling places in the ctiy and townships and at the Board of Elections in the County Building.

Voters also have the opportunity to enroll when registering. If you do not enroll when you register, you will have to wait until next year. Enrollment also will become permanent, unless you want to change it. Enrollment in a political party now will qualify you to vote in primaries next year.

Under this new state system of permanent personal registration, every eligible voter including those who have been permanently registered in communities outside the corporate limits of Kingston, must be registered personally this year to qualify to vote in the coming general election. Under the PPR state law passed in 1965, every voter must re-register.

Registration will be continued at the Board of Elections until September 2. Dates at all local polls are weekdays October 6 to 14 from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., except on the two Saturdays when the hours will be from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Voters should plan to register before the final days thereby avoiding the last-minute rush. With this large number of eligible voters, there is bound to be confusion and disappointment if this civic duty is put off to the last minute.

We again remind all eligible voters they must register personally this year in order to participate in the coming general election.

Built - in Road Hazards

It is not good news to learn that road hazards built into the new interstate highway system are so many and so ubiquitous that several million dollars will have to be spent to correct them.

The interstate highway system is expected to cost $50 billion when it is completed—a figure that has grown annually as the program advanced. But with about $25 billion already spent on the system, it has been found that thousands of miles of highways are lined with faulty guardrails, poorly constructed median barriers and badly placed signs, light poles and other obstacles. Together they constitute serious safety hazards.

While the Federal Government pays 90 per cent of the cost of the interstate system, the actual work is done under the supervision of the states, who design the roads and let the contracts. It is in examining this work that the Bureau of Public Roads has found the flaws that have been allowed to develop.

The bureau now is prodding the states to correct the flaws in order to satisfy all possible safety requirements. But the cost will be several million dollars. It is going to be a very costly oversight. It isn't limited to one contractor or one state. The fault is widespread and general. State highways, under construction, should come under the most rigid inspection from highway commissioners and higher authorities. Taxpayers should demand this.

Burglary Insurance

One of the results of increased crime in this country is the increasing cost of burglary and theft insurance. Insurance rates are predicted on expected future experience, not merely on past performance. The future does not look good to the underwriters. Their existence depends upon a lawful, orderly society, while all around them the evidence is anything else but.

One large insurance company reports that the value of property stolen in each home burglary now averages $263. That compares with the average of $227 taken in commercial robbery.

Something else disturbing has happened. Formerly, burglars preferred to loot men's apartments, because it was easier to dispose of male clothing without raising suspicion and men were away from their during the day. Today, working girls have become the prime target of burglars. Whether living alone or in groups, they are also absent from their apartments during the day. Few know how to secure their homes. And they are affluent enough to afford the luxuries burglars covet.

What to do about it? For one thing, they can buy burglary and theft insurance, though some companies are reluctant to issue the policies. State insurance commissioners crack down on companies that discriminate in selecting risks by race, geography or sex. Premiums are high, but the risk is high, and the protection is necessary in these times of high crime rates.

Funds for vocational training would be almost tripled from $400 million to $1.1 billion under a bill approved by the House Labor Committee. This is the kind of expenditure that will pay dividends in workmen trained to fit into available jobs and pay their own way.

ROSS LEWIS, MILWAUKEE JOURNAL

Today in National Affairs

U.S. and W. Germany

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The implications of the meeting here between Chancellor Kiesinger of Germany and President Johnson are far-reaching. The conference dramatizes before the world the close relationship between West Germany and the United States. For despite withdrawal of French troops from the NATO military force by General De Gaulle, the fact remains that the United States is pledged by treaty to an instantaneous defense of West Germany as well as France if they should be attacked.

Since this commitment has in no way been diminished by French attitude, it is natural for the United States to rely more on West Germany for troops, and to urge that German defense against a possible invasion by hostile forces be not reduced. The wording of the official communique issued by the President and the German chancellor significantly describes the community of interests as follows:

"We agree fully that Europe and the United States are dependent upon one another for their security. The planning of the common defense in the years to come must remain in the hands of NATO."

On the surface it might appear that all this merely refers to the size of the armies to be maintained by NATO, but there is in the background something even more important, which is reflected in a London dispatch that came over United Press International wires coincident with the conference at the White House here. It reads as follows:

"The Soviet Union's determination to prevent the nuclear arming of Germany appears to be the primary reason behind the Kremlin's sudden readiness to hasten a ban on the spread of nuclear weapons, diplomatic sources said today."

The German chancellor declared in Washington that if his government were to sign the treaty for the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, it would require assurances that non-nuclear nations "cannot be the object of politial blackmail by a power which possesses the weapons."

The most practical way to defend West Germany, therefore, is to have a nuclear force established under the auspices of a United Europe, so that the trigger would be pulled by an international command the moment there was a nuclear attack from the Soviet Union. This is the German chancellor's real desire.

The reduction, however, of the number of ground troops maintained in West Germany would in the opinion of the American Government be construed in Eastern Europe as a sign of weakness.

Hence, the United States has urged that a substantial force be ready to take care of crises which might suddenly develop if tensions are again heightened.

The current policy, of course, is to try to improve relations not only with the Soviet Union but with the countries in Eastern Europe. The communique said on this point:

"We share the view that a policy of relaxation of tensions can help avoid conflicts. Such a policy can remove the causes of existing tensions, can overcome differences and in this way lead to mutual understanding and trust among peoples. It is only by following such a policy that the division of Europe and the division of Germany can be ended and a just and permanent peace be established in Europe."

The reference to an ending of the division of Germany itself is a reminder that the seeds of unrest are still present. History has proved that, when persons of the same nationality are prevented from living under the same government, there is a steadily increasing pressure for reunification. This often has led to war.

The Johnson - Kiesinger conference reaffirms American friendship with the German people, and it also makes clear that the United States itself has not changed its mind about the importance of bringing East and West Germany together. While the issue of reunification is at present not being pressed, it has not been forgotten.

France already possesses nuclear weapons and Red China has produced the same kind of bombs. It would be natural for the Germans to try a peaceful way of achieving a reunion with their fellow countrymen. But if this fails, they could someday insist upon the right to make nuclear weapons, not for offense but for defense.

Altogether, the President's talks with Chancellor Kiesinger were cordial and manifested a genuine friendship, which is most important in an epoch in which General De Gaulle has withdrawn France from a close relationship with the United States.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The good thing about stubbornness is that it thrives on rebuff. Mine is a soft-voiced, clenched teeth obstinacy which I am fond of blaming on Gaelic forebears who shook the peat off their feet and came here by steerage to become cops or crooks. The Irish refer to this inflexibility of mind as being "thick" or, more properly "t'ick."

Whatever it is, the Bishops have more of it than brains. My mother once said that all the Bishops were mules, and had the ears to prove it. Quietly, my father pulled a refrigerator door off and bent it in half. My grandmother once declined a bank's offer to reduce the mortgage interest by one-quarter of a per cent. "No, thank you," she said. Not that she didn't need the money, you understand. It was, excuse me, the principle of the thing.

I'm thick about television. My face is in the TV tube all hours of the night and yet I growl at what I see. The commercials are coyly clever, the stories are in such a rut that, according to calculations, they keep telling the same 16 plots over and over with different costumes and the same actors.

Television is not my business. Why must I be the messiah of the myopic lens? I don't know. I . . . just . . . don't know. Ten years ago, I spent some time with the men who tell us what we want to see, and I tried to interest them in documentaries. Instead of so much lousy fiction. I argued, why not tell true stories, real stories, and make them so entertaining that they'll look like cliff-hangers?

I received pitying glances. Do we, they asked, tell you how to write your books? Do we complain to the editors about your cornball columns? No? Then stay out of TV and leave it to the professionals. I hate Lucy, I said. They smiled. Hate it to your heart's content, they said, we have 40 million people who love it.

This is precisely where the stubbornnes comes in. The more they brushed me off, the harder I clung to their lapels. The more they applauded Beverly Hill Billies, the more I roared that they were out of their minds.

When Adolf Eichmann went on trial, I took over the WABC job of ad-libbing the film of the trial every day for 14 weeks. The film was the same as shown on CBS and NBC, but ABC won an Emmy for it. I didn't. ABC did. I had proved nothing.

Jack Paar wanted a semi-permanent guest, so I was on his show a score or more times. Then it was Mike Wallace and Mike Douglas and Merv Griffin and Art Linkletter, but I was treading water. There were stories everywhere which lent themselves more to the camera than to the written word, and no one could see them except me.

I was offered a small couch show. I said no, that isn't it. Official Films ran a series called Battle Line, and I became the narrator, but this only increased the stubbornness. My place was not in front of a camera. If anything, behind it. A succession of "pilot" story ideas left this typewriter and came back marked, "Fair, but who would sponsor it?"

The sponsors run the networks. In a newspaper, it would be comparable if the local department store and the automobile agency got together to tell the editor what he could print about Vietnam, or Robert F. Kennedy. The teeth were grinding down to the gums.

Last month, Stephen Wolfson of Jacksonville asked me if I would like to join a television syndication corporation called Royalty Productions Inc. It would produce truth; no fiction. If I would buy a little stock in his camera co-op, he said, I could be vice president. So I did, and he did. And a commentator friend of mine, Larry King, the silk-suited question mark of Brooklyn, also joined.

Know what? Are you ready? The stubborn quality is about to dissipate. We're going to do a two-hour documentray next month called A Critical Look at the World. It is a dangerous venture, my friends, but it's like the kid who wanted to ride a rocket once. Just once.

We will go to London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Beirut, Jerusalem, New Delhi, Bangkok — Saigon if permitted — Hong Kong, Tokyo, Honolulu and Los Angeles. Two cinematographers — Dick Winer and Egon Stephan — will take a long, realistic look at the world.

In effect, the TV set is saying: "Put up or shut up." The flying time around the world is 39½ hours by Pan-American. It's shorter with LSD, they tell me, but the nice part about the airplane is that it brings you back.

Come along, my friend. I need someone to hold my hand . . .

Drew Pearson Says

Carmichael Went Too Far

WASHINGTON — The board of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, meeting secretly in Atlanta, has voted to reprimand its former chief, Stokely Carmichael, if he should ever return from his communist vacation.

The FBI has learned from reliable sources that he may be heading for Hanoi and Peking. Then he may seek sanctuary in France instead of returning to face the music in the United States.

The SNCC board, whose members have no aversion to fiery oratory, decided Carmichael had gone too far in calling for guerrilla warfare to overthroy the U. S. government. His incendiary speeches in Havana have alienated SNCC backers who are militant about black power but unwilling to support revolution.

Result: The Carmichael publicity has hit SNCC hard in the pocketbook.

For that matter, SNCC already had lost most of its liberal white backing since excluding whites from its policy councils and switching its appeal from nonviolence to violence. The present SNCC chief, H. Rap Brown, is also an apostle of violence.

Two other SNCC activists, Julius Lester and George Ware, accompanied Carmichael to Havana. Lester was seen dressed in a Cuban army uniform, which may be grounds for revoking his American citizenship.

Still another SNCC leader, Cleveland Sellers, turned up in Tokyo to attend a communist-called convention. He was as outspoken as Carmichael in preaching the Peking line.

Meanwhile, the FBI is quietly building a case against both Carmichael and Brown. Every recorded speech made by the two firebrands is being carefully studied. Their inflammatory statements are also being checked against audience reaction for evidence that the listeners were incited to commit violence.

The chief legal obstacle will be persuading the courts to admit recordings and transcripts as evidence. However, this can be overcome by producing witnesses to verify what was said. In any case, President Johnson is determined to crack down on Negro leaders who preach violence and treason.

Note: The SNCC board became disenchanted with Carmichael when he gave up his $4,500-a-year job as their head man to capitalize on his notoriety. He began demanding $1,200 to $1,800 for speeches, which he delivered at the rate of two or three a week. When the University of Minnesota raised only $1,300 of a promised $1,800, for example, Carmichael was furious.

Put Up or Shut Up

This column has already suggested that Congress can finance the Vietnam war without hitting up the taxpayers for a 10 per cent increase simply by closing the tax loopholes.

Then the oil millionaires, who talk a lot about patriotism, can put their money where their mouths are. While others pay for the combat planes, the oilmen spend their tax benefits on private planes.

Meanwhile, the taxpayers go on subsidizing oil and gas from the time the first drill bites into the dust until the refined oil is sold on the market.

The biggest tax drainage comes from the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance. The taxpayers are also partners in all dry holes but do not share in the gushers. Finally, they are obliged to pay rigged prices for the oil they consume.

Oil prices have been inflated by the Interior Department's import program, which limits oil shipments into the country. Explained Interior Solicitor Frank J. Barry to a House Appropriations subcommittee earlier this year: "Foreign crude can come in from the Middle East and land in San Francisco and be sold for 50 cents a barrel . . I understand domestic crude in the West is $2.10 a barrel."

What happens to the $1.60 difference? The happy oil importer pockets it.

Actually, the price difference ranges from $1.20 to $1.60 a barrel. Multiplied by some 900,000,000 barrels of imported oil, this amounts to a bonanza of close to $1.5 billion a year.

One of the biggest importers is Phillips Petroleum, which had the good judgment to hire Oscar Chapman, a former Secretary of the Interior, to speak to his former subordinates about import quotas.

Phillips has had such good fortune in wangling profitable quotas that Rep. Charles Joelson, D-N.J., was moved to comment at the appropriations hearing: "I am beginning to understand why Phillips is called the oil that won the West."

The results of these abundant federal blessings can be seen, first of all, in the oil companies tax returns. The top 22 refiners, with a gross profit of more than $5.1 billion in 1964, paid only 4 per cent of their gross profit as U.S. income tax.

The rate for wage earners and small businessmen is around 20 per cent. For the average corporation it runs close to 49 per cent.

These statistics were released by the usually humorless Internal Avenue Service in a pamphlet decorated by a rambling ranch house, swimming pools, and bikini-clad bathing beauties against a background of oil derricks. The ironic montage was removed after complaints from sensitive oil producers, who were not at all amused.

William S. White

New Isolationists' Strategy

WASHINGTON — The supreme effort to force the United States out of Vietnam has now been opened by the outright peacenik and the yes-but blocs in the Senate.

The counteroffensive has been signalled, not by coincidence, at a moment when President Johnson is falling in the popularity polls. The underlying assumption clearly is that now that the President is in trouble at home this is the time to destroy the bipartisan policy of determined military resistance to the Communist invasion of South Vietnam of which he is the current symbol.

The J. William Fulbrights, the Robert Kennedys and other Democrats of the new isolationism, joined here and there by such turncoat Republican ex-hawks as Jacob Javits of New York, are basing their new strategy on the inevitable internal difficulties of South Vietnam itself.

They are using the argument that if the forthcoming national elections in South Vietnam are to be corrupt there will be no regime worth this country's continued efforts to defend. They are proceeding from this proposition to a conclusion that these elections, though not yet held, must necessarily be corrupt and thus that the United States will have to withdraw from the field in one way or another and under one sort of alibi or another.

They are scorning such old-fashioned nonsense as that of waiting for the evidence before they reach a verdict. To them, the verdict is already in, and—surprise, surprise—the verdict by innuendo is that the military leadership of South Vietnam is rigging the voting and thus that the elections are a failure before a single Vietnamese has voted in them.

Never before in so somber an issue have so few prejudged the vital efforts of so many. The new isolationists have already predetermined the case, and not all the factual information patiently supplied by Americans on the ground in South Vietnam, including Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, makes the slightest difference.

Bunker has reported over and over that charges by the civilian candidates that the present heads of South Vietnam, Generals Thieu and Ky, are loading the electoral dice have no founadtion in truth. The generals themselves have without avail invited our more loudly suspicious Senators to come to South Vietnam and see for themselves.

These Senators are in actuality demanding of South Vietnam, a land tortured by invasion and by Communist subversives from within, a perfectionism in "clean" elections that has never been found in the United States itself after nearly two centuries of democratic experience.

The realities as stated by Ambassador Bunker, an honorable Republican in his seventies who has no political ambition and no conceivable motive to mislead his own government and his own people, are these:

There is freedom of expression in the South Vietnamese press. All Presidential candidates, including, of course, the civilians, are being given money for their campaigns by the present supposedly evil military government and are being furnished transportation by that government, along with free time on radio and television. The United Nations, various national governments and the international press have been invited to come and observe with no strings attached.

The complaints of "unfairness" from among the civilian candidates amount to the perfectly normal campaign outcry of any outs against any ins. Indeed, the real and central complaint is that the incumbents have the inherent advantage of already holding office—an advantage of which the Kennedys, the Fulbrights, the Javitses and so on are happy to avail themselves in this country at election time.

These are the facts of the matter. But the new isolationists have long since abandoned any notion that facts are to be respected unless they support their own tireless campaign to repudiate the pledges of three American Presidents to the people of South Vietnam.

Kennedy Is Ignored

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—U. S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is enjoying no success in his efforts to influence actions by the State Constitutional Convention.

Choosing his issues carefully, Kennedy has expressed personal preferences in only three areas.

He told the convention on opening day that is should write a short and flexible Constitution. Later he recommended creation of a state department of criminal justice. Finally he advocated action to protect public electric power.

So far, however, the Democratic-controlled convention either has ignored or sidetracked the recommendations of the man often described as the state's leading Democrat.

The most obvious reason for Kennedy's disappointing record is that his proposals turned out not to coincide with the viewpoints of the convention as a whole.

This might be expected of the Republican minority, of course, but it developed that the Democratic majority was none too eager to do the senator's bidding, either.

The chief factor is that there is still a strong undercurrent of resentment toward Kennedy among Demotratic party elements that continue to regard him as a presumptuous intruder from Massachusetts.

No matter how diligently he tries to underplay his leadership role, his critics refuse to be molified.

There is also a barefly concealed residue of hostility toward Kennedy in the political camp of Convention President Anthony J. Travia because of the part Kennedy played in the 1965 fight over leadership posts in the Legislature. Although he never took sides publicly, Kennedy was known to be sympathetic toward a faction that sought unsuccessfully to deny Travia the Assembly speaker's job.

Little Mutual Trust

Travia since has developed a working accommodation with Kennedy, but there is little mutual trust or understanding between the two men.

While Travia has used the full power of his office to advance his own personal program in the convention, he has made no special efforts in behalf of the Kennedy proposals.

Here's the record to date:

—When Vice President William vanden Heuvel, a Kennedy intimate, offered a resolution last April seeking to commit the convention to writing a short, simplified Constitution, Republicans protested against "brevity for brevity's sake." Travia sent the resolution to committee, where is is gathering dust, while verbiage in the new Constitution piles up.

—After Kennedy called for creation of a criminal justice department, to be headed by an appointed attorney general, a convention committee reshaped the plan along lines preferred by Gov. Rockefeller. When the modified proposal was brought to a vote, it fell nine votes short of aproval.

—When another committee, headed by Delegate Harold Fisher, a Travia confidante, took up Kennedy's power proposal, several Democratic members sided with the GOP minority against it. Fisher then reported that the measure would not be brought before the full convention.

There is still some possibility that the justice-department plan might be salvaged, on a second vote, but the rest of Kennedy's limited program is lost.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, AUGUST 18, 1967

All Must Register

Some 13,400 from the city and county, out of approximately 60,000 eligible voters in Ulster County, have taken advantage of central registration for the November general election. Special resgistration days have been held in polling places in the ctiy and townships and at the Board of Elections in the County Building.

Voters also have the opportunity to enroll when registering. If you do not enroll when you register, you will have to wait until next year. Enrollment also will become permanent, unless you want to change it. Enrollment in a political party now will qualify you to vote in primaries next year.

Under this new state system of permanent personal registration, every eligible voter including those who have been permanently registered in communities outside the corporate limits of Kingston, must be registered personally this year to qualify to vote in the coming general election. Under the PPR state law passed in 1965, every voter must re-register.

Registration will be continued at the Board of Elections until September 2. Dates at all local polls are weekdays October 6 to 14 from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., except on the two Saturdays when the hours will be from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Voters should plan to register before the final days thereby avoiding the last-minute rush. With this large number of eligible voters, there is bound to be confusion and disappointment if this civic duty is put off to the last minute.

We again remind all eligible voters they must register personally this year in order to participate in the coming general election.

Built - in Road Hazards

It is not good news to learn that road hazards built into the new interstate highway system are so many and so ubiquitous that several million dollars will have to be spent to correct them.

The interstate highway system is expected to cost $50 billion when it is completed—a figure that has grown annually as the program advanced. But with about $25 billion already spent on the system, it has been found that thousands of miles of highways are lined with faulty guardrails, poorly constructed median barriers and badly placed signs, light poles and other obstacles. Together they constitute serious safety hazards.

While the Federal Government pays 90 per cent of the cost of the interstate system, the actual work is done under the supervision of the states, who design the roads and let the contracts. It is in examining this work that the Bureau of Public Roads has found the flaws that have been allowed to develop.

The bureau now is prodding the states to correct the flaws in order to satisfy all possible safety requirements. But the cost will be several million dollars. It is going to be a very costly oversight. It isn't limited to one contractor or one state. The fault is widespread and general. State highways, under construction, should come under the most rigid inspection from highway commissioners and higher authorities. Taxpayers should demand this.

Burglary Insurance

One of the results of increased crime in this country is the increasing cost of burglary and theft insurance. Insurance rates are predicted on expected future experience, not merely on past performance. The future does not look good to the underwriters. Their existence depends upon a lawful, orderly society, while all around them the evidence is anything else but.

One large insurance company reports that the value of property stolen in each home burglary now averages $263. That compares with the average of $227 taken in commercial robbery.

Something else disturbing has happened. Formerly, burglars preferred to loot men's apartments, because it was easier to dispose of male clothing without raising suspicion and men were away from their during the day. Today, working girls have become the prime target of burglars. Whether living alone or in groups, they are also absent from their apartments during the day. Few know how to secure their homes. And they are affluent enough to afford the luxuries burglars covet.

What to do about it? For one thing, they can buy burglary and theft insurance, though some companies are reluctant to issue the policies. State insurance commissioners crack down on companies that discriminate in selecting risks by race, geography or sex. Premiums are high, but the risk is high, and the protection is necessary in these times of high crime rates.

Funds for vocational training would be almost tripled from $400 million to $1.1 billion under a bill approved by the House Labor Committee. This is the kind of expenditure that will pay dividends in workmen trained to fit into available jobs and pay their own way.

ROSS LEWIS, MILWAUKEE JOURNAL

Today in National Affairs

U.S. and W. Germany

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The implications of the meeting here between Chancellor Kiesinger of Germany and President Johnson are far-reaching. The conference dramatizes before the world the close relationship between West Germany and the United States. For despite withdrawal of French troops from the NATO military force by General De Gaulle, the fact remains that the United States is pledged by treaty to an instantaneous defense of West Germany as well as France if they should be attacked.

Since this commitment has in no way been diminished by French attitude, it is natural for the United States to rely more on West Germany for troops, and to urge that German defense against a possible invasion by hostile forces be not reduced. The wording of the official communique issued by the President and the German chancellor significantly describes the community of interests as follows:

"We agree fully that Europe and the United States are dependent upon one another for their security. The planning of the common defense in the years to come must remain in the hands of NATO."

On the surface it might appear that all this merely refers to the size of the armies to be maintained by NATO, but there is in the background something even more important, which is reflected in a London dispatch that came over United Press International wires coincident with the conference at the White House here. It reads as follows:

"The Soviet Union's determination to prevent the nuclear arming of Germany appears to be the primary reason behind the Kremlin's sudden readiness to hasten a ban on the spread of nuclear weapons, diplomatic sources said today."

The German chancellor declared in Washington that if his government were to sign the treaty for the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, it would require assurances that non-nuclear nations "cannot be the object of political blackmail by a power which possesses the weapons."

The most practical way to defend West Germany, therefore, is to have a nuclear force established under the auspices of a United Europe, so that the trigger would be pulled by an international command the moment there was a nuclear attack from the Soviet Union. This is the German chancellor's real desire.

The reduction, however, of the number of ground troops maintained in West Germany would in the opinion of the American Government be construed in Eastern Europe as a sign of weakness.

Hence, the United States has urged that a substantial force be ready to take care of crises which might suddenly develop if tensions are again heightened.

The current policy, of course, is to try to improve relations not only with the Soviet Union but with the countries in Eastern Europe. The communique said on this point:

"We share the view that a policy of relaxation of tensions can help avoid conflicts. Such a policy can remove the causes of existing tensions, can overcome differences and in this way lead to mutual understanding and trust among peoples. It is only by following such a policy that the division of Europe and the division of Germany can be ended and a just and permanent peace be established in Europe."

The reference to an ending of the division of Germany itself is a reminder that the seeds of unrest are still present. History has proved that, when persons of the same nationality are prevented from living under the same government, there is a steadily increasing pressure for reunification. This often has led to war.

The Johnson - Kiesinger conference reaffirms American friendship with the German people, and it also makes clear that the United States itself has not changed its mind about the importance of bringing East and West Germany together. While the issue of reunification is at present not being pressed, it has not been forgotten.

France already possesses nuclear weapons and Red China has produced the same kind of bombs. It would be natural for the Germans to try a peaceful way of achieving a reunion with their fellow countrymen. But if this fails, they could someday insist upon the right to make nuclear weapons, not for offense but for defense.

Altogether, the President's talks with Chancellor Kiesinger were cordial and manifested a genuine friendship, which is most important in an epoch in which General De Gaulle has withdrawn France from a close relationship with the United States.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The good thing about stubbornness is that it thrives on rebuff. Mine is a soft-voiced, clenched teeth obstinacy which I am fond of blaming on Gaelic forebears who shook the peat off their feet and came here by steerage to become cops or crooks. The Irish refer to this inflexibility of mind as being "thick" or, more properly "t'ick."

Whatever it is, the Bishops have more of it than brains. My mother once said that all the Bishops were mules, and had the ears to prove it. Quietly, my father pulled a refrigerator door off and bent it in half. My grandmother once declined a bank's offer to reduce the mortgage interest by one-quarter of a per cent. "No, thank you," she said. Not that she didn't need the money, you understand. It was, excuse me, the principle of the thing.

I'm thick about television. My face is in the TV tube all hours of the night and yet I growl at what I see. The commercials are coyly clever, the stories are in such a rut that, according to calculations, they keep telling the same 16 plots over and over with different costumes and the same actors.

Television is not my business. Why must I be the messiah of the myopic lens? I don't know. I . . . just . . . don't know. Ten years ago, I spent some time with the men who tell us what we want to see, and I tried to interest them in documentaries. Instead of so much lousy fiction. I argued, why not tell true stories, real stories, and make them so entertaining that they'll look like cliff-hangers?

I received pitying glances. Do we, they asked, tell you how to write your books? Do we complain to the editors about your cornball columns? No? Then stay out of TV and leave it to the professionals.

I hate Lucy, I said. They smiled. Hate it to your heart's content, they said, we have 40 million people who love it.

This is precisely where the stubbornnes comes in. The more they brushed me off, the harder I clung to their lapels. The more they applauded Beverly Hill Billies, the more I roared that they were out of their minds.

When Adolf Eichmann went on trial, I took over the WABC job of ad-libbing the film of the trial every day for 14 weeks. The film was the same as shown on CBS and NBC, but ABC won an Emmy for it. I didn't. ABC did. I had proved nothing.

Jack Paar wanted a semi-permanent guest, so I was on his show a score of more times. Then it was Mike Wallace and Mike Douglas and Merv Griffin and Art Linkletter, but I was treading water. There were stories everywhere which lent themselves more to the camera than to the written word, and no one could see them except me.

I was offered a small couch show. I said no, that isn't it. Official Films ran a series called Battle Line, and I became the narrator, but this only increased the stubbornness. My place was not in front of a camera. If anything, behind it. A succession of "pilot" story ideas left this typewriter and came back marked, "Fair, but who would sponsor it?"

The sponsors run the networks. In a newspaper, it would be comparable if the local department store and the automobile agency got together to tell the editor what he could print about Vietnam, or Robert F. Kennedy. The teeth were grinding down to the gums.

Last month, Stephen Wolfson of Jacksonville asked me if I would like to join a television syndication corporation called Royalty Productions Inc. It would produce truth; no fiction. If I would buy a little stock in his camera co-op, he said, I could be vice president. So I did, and he did. And a commentator friend of mine, Larry King, the silk-suited question mark of Brooklyn, also joined.

Know what? Are you ready? The stubborn quality is about to dissipate. We're going to do a two-hour documentray next month called A Critical Look at the World. It is a dangerous venture, my friends, but it's like the kid who wanted to ride a rocket once. Just once.

We will go to London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Beirut, Jerusalem, New Delhi, Bangkok — Saigon if permitted — Hong Kong, Tokyo, Honolulu and Los Angeles. Two cinematographers — Dick Winer and Egon Stephan — will take a long, realistic look at the world.

In effect, the TV set is saying: "Put up or shut up." The flying time around the world is 39½ hours by Pan-American. It's shorter with LSD, they tell me, but the nice part about the airplane is that it brings you back.

Come along, my friend. I need someone to hold my hand . . .

Drew Pearson Says

Carmichael Went Too Far

WASHINGTON — The board of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, meeting secretly in Atlanta, has voted to reprimand its former chief, Stokely Carmichael, if he should ever return from his communist vacation.

The FBI has learned from reliable sources that he may be heading for Hanoi and Peking. Then he may seek sanctuary in France instead of returning to face the music in the United States.

The SNCC board, whose members have no aversion to fiery oratory, decided Carmichael had gone too far in calling for guerrilla warfare to overthroy the U. S. government. His incendiary speeches in Havana have alienated SNCC backers who are militant about black power but unwilling to support revolution.

Result: The Carmichael publicity has hit SNCC hard in the pocketbook.

For that matter, SNCC already had lost most of its liberal white backing since excluding whites from its policy councils and switching its appeal from nonviolence to violence. The present SNCC chief, H. Rap Brown, is also an apostle of violence.

Two other SNCC activists, Julius Lester and George Ware, accompanied Carmichael to Havana. Lester was seen dressed in a Cuban army uniform, which may be grounds for revoking his American citizenship.

Still another SNCC leader, Cleveland Sellers, turned up in Tokyo to attend a communist-called convention. He was as outspoken as Carmichael in preaching the Peking line.

Meanwhile, the FBI is quietly building a case against both Carmichael and Brown. Every recorded speech made by the two firebrands is being carefully studied. Their inflammatory statements are also being checked against audience reaction for evidence that the listeners were incited to commit violence.

The chief legal obstacle will be persuading the courts to admit recordings and transcripts as evidence. However, this can be overcome by producing witnesses to verify what was said. In any case, President Johnson is determined to crack down on Negro leaders who preach violence and treason.

Note: The SNCC board became disenchanted with Carmichael when he gave up his $4,500-a-year job as their head man to capitalize on his notoriety. He began demanding $1,200 to $1,800 for speeches, which he delivered at the rate of two or three a week. When the University of Minnesota raised only $1,300 of a promised $1,800, for example, Carmichael was furious.

Put Up or Shut Up

This column has already suggested that Congress can finance the Vietnam war without hitting up the taxpayers for a 10 per cent increase simply by closing the tax loopholes.

Then the oil millionaires, who talk a lot about patriotism, can put their money where their mouths are. While others pay for the combat planes, the oilmen spend their tax benefits on private planes.

Meanwhile, the taxpayers go on subsidizing oil and gas from the time the first drill bites into the dust until the refined oil is sold on the market.

The biggest tax drainage comes from the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance. The taxpayers are also partners in all dry holes but do not share in the gushers. Finally, they are obliged to pay rigged prices for the oil they consume.

Oil prices have been inflated by the Interior Department's import program, which limits oil shipments into the country. Explained Interior Solicitor Frank J. Barry to a House Appropriations subcommittee earlier this year: "Foreign crude can come in from the Middle East and land in San Francisco and be sold for 50 cents a barrel . . I understand domestic crude in the West is $2.10 a barrel."

What happens to the $1.60 difference? The happy oil importer pockets it.

Actually, the price difference ranges from $1.20 to $1.60 a barrel. Multiplied by some 900,000,000 barrels of imported oil, this amounts to a bonanza of close to $1.5 billion a year.

One of the biggest importers is Phillips Petroleum, which had the good judgment to hire Oscar Chapman, a former Secretary of the Interior, to speak to his former subordinates about import quotas.

Phillips has had such good fortune in wangling profitable quotas that Rep. Charles Joelson, D-N.J., was moved to comment at the appropriations hearing: "I am beginning to understand why Phillips is called the oil that won the West."

The results of these abundant federal blessings can be seen, first of all, in the oil companies tax returns. The top 22 refiners, with a gross profit of more than $5.1 billion in 1964, paid only 4 per cent of their gross profit as U.S. income tax.

The rate for wage earners and small businessmen is around 20 per cent. For the average corporation it runs close to 49 per cent.

These statistics were released by the usually humorless Internal Avenue Service in a pamphlet decorated by a rambling ranch house, swimming pools, and bikini-clad bathing beauties against a background of oil derricks. The ironic montage was removed after complaints from sensitive oil producers, who were not at all amused.

New Isolationists' Strategy

WASHINGTON — The supreme effort to force the United States out of Vietnam has now been opened by the outright peacenik and the yes-but blocs in the Senate.

The counteroffensive has been signalled, not by coincidence, at a moment when President Johnson is falling in the popularity polls. The underlying assumption clearly is that now that the President is in trouble at home this is the time to destroy the bipartisan policy of determined military resistance to the Communist invasion of South Vietnam of which he is the current symbol.

The J. William Fulbrights, the Robert Kennedys and other Democrats of the new isolationism, joined here and there by such turncoat Republican ex-hawks as Jacob Javits of New York, are basing their new strategy on the inevitable internal difficulties of South Vietnam itself.

They are using the argument that if the forthcoming national elections in South Vietnam are to be corrupt there will be no regime worth this country's continued efforts to defend. They are proceeding from this proposition to a conclusion that these elections, though not yet held, must necessarily be corrupt and thus that the United States will have to withdraw from the field in one way or another and under one sort of alibi or another.

They are scorning such old-fashioned nonsense as that of waiting for the evidence before they reach a verdict. To them, the verdict is already in, and—surprise, surprise—the verdict by innuendo is that the military leadership of South Vietnam is rigging the voting and thus that the elections are a failure before a single Vietnamese has voted in them.

Never before in so somber an issue have so few prejudged the vital efforts of so many. The new isolationists have already predetermined the case, and not all the factual information patiently supplied by Americans on the ground in South Vietnam, including Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, makes the slightest difference.

Bunker has reported over and over that charges by the civilian candidates that the present heads of South Vietnam, Generals Thieu and Ky, are loading the electoral dice have no founadtion in truth. The generals themselves have without avail invited our more loudly suspicious Senators to come to South Vietnam and see for themselves.

These Senators are in actuality demanding of South Vietnam, a land tortured by invasion and by Communist subversives from within, a perfectionism in "clean" elections that has never been found in the United States itself after nearly two centuries of democratic experience.

The realities as stated by Ambassador Bunker, an honorable Republican in his seventies who has no political ambition and no conceivable motive to mislead his own government and his own people, are these:

There is freedom of expression in the South Vietnamese press. All Presidential candidates, including, of course, the civilians, are being given money for their campaigns by the present supposedly evil military government and are being furnished transportation by that government, along with free time on radio and television. Bombers and Naval Guns Rake North Viet Positions

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SAIGON (AP)—The U. S. Command announced today a near record number of air strikes on North Vietnam, B52 raids just above the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam, and bombing and naval shellings inside the zone.

The Communists derailed a train just outside Saigon and terrorist snipers attacked in the South Vietnamese capital.

Although ground fighting in the South remained scattered there were many sharp but limited skirmishes with at least 181 Communists killed in reported actions, the command said.

The intensified pace of the air war cost the United States its 643rd plane announced as lost over North Vietnam, an F105 Thunderchief shot down Thursday. The pilot was saved by a helicopter.

The coordinated B52 raids struck the demilitarized zone area early today, making it eight times within the past three days.

Up to 35,000 Communist troops are believed concentrated in the area, preparing for a possible attack on U. S. Marine outposts.

One raid went into the northern half of the DMZ and the other went into North Vietnam itself. The Air Force never discloses the number of the eight-engine B52s on any particular raid but the minimum number is usually three planes, with each carrying up to 30 tons of bombs.

The raids followed up shelling Thursday by the destroyer DuPont which raked targets throughout the six-mile wide zone. It was the second consecutive day of naval bombardment in the zone from which the North Vietnamese have staged repeated assaults on U. S. Marines just to the south.

The war was also carried to North Vietnam with 172 missions by American fighter-bombers.

Record Missions

Normally American warplanes fly about 150 missions daily but earlier this month they reached a record of 197 missions and the number Thursday was the fifth highest of the war.

Bad weather blanketed the Hanoi-Haiphong area but ranging south, the U. S. pilots found supply targets, including one convoy of 15 trucks caught in the open near Thanh Hoa. Skyhawk jets from the carrier Constellation raked the convoy with rockets and cannon fire, sending smoke billowing 2,000 feet.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that no one was injured in the sabotage of the freight train near Saigon but that the Viet Cong mines derailed six cars and badly ripped up the track to the big military installation at Bien Hoa.

Two of the derailed cars were armored cars carrying the South Vietnamese security platoon that accompanies all trains.

Sniper Fire

Inside the capital, security authorities reported a rooftop sniper fired at the guard post in front of an American enlisted man's billet a few hours before dawn today. The shot missed but a police sweep of the area also missd the sniper.

American authorities have warned that the Viet Cong terrorist campaign against the Sept. 3 presidential election is directed partly at American personnel.

The previous day the Command had noted the appearance of a "Dragon Lady" terrorist and a male accomplice in a European automobile who had missed in two attacks on American personnel in the capital.

The heaviest ground fighting centered in coastal Quang Ngai and Quang Tin provinces in northern South Vietnam. American Task Force Oregon reported killing 40 Communist soldiers in scattered actions and finding freshly dug graves in which 20 black-pajamaclad guerrillas were buried.

War of Attrition

Although other brisk actions were reported, no pattern to the fights was discernible except the Communist effort to inflict casualties in a war of attrition.

U.S. officials in Saigon made public today a translated copy of what they said was a top secret Viet Cong document dated March 1966.

In it, Communist leaders declared: "We are determined not to entertain any illusions concerning a negotiated settlement to the problem of Vietnam, and we must concentrate all our strength to destroy the enemy.

"Only when the American imperialists' aggressive will is crushed and the objectives of independence, peace, democracy and neutrality of the South are guaranteed can we negotiate a settlement of the Vietnam problem."

Social Security Benefits Detailed in Key Provisos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key provisions of the House-passed Social Security bill, all subject to change in the Senate:

Benefits—General increase, 12½ pr cent; minimum regular benefit up from $44 to $50 a month, would become effective on payments for second month after month in which bill is enacted; 24.2 million persons affected; additional benefits total $2.9 billion in 1968.

Taxes—In 1968, maximum increase of $44, produced by increasing wage base from $6,600 to $7,600; with later increases, rates reach 5.9 per cent on employer and employe in 1987 instead of 5.65 per cent provided in present law.

Earnings—At present, Social Security recipient may earn $1,500 a year without having benefits reduced; on earnings between $1,500 and $2,700 he loses $1 for each $2 earned. But in any one month, he may earn up to $125 without loss, regardless of yearly earnings. Bill would revise these figures to $1,680 instead of $1,500; $2,880 instead of $2,700, and $140 instead of $125.

Widows—For the first time, disabled widows—and dependent widowers—as young as 50 would get benefits from a deceased worker's account.

Disability—a new, tough definition of disability for retirement purposes would be spelled out. But retirement of some younger people would be facilitated by a new rule on the amount of previous coverag required.

Servicemen—They could accumulate more Social Security credit through a provision computing their pay at $100 a month more than their actual military base pay.

Medicare—A study of extending medicare to those retired for disability would be conducted. Hospitalization days would be extended from 90 to 120, but with patients paying part of extra cost. Patients could collect on itemized bills from doctors without first paying the bills, in cases where doctors refuse to deal directly with Medicare.

Dependent children programs — States required to develop counseling, training, and community work programs for adult and work-age non-school members of assisted families. Unemployed fathers would be required to get jobs or enroll in work training programs. Part of family earnings would be exempt from reduction of welfare payments to encourage self-sufficiency. States would have to offer day care, family planning services on a voluntary basis and develop programs designed to reduce illegitimate births, establish paternity and obtain support. Extra federal financial support for required state programs would be provided. The proportion of children in aid programs to the total child population of the state could not in future exceed the proportion of January 1967.

Medicaid — Federally-aided state health programs for low-income persons would have to conform to new income standards for eligibility. The family income could not be higher than either 133 1-3 per cent of highest amount ordinarily paid to family of same size under aid to dependent children, or 133 1-3 per cent of state per capita income for comparable family.

Limitations effective Jan. 1, 1968, except that states with existing programs could use interim proportions of 150 per cent until Jan. 1, 1969, and 140 per cent until Jan. 1, 1970.

New Division Considered By Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP — The Pentagon is considering forming a new division— potentially the Army's 18th—to replace home-based units destined for Vietnam.

Defense officials said Thursday this is one approach being studied to meet President Johnson's recent authorization of 45,000 to 50,000 more troops for the war.

About 34,000 of the men to go to Vietnam by mid-1968 will be Army troops, and an estimated half of these will be from active duty units kept in the continental United States as a military pool to meet possible emergencies abroad.

If the remaining two brigades of the 101st Airborne Division are dispatched to Southeast Asia as expected, the Pentagon may form the new division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., the 101st's home base.

Another possible base which has been mentioned is Ft. Lewis, Wash., former home of the Army's 4th division, now in Vietnam.

Indications are the majority of the remaining men in the new manpower authorization will be Air Force, with Navy units rounding out the total.

Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., commandant of the Marine Corps, said earlier this week no Marine units are involved in the latest buildup.

Whether the Army's over-all strength will have to be raised as a result of the additional Vietnam deployments remains a question, officials said.

The level of future draft calls depends on what course the Pentagon takes in coming weeks.

At present, officials said, planners are sticking to the originally anticipated monthly average of 24,000 for fiscal 1968.

October's call fell to 17,000, but the November draft is expected to approach 30,000.

Bombers and Naval Guns Rake North Viet Positions

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SAIGON (AP)—The U. S. Command announced today a near record number of air strikes on North Vietnam, B52 raids just above the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam, and bombing and naval shellings inside the zone.

The Communists derailed a train just outside Saigon and terrorist snipers attacked in the South Vietnamese capital.

Although ground fighting in the South remained scattered there were many sharp but limited skirmishes with at least 181 Communists killed in reported actions, the command said.

The intensified pace of the air war cost the United States its 643rd plane announced as lost over North Vietnam, an F105 Thunderchief shot down Thursday. The pilot was saved by a helicopter.

The coordinated B52 raids struck the demilitarized zone area early today, making it eight times within the past three days.

Up to 35,000 Communist troops are believed concentrated in the area, preparing for a possible attack on U. S. Marine outposts.

One raid went into the northern half of the DMZ and the other went into North Vietnam itself. The Air Force never discloses the number of the eight-engine B52s on any particular raid but the minimum number is usually three planes, with each carrying up to 30 tons of bombs.

The raids followed up shelling Thursday by the destroyer DuPont which raked targets throughout the six-mile wide zone. It was the second consecutive day of naval bombardment in the zone from which the North Vietnamese have staged repeated assaults on U. S. Marines just to the south.

The war was also carried to North Vietnam with 172 missions by American fighter-bombers.

Record Missions

Normally American warplanes fly about 150 missions daily but earlier this month they reached a record of 197 missions and the number Thursday was the fifth highest of the war.

Bad weather blanketed the Hanoi-Haiphong area but ranging south, the U. S. pilots found supply targets, including one convoy of 15 trucks caught in the open near Thanh Hoa. Skyhawk jets from the carrier Constellation raked the convoy with rockets and cannon fire, sending smoke billowing 2,000 feet.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that no one was injured in the sabotage of the freight train near Saigon but that the Viet Cong mines derailed six cars and badly ripped up the track to the big military installation at Bien Hoa.

Two of the derailed cars were armored cars carrying the South Vietnamese security platoon that accompanies all trains.

Sniper Fire

Inside the capital, security authorities reported a rooftop sniper fired at the guard post in front of an American enlisted man's billet a few hours before dawn today. The shot missed but a police sweep of the area also missd the sniper.

American authorities have warned that the Viet Cong terrorist campaign against the Sept. 3 presidential election is directed partly at American personnel.

The previous day the Command had noted the appearance of a "Dragon Lady" terrorist and a male accomplice in a European automobile who had missed in two attacks on American personnel in the capital.

The heaviest ground fighting centered in coastal Quang Ngai and Quang Tin provinces in northern South Vietnam. American Task Force Oregon reported killing 40 Communist soldiers in scattered actions and finding freshly dug graves in which 20 black-pajamaclad guerrillas were buried.

War of Attrition

Although other brisk actions were reported, no pattern to the fights was discernible except the Communist effort to inflict casualties in a war of attrition.

U.S. officials in Saigon made public today a translated copy of what they said was a top secret Viet Cong document dated March 1966.

In it, Communist leaders declared: "We are determined not to entertain any illusions concerning a negotiated settlement to the problem of Vietnam, and we must concentrate all our strength to destroy the enemy.

"Only when the American imperialists' aggressive will is crushed and the objectives of independence, peace, democracy and neutrality of the South are guaranteed can we negotiate a settlement of the Vietnam problem."

Social Security Benefits Detailed in Key Provisos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key provisions of the House-passed Social Security bill, all subject to change in the Senate:

Benefits—General increase, 12½ pr cent; minimum regular benefit up from $44 to $50 a month, would become effective on payments for second month after month in which bill is enacted; 24.2 million persons affected; additional benefits total $2.9 billion in 1968.

Taxes—In 1968, maximum increase of $44, produced by increasing wage base from $6,600 to $7,600; with later increases, rates reach 5.9 per cent on employer and employe in 1987 instead of 5.65 per cent provided in present law.

Earnings—At present, Social Security recipient may earn $1,500 a year without having benefits reduced; on earnings between $1,500 and $2,700 he loses $1 for each $2 earned. But in any one month, he may earn up to $125 without loss, regardless of yearly earnings. Bill would revise these figures to $1,680 instead of $1,500; $2,880 instead of $2,700, and $140 instead of $125.

Widows—For the first time, disabled widows—and dependent widowers—as young as 50 would get benefits from a deceased worker's account.

Disability—a new, tough definition of disability for retirement purposes would be spelled out. But retirement of some younger people would be facilitated by a new rule on the amount of previous coverag required.

Servicemen—They could accumulate more Social Security credit through a provision computing their pay at $100 a month more than their actual military base pay.

Medicare—A study of extending medicare to those retired for disability would be conducted. Hospitalization days would be extended from 90 to 120, but with patients paying part of extra cost. Patients could collect on itemized bills from doctors without first paying the bills, in cases where doctors refuse to deal directly with Medicare.

Vanguard of Jordanian Refugees Returning to Their Homeland

ALLENBY BRIDGE, Israeli-held Jordan (AP)—The first of thousands of Arab refugees who fled across the Jordan River in June began returning to their homes in Israeli-held territory today.

But many in Israel bemoaned their return.

600 Expected

About 600 Jordanians were expected back today. The refugees were first processed on the Jordanian side of the river by the International Red Cross, Jordanian and Israeli officials.

Then, carrying their clothing and rudimentary household possessions, they crossed the rough wood planking that now serves as the Allenby Bridge. The steel bridge was destroyed in the war. Other refugees crossed at Umm As-Shurat, 10 miles to the north.

On the Israeli side, the refugees were loaded into trucks and driven to their homes. The returning Arabs today were from Jenin, Nablus, Tulkarm and Kalkilya.

The International Red Cross said the refugees would cross the river at the rate of 1,000 a day. But Jordan reportedly could arrange for only 600 to cross today. It said 21,000 repatriation forms, representing 80,000 persons, have been turned over to Israeli authorities for clearance.

The number of refugees on the Jordanian east bank of the river is estimated at more than 200,000.

Israel has set Aug. 31 as the deadline for repatriation to be completed. The Israelis are rejecting applications from refugees who are considered possible security risks or who have a criminal record.

High Israeli government and army officials, including former U.N. Ambassador Michael Comay, and Col. Eliezer Amitai, commander of the Jerusalem district, watched the crossing.

The refugee return will be suspended Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, and will resume Sunday.

In Israel, criticism of the government decision to accept Arab refugees has been renewed.

Western diplomats in Amman, however, say the Arab broadcasts consist mainly of news items showing that the Arab population in the Israeli-held zone is remaining loyal to Jordan.

Leaflets were circulated in Jerusalem urging Arab teachers not to resume their jobs in Old Jerusalem when school opens Sept. 1. The leaflets claim Israeli authorities are planning an anti-Arab curriculum for the schools.

Textbooks Out

Israeli sources said the old Arab schoolbooks contain virulent anti-Israeli propaganda and could not be used.

Some Arab teachers say they won't teach unless the old Arab school books are used.

U.N. Gen. Odd Bull, head of the U.N. peacekeeping force, arrived in Jordan from Syria today to discuss cease-fire violations between Arabs and Israelis and other aspects of the Middle East situation. He was scheduled to leave for Israel later in the day.

Yugoslavian President Tito, winding up a tour of Arab countries, said all Arab leaders he talked to understood the need for a political settlement of the Middle East crisis.

"We are returning to our country with optimism regarding the talks we have had," Tito said after visits to Egypt, Syria and Iraq.

Foreign observers in Egypt interpreted Tito's statement to mean he has obtained assurances from Arab leaders he visited that they will strive for a solution. Tito conferred last with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Campaigning In Vietnam Is Difficult

By BARRY KRAMER

GIA DINH, Vietnam (AP) Most of South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates agreed today with a proposal by U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., that the election be postponed for four weeks. But some voiced pessimism that it could be done.

"Most of the tickets want to postpone the election. They think it would be an excellent idea," said former Premier Tran Van Huong, considered the leading civilian candidate in the Sept. 3 election.

"We lost about two weeks after the Dong Ha incident, while the government candidates continued to campaign and use government facilities to campaign," he said. But Huong added, "If we postpone it too long the people might lose interest."

The "government candidates" are Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and his vice presidential running mate Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The Dong Ha incident occurred Aug. 6 when the civilian candidates traveled 425 miles by government plane to northernmost Quang Tri, but became angry by what they said were inadequate government preparations. They canceled the trips to the provinces and resumed them only last Wednesday.

Javits proposed in a speech Thursday that the election be postponed "to permit a more meaningful campaign."

He said the Thieu-Ky government had "gravely compromised" the election process and that an extended campaign period would allow restoration "of full confidence in the meaningfulness of these elections."

Candidate Nguyen Dinh Quat said, "It is a very good proposal, but I don't think it can be effected. All the laws regarding the election were passed by the assembly and they would have to chang them."

Ha Thuc Ky, one of the leading civilian candidates and no relation to premier Ky, said, "If the election is postponed it would be very good for us. We have only a month to campaign and have already lost two weeks."

Truong Dinh Dzu, another candidate, said a two-week postponement would be better than four weeks.

One dissenter was Dr. Phan Quang Dan, vice presidential running mate of Phan Khac Suu, chairman of the assembly. "If you postpone the election many things can happen," he said.

He said if the candidates were not already known by the people then "they are not worthy to win" and more time would do them no good.

The candidates spoke in Gia Dinh today, the third day of their renewed tour by government transportation that will take them to 11 places outside Saigon.

The crowd of 1,800 persons that greeted them was relatively small. Gia Dinh Province which surrounds Saigon, has about 560,000 registered voters.

Thieu and Ky have not appeared at any of the campaign rallies. A local representative apologized for their absence, saying they were on official business in the provinces. Ky was in Da Nang and Thieu was in Phan Rang.

The crowd applauded when Dan said the United States is sending more financial aid to South Vietnam than it sent to Europe after World War II, but that the present government was preventing the aid from reaching the people.

Mother, Three Children Die In Minn. Fire

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — A woman and three of her four children died when fire leveled their farm home early today, the Stearns County sheriff's office said.

The woman's husband, David Haskins, 32, was found tied to a clothesline post in the farmyard with bullet wounds in the chest and stomach, the sheriff's office said. A black hood covered his head.

Haskins was taken to a St. Cloud hospital and was reported in critical condition. He was unable to give officers a clear picture of the tragedy at his farm home 17 miles southwest of St. Cloud.

The farm couple had four children, ranging in age from 7 years to six weeks.

Deputies said they found the body of Mrs. Haskins and three children in the burning embers of the farm home about 1 a.m. Fate of the fourth child was not immediately determined.

Pope Eases Long Control of Curia

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today shook loose four centuries of iron control by the Roman Curia in governing the Roman Catholic Church by reducing Curia terms from lifetime to five years and revamping the Curia from top to bottom.

The changes were outlined in a 15,000-word document entitled "De Romana Curia"—on the Roman Curia.

4 Years in Making

The document—long advocated by Church progressives and bitterly opposed by conservatives—was four years in the making. It took longer to produce than any other document in Pope Paul's reign.

It is part of a continuing process in reforming the traditionally conservative and Italian-dominated Curia. The reform was recommended by the Ecumenical Council.

In the document Pope Paul representative of "the universalization of the Church's central governing body and make it truly representative of "the universal church."

He ended the tradition of lifetime jobs for Curia cardinals and their subordinates, depriving them of the tenure that kept the Curia members in positions of long-term influence and power.

The Curia terms were fixed at five years, renewable at the Pope's direction. All Curia cardinals, the document stipulates, automatically lose their posts on a pontiff's death. The incoming Pope then can choose his own staff.

Purse String Curbs

The Pope ordered a new system of budget control to regulate the purse strings of every Vatican organization, thus denying individual agencies the power to finance their own operations without specific approval from higher authorities.

Few had expected a reform of such wide scope. Besides ending lifetime tenure, the Pope ordred two of the 12 sacred congregations— the major Curia agencies—eliminated entirely. A third will disappear by absorption.

The remaining nine will be reorganized, with some of them renamed, and all of the various other secretariats, tribunals and offices will undergo transformation.

The document goes into effect Jan. 1, 1968.

Charges are outlined in a general way. Detailed instructions supplementing the general decree will be issued later.

Source of Friction

The power of the Curia, built up since the early 16th century, has been a continuing source of friction in the Church.

Bishops in the field complained the Curia was narrow and archaic in thinking, acted as though it had the supreme power of the Pope and autocratically treated the rest of the Church as something that must blindly obey.

Pope Paul agreed changes were needed in line with the spirit and recommendations of the Vatican Ecumenical Council. On Sept. 23, 1963, he told the more than 2,000 prelates who work in the Curia that he was going to reform their offices.

Last Saturday the Pope issued a decree saying that bishops from around the world would be assigned posts in the Curia to make the body internationally representative.

He said then that the bishops would continue their duties at home but would gather in Rome each year for the plenary meeting of the Curia congregation to which they would be assigned.

Hangar Beams Fall; 2 Dead, Five Injured

WEYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Three 60-ton beams forming part of an aircraft hangar under construction collapsed today at South Weymouth Naval Air Station. Police said two men were dead and five injured.

The collapse buried workmen beneath rubble, and Navy personnel and police began digging out trapped personnel.

Two 30-ton cranes were demolished in the accident.

A man at the scene said four of the cranes were lifting the huge precast concrete beams into place atop girders.

Three of the beams were in place and the crew was working on the fourth when something slipped and it crashed, carrying the others down.

The beams have a 90-foot span. They landed on a concrete floor.

The accident occurred on the site of the station's old 800-foot blimp hangar torn down a year ago. The replacement hangar, about half as long as the old one, was to have been dedicated Sept. 30.

The station is located about 17 miles south of Boston.

A Navy public relations officer said the collapsed buried "several civilian workers and equipment beneath it."

"Navy and local police are presently digging out the personnel from the wreckage and at this time five are known injured."

Officer training programs will be phased out during the next seven months at Ft. Gordon, Ga.; Ft. Knox, Ky.; Ft. Lee and Eustis, Va., and at the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground.

Judge Promises Interesting Calendar Later

A gentleman, who described himself to City Court as retired, today told Judge Hubert A. Richter he was visiting "... to see how justice works."

Richter smiled and invited him back a week from today to witness a jury trial. Richter said, "You'll find a jury trial more interesting. Today's proceedings are pretty boring."

Slated for a jury trial next Friday is Charles Fisher, 18, of 125 Highland Avenue. He is accused of violating a city park ordinance.

Fisher was arrested Aug. 8. He is being represented by Matthew Weishaupt.

Also appearing in court this morning was Tarquin Woods, 17, of Legion Court, Port Ewen. Woods is charged with malicious mischief.

The youth is accused of spraying "white foam" over another boy's auto. Police arrested the defendant Aug. 7 in front of the Park Diner.

Woods' attorney, T. Francis Saccoman, requested a jury trial for his client. The court set Aug. 29 as the date.

Accused of public intoxication, William Bailey, 23 Van Buren Street, pleaded guilty today and was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail.

Bailey was arrested Thursday by police in the doorway of his apartment dwelling. Police said he was causing a ruckus.

Guardsmen Mobilized to Watch March

WALKER, La. (AP) — The state mobilized 650 National Guardsmen and 175 state troopers today to guard a band of Negroes marching through the Ku Klux Klan bastion of Livingston Parish.

The march resumes at Walker where it halted two days ago after a second fistfighting charge by whites. No one was seriously hurt in the attacks Tuesday and Wednesday.

No Other Choice

Gov. John McKeithen activated two battalions of Guardsmen Thursday, saying, "There is no other choice. If we don't let them march their six miles tomorrow, they would be back next week to march and we might have federal troops and everything like that."

Earlier in the day, A.Z. Young, the march leader, said state police had orders not to escort the Negroes — whose numbers usually vary from 15 to 25—out of Livingston Parish.

"I wouldn't feel safe if I had 20,000 going through there with me," Young said at a news conference in New Orleans. "I never feel safe when I march."

However, Young said the Negroes will continue marching unarmed,and without police protection if necessary, through the Klan stronghold.

McKeithen said Young's announcement that the state planned to withdraw the troopers was "completely untrue."

But State Police Supt. Thomas Burbank, contacted at the same time, said the Negroes were breaking a promise not to march until Saturday and not to walk further in Livingston Parish. Burbank said he had informed Young 'that the marchers would march at their own peril and that the state police would be available Saturday."

Troopers Reinforced

Within an hour the governor called up the National Guard and reinforced the state troopers who have been escorting the Negroes since the 106-mile Bogalusa-to-Baton Rouge trek began eight days ago.

"When the governor starts calling us rabble-rousers and troublemakers the minute we leave Bogalusa, these charges hit the ears of the Klan," Young said. "If a riot occurs, the governor is absolutely responsible."

One purpose of the march is to demonstrate to liberal whites that "whites in this area still want to use Negroes as tools just as they used Negroes in times of slavery," said Young, president of the Bogalusa Civil and Voters League.

The marchers planned to arrive in Baton Rouge for a rally Saturday—the same time the Universal Ku Klux Klan planned a demonstration on the far side of Louisiana's capital city.

Sunday, the Negroes will hold a second rally on the state Capitol steps, Young said, and H. Rap Brown chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, will speak.

The National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was issued a permit by the Baton Rouge police to parade through the city and arrive on the Capitol grounds after the Negro group is scheduled to end its rally.

Arrest Leftists

AGRINION, Greece (AP)—Police said Thursday they have arrested two men they identified as members of a Communist-led resistance organization which has been distributing leaflets attacking Greece's military dictatorship.

They said more arrests are expected in Agrinion, a central Greek tobacco town known in the past as a hotbed of leftist activity.

Police said the group was the Patriotic Antidictatorship Front. They identified the men as Tassos Tselos, a local leader of the now disbanded Moscow-line United Democratic Left party, and Panayiotis Moschonas, a party member. They said Tselos had been sought since the April 21 military coup.

Police broke up what they called another branch of the group on the island of Crete last month and arrested eight persons.

Capital Footnotes

The Labor Department reports more than two million workers won wage hikes averaging 14.5 cents an hour in major labor contracts negotiated so far this year. But it says a 1.3 per cent increase in living coasts so far in 1967 has wiped out $1.58 of the $5.80 weekly pay raise.

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien announces the Post Office Department saved some $8.7 million during fiscal 1967 because of employe suggestions. This compares with $8.2 million in similar savings in fiscal 1966.

Defy Order

HONG KONG (AP)—Three pro-Communist newspapers ordered by a Hong Kong magistrate to stop publication published a one-page joint "defiance edition" today.

Government sources said the court order was not served on the three papers until early today. Legal experts speculated whether the joint edition might be within the law if it came out before the order.

There was also a question whether Hong Kong authorities could do much about the one-page edition since it was put out in the Portuguese colony of Macao 40 miles south of this British colony.

Vanguard of Jordanian Refugees Returning to Their Homeland

ALLENBY BRIDGE, Israeli-held Jordan (AP)—The first of thousands of Arab refugees who fled across the Jordan River in June began returning to their homes in Israeli-held territory today.

But many in Israel bemoaned their return.

600 Expected

About 600 Jordanians were expected back today. The refugees were first processed on the Jordanian side of the river by the International Red Cross, Jordanian and Israeli officials.

Then, carrying their clothing and rudimentary household possessions, they crossed the rough wood planking that now serves as the Allenby Bridge. The steel bridge was destroyed in the war. Other refugees crossed at Umm As-Shurat, 10 miles to the north.

On the Israeli side, the refugees were loaded into trucks and driven to their homes. The returning Arabs today were from Jenin, Nablus, Tulkarm and Kalkilya.

The International Red Cross said the refugees would cross the river at the rate of 1,000 a day. But Jordan reportedly could arrange for only 600 to cross today. It said 21,000 repatriation forms, representing 80,000 persons, have been turned over to Israeli authorities for clearance.

The number of refugees on the Jordanian east bank of the river is estimated at more than 200,000.

Israel has set Aug. 31 as the deadline for repatriation to be completed. The Israelis are rejecting applications from refugees who are considered possible security risks or who have a criminal record.

High Israeli government and army officials, including former U.N. Ambassador Michael Comay, and Col. Eliezer Amitai, commander of the Jerusalem district, watched the crossing.

The refugee return will be suspended Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, and will resume Sunday.

In Israel, criticism of the government decision to accept Arab refugees has been renewed.

Western diplomats in Amman, however, say the Arab broadcasts consist mainly of news items showing that the Arab population in the Israeli-held zone is remaining loyal to Jordan.

Leaflets were circulated in Jerusalem urging Arab teachers not to resume their jobs in Old Jerusalem when school opens Sept. 1. The leaflets claim Israeli authorities are planning an anti-Arab curriculum for the schools.

Textbooks Out

Israeli sources said the old Arab schoolbooks contain virulent anti-Israeli propaganda and could not be used.

Some Arab teachers say they won't teach unless the old Arab school books are used.

U.N. Gen. Odd Bull, head of the U.N. peacekeeping force, arrived in Jordan from Syria today to discuss cease-fire violations between Arabs and Israelis and other aspects of the Middle East situation. He was scheduled to leave for Israel later in the day.

Yugoslavian President Tito, winding up a tour of Arab countries, said all Arab leaders he talked to understood the need for a political settlement of the Middle East crisis.

"We are returning to our country with optimism regarding the talks we have had," Tito said after visits to Egypt, Syria and Iraq.

Foreign observers in Egypt interpreted Tito's statement to mean he has obtained assurances from Arab leaders he visited that they will strive for a solution. Tito conferred last with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Campaigning In Vietnam Is Difficult

By BARRY KRAMER

GIA DINH, Vietnam (AP) Most of South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates agreed today with a proposal by U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., that the election be postponed for four weeks. But some voiced pessimism that it could be done.

"Most of the tickets want to postpone the election. They think it would be an excellent idea," said former Premier Tran Van Huong, considered the leading civilian candidate in the Sept. 3 election.

"We lost about two weeks after the Dong Ha incident, while the government candidates continued to campaign and use government facilities to campaign," he said. But Huong added, "If we postpone it too long the people might lose interest."

The "government candidates" are Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and his vice presidential running mate Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The Dong Ha incident occurred Aug. 6 when the civilian candidates traveled 425 miles by government plane to northernmost Quang Tri, but became angry by what they said were inadequate government preparations. They canceled the trips to the provinces and resumed them only last Wednesday.

Javits proposed in a speech Thursday that the election be postponed "to permit a more meaningful campaign."

He said the Thieu-Ky government had "gravely compromised" the election process and that an extended campaign period would allow restoration "of full confidence in the meaningfulness of these elections."

Candidate Nguyen Dinh Quat said, "It is a very good proposal, but I don't think it can be effected. All the laws regarding the election were passed by the assembly and they would have to chang them."

Ha Thuc Ky, one of the leading civilian candidates and no relation to premier Ky, said, "If the election is postponed it would be very good for us. We have only a month to campaign and have already lost two weeks."

Truong Dinh Dzu, another candidate, said a two-week postponement would be better than four weeks.

One dissenter was Dr. Phan Quang Dan, vice presidential running mate of Phan Khac Suu, chairman of the assembly.

"If you postpone the election many things can happen," he said.

He said if the candidates were not already known by the people then "they are not worthy to win" and more time would do them no good.

The candidates spoke in Gia Dinh today, the third day of their renewed tour by government transportation that will take them to 11 places outside Saigon.

The crowd of 1,800 persons that greeted them was relatively small. Gia Dinh Province which surrounds Saigon, has about 560,000 registered voters.

Thieu and Ky have not appeared at any of the campaign rallies. A local representative apologized for their absence, saying they were on official business in the provinces. Ky was in Da Nang and Thieu was in Phan Rang.

The crowd applauded when Dan said the United States is sending more financial aid to South Vietnam than it sent to Europe after World War II, but that the present government was preventing the aid from reaching the people.

Pope Eases Long Control of Curia

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today shook loose four centuries of iron control by the Roman Curia in governing the Roman Catholic Church by reducing Curia terms from lifetime to five years and revamping the Curia from top to bottom.

The changes were outlined in a 15,000-word document entitled "De Romana Curia"—on the Roman Curia.

4 Years in Making

The document—long advocated by Church progressives and bitterly opposed by conservatives—was four years in the making. It took longer to produce than any other document in Pope Paul's reign.

It is part of a continuing process in reforming the traditionally conservative and Italian-dominated Curia. The reform was recommended by the Ecumenical Council.

In the document Pope Paul representative of "the universal tion of the Church's central governing body and make it truly representative of "the universal church."

He ended the tradition of lifetime jobs for Curia cardinals and their subordinates, depriving them of the tenure that kept the Curia members in positions of long-term influence and power.

The Curia terms were fixed at five years, renewable at the Pope's direction. All Curia cardinals, the document stipulates, automatically lose their posts on a pontiff's death. The incoming Pope then can choose his own staff.

Purse String Curbs

The Pope ordered a new system of budget control to regulate the purse strings of every Vatican organization, thus denying individual agencies the power to finance their own operations without specific approval from higher authorities.

Few had expected a reform of such wide scope. Besides ending lifetime tenure, the Pope ordred two of the 12 sacred congregations— the major Curia agencies—eliminated entirely. A third will disappear by absorption.

The remaining nine will be reorganized, with some of them renamed, and all of the various other secretariats, tribunals and offices will undergo transformation.

The document goes into effect Jan. 1, 1968.

Charges are outlined in a general way. Detailed instructions supplementing the general decree will be issued later.

Source of Friction

The power of the Curia, built up since the early 16th century, has been a continuing source of friction in the Church.

Bishops in the field complained the Curia was narrow and archaic in thinking, acted as though it had the supreme power of the Pope and autocratically treated the rest of the Church as something that must blindly obey.

Pope Paul agreed changes were needed in line with the spirit and recommendations of the Vatican Ecumenical Council. On Sept. 23, 1963, he told the more than 2,000 prelates who work in the Curia that he was going to reform their offices.

Last Saturday the Pope issued a decree saying that bishops from around the world would be assigned posts in the Curia to make the body internationally representative.

He said then that the bishops would continue their duties at home but would gather in Rome each year for the plenary meeting of the Curia congregation to which they would be assigned.

Guardsmen Mobilized to Watch March

WALKER, La. (AP) — The state mobilized 650 National Guardsmen and 175 state troopers today to guard a band of Negroes marching through the Ku Klux Klan bastion of Livingston Parish.

The march resumes at Walker where it halted two days ago after a second fistfighting charge by whites. No one was seriously hurt in the attacks Tuesday and Wednesday.

No Other Choice

Gov. John McKeithen activated two battalions of Guardsmen Thursday, saying. "There is no other choice. If we don't let them march their six miles tomorrow, they would be back next week to march and we might have federal troops and everything like that."

Earlier in the day, A.Z. Young, the march leader, said state police had orders not to escort the Negroes — whose numbers usually vary from 15 to 25—out of Livingston Parish.

"I wouldn't feel safe if I had 20,000 going through there with me," Young said at a news conference in New Orleans. "I never feel safe when I march."

However, Young said the Negroes will continue marching unarmed,and without police protection if necessary, through the Klan stronghold.

McKeithen said Young's announcement that the state planned to withdraw the troopers was "completely untrue."

But State Police Supt. Thomas Burbank, contacted at the same time, said the Negroes were breaking a promise not to march until Saturday and not to walk further in Livingston Parish. Burbank said he had informed Young 'that the marchers would march at their own peril and that the state police would be available Saturday."

Troopers Reinforced

Within an hour the governor called up the National Guard and reinforced the state troopers who have been escorting the Negroes since the 106-mile Bogalusa-to-Baton Rouge trek began eight days ago.

"When the governor starts calling us rabble-rousers and troublemakers the minute we leave Bogalusa, these charges hit the ears of the Klan," Young said. "If a riot occurs, the governor is absolutely responsible."

One purpose of the march is to demonstrate to liberal whites that "whites in this area still want to use Negroes as tools just as they used Negroes in times of slavery," said Young, president of the Bogalusa Civil and Voters League.

The marchers planned to arrive in Baton Rouge for a rally Saturday—the same time the Universal Ku Klux Klan planned a demonstration on the far side of Louisiana's capital city.

Sunday, the Negroes will hold a second rally on the state Capitol steps, Young said, and H. Rap Brown chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, will speak.

The National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was issued a permit by the Baton Rouge police to parade through the city and arrive on the Capitol grounds after the Negro group is scheduled to end its rally.

Hangar Beams Fall; 2 Dead, Five Injured

WEYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Three 60-ton beams forming part of an aircraft hangar under construction collapsed today at South Weymouth Naval Air Station. Police said two men were dead and five injured.

The collapse buried workmen beneath rubble, and Navy personnel and police began digging out trapped personnel.

Two 30-ton cranes were demolished in the accident.

A man at the scene said four of the cranes were lifting the huge precast concrete beams into place atop girders.

Three of the beams were in place and the crew was working on the fourth when something slipped and it crashed, carrying the others down.

The beams have a 90-foot span. They landed on a concrete floor.

The accident occurred on the site of the station's old 800-foot blimp hangar torn down a year ago. The replacement hangar, about half as long as the old one, was to have been dedicated Sept. 30.

The station is located about 17 miles south of Boston.

A Navy public relations officer said the collapsed buried "several civilian workers and equipment beneath it."

"Navy and local police are presently digging out the personnel from the wreckage and at this time five are known injured."

Officer training programs will be phased out during the next seven months at Ft. Gordon, Ga.; Ft. Knox, Ky.; Ft. Lee and Eustis, Va., and at the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground.

Judge Promises Interesting Calendar Later

A gentleman, who described himself to City Court as retired, today told Judge Hubert A. Richter he was visiting "... to see how justice works."

Richter smiled and invited him back a week from today to witness a jury trial. Richter said, "You'll find a jury trial more interesting. Today's proceedings are pretty boring."

Slated for a jury trial next Friday is Charles Fisher, 18, of 125 Highland Avenue. He is accused of violating a city park ordinance.

Fisher was arrested Aug. 8. He is being represented by Matthew Weishaupt.

Also appearing in court this morning was Tarquin Woods, 17, of Legion Court, Port Ewen. Woods is charged with malicious mischief.

The youth is accused of spraying "white foam" over another boy's auto. Police arrested the defendant Aug. 7 in front of the Park Diner.

Woods' attorney, T. Francis Saccoman, requested a jury trial for his client. The court set Aug. 29 as the date.

Accused of public intoxication, William Bailey, 23 Van Buren Street, pleaded guilty today and was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail.

Arrest Leftists

AGRINION, Greece (AP)—Police said Thursday they have arrested two men they identified as members of a Communist-led resistance organization which has been distributing leaflets attacking Greece's military dictatorship.

They said more arrests are expected in Agrinion, a central Greek tobacco town known in the past as a hotbed of leftist activity.

Police said the group was the Patriotic Antidictatorship Front. They identified the men as Tassos Tselos, a local leader of the now disbanded Moscow-line United Democratic Left party, and Panayiotis Moschonas, a party member. They said Tselos had been sought since the April 21 military coup.

Police broke up what they called another branch of the group on the island of Crete last month and arrested eight persons.

Capital Footnotes

The Labor Department reports more than two million workers won wage hikes averaging 14.5 cents an hour in major labor contracts negotiated so far this year. But it says a 1.3 per cent increase in living coasts so far in 1967 has wiped out $1.58 of the $5.80 weekly pay raise.

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien announces the Post Office Department saved some $8.7 million during fiscal 1967 because of employe suggestions. This compares with $8.2 million in similar savings in fiscal 1966.

Defy Order

HONG KONG (AP)—Three pro-Communist newspapers ordered by a Hong Kong magistrate to stop publication published a one-page joint "defiance edition" today.

Government sources said the court order was not served on the three papers until early today. Legal experts speculated whether the joint edition might be within the law if it came out before the order.

There was also a question whether Hong Kong authorities could do much about the one-page edition since it was put out in the Portuguese colony of Macao 40 miles south of this British colony.

FBI Man to Kiwanis

Community Interest Plea

A plea for community interest to make certain that "the atmosphere for crime does not exist," was projected before the members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday by John F. Malone, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the metropolitan New York area.

Introduced by local Police Chief Robert F. Murphy, the FBI director pointed to recent legislation and the increase in crime as an indication that citizens the country over would be "drawn into the crime picture" more and more in an effort to aid police authority to reduce crime and "keep the peace."

11 PC Increase

Malone said that there were three million serious crimes in the United States last year, that in one hour 319 major crimes were being committed, and said that there had been an 11 per cent increase in crime of a serious nature in one year.

The youth of the country were better educated and were afforded greater opportunities in the modern world, said the FBI director, but he also emphasized that crimes committed by youth in the 18 to 24 age bracket, were increasing. He stated that 70 per cent of the major crimes in recent years had been committed by this age group.

"This is where the trouble is," said Malone in reference to youth participation in the crime record. He also pointed out that this 70 per cent of crimes credited to youth represent a group that was "less than 25 per cent of the entire population."

One of the aids in the prevention of these crimes was the interest of organizations who work with youth, said the speaker. He said there was no single cause of crime and that it was up to the police authority to keep the peace and enforce the law, but he emphasized that police authority could no more prevent crime then could an army be expected to prevent war.

Malone called for community interest and action, and he underscored the idea "that more then financial aid is necessary." He suggested that action in the form of respect for the law and police authority was needed to combat the crime record. He also emphasized that citizens should be ready and willing to report anything of a suspicious nature to the police or to the FBI.

Some of the problems of the FBI were outlined by the speaker, with current emphasis upon bank robberies. It was in connection with the idea of bank robberies that Malone made the plea to citizens to make certain that "the atmosphere for crime does not exist."

The FBI also investigates complaints of police brutality, which Malone said were usually not too well founded. He opined that people were "too fast to condemn the police departments."

Investigations for the Selective Service were also on the agenda of the FBI, and the speaker outlined various cases which had come to the attention of the Federal Bureau.

Malone concluded his remarks with the suggestion that citizens always be alert, and said the FBI was always ready to aid and investigate the problems that could lead to serious crimes.

Postman's Best Friend

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — When mail carrier Harry Hawrylak gets off the bus every morning to start his mail route, Apache, his unofficial watchdog and companion, is waiting there to accompany him. If a substitute mailman gets off the bus, the dog turns around and goes home.

Apache, who is owned by Mrs. Lydia P. Carter, stays with Hawrylak for the five hours it takes to cover the route. Then he follows his friend to the bus and waits until he gets aboard before heading home. The dog has been faithful to this routine for the past five years.

Watts Children In the Country

CAMP ROBERTS, Calif. (AP) — Plucked from the asphalt playgrounds of Watts, the Los Angeles district torn by riots in 1965, an excited army of Negro youngsters begins a pastoral vacation today.

For two weeks 2,400 city children will work as well as play in the rolling, sun-baked hills 250 miles north of Los Angeles.

The approval of federal agencies and a dozen local government and private groups was needed for this experiment in the war on poverty.

Use of the long-time Army training base was authorized late Wednesday. The project, sponsored by the Watts Labor Community Action Committee, was prepared in a whirlwind.

"No project proposed in our community has ever received such wide acceptance," Mayor Samuel W. Yorty told the Los Angeles City Council in a rare appearance before the group Wednesday.

Yorty pleaded for $5,000 in city funds needed to pay 30 city bus drivers to take the poverty-area children to the camp in 48 school buses. The council approved the spending unanimously.

Already on hand before the first buses arrive were 30 cooks furnished by the AFL-CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards Union.

About 35,000 pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables were donated by members of the California Council of Growers. The produce was being collected at a dozen distribution points throughout northern and central California.

The summer work-play project was proposed by Ted Watkins, who heads the Watts labor group. It quickly won the backing of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and Mike Horowitz of President Johnson's Council on Youth Opportunities worked all of Thursday cutting through red tape to make final arrangements.

The youngest of the boys and girls were first in line with other groups leaving Los Angeles daily next week.

Watkins said children from poorer areas of Los Angeles in addition to Watts may also get the vacation.

FBI Man to Kiwanis

Community Interest Plea

A plea for community interest to make certain that "the atmosphere for crime does not exist," was projected before the members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday by John F. Malone, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the metropolitan New York area.

Introduced by local Police Chief Robert F. Murphy, the FBI director pointed to recent legislation and the increase in crime as an indication that citizens the country over would be "drawn into the crime picture" more and more in an effort to aid police authority to reduce crime and "keep the peace."

11 PC Increase

Malone said that there were three million serious crimes in the United States last year, that in one hour 319 major crimes were being committed, and said that there had been an 11 per cent increase in crime of a serious nature in one year.

The youth of the country were better educated and were afforded greater opportunities in the modern world, said the FBI director, but he also emphasized that crimes committed by youth in the 18 to 24 age bracket, were increasing. He stated that 70 per cent of the major crimes in recent years had been committed by this age group.

"This is where the trouble is," said Malone in reference to youth participation in the crime record. He also pointed out that this 70 per cent of crimes credited to youth represent a group that was "less than 25 per cent of the entire population."

One of the aids in the prevention of these crimes was the interest of organizations who work with youth, said the speaker. He said there was no single cause of crime and that it was up to the police authority to keep the peace and enforce the law, but he emphasized that police authority could no more prevent crime then could an army be expected to prevent war.

Malone called for community interest and action, and he underscored the idea "that more then financial aid is necessary." He suggested that action in the form of respect for the law and police authority was needed to combat the crime record. He also emphasized that citizens should be ready and willing to report anything of a suspicious nature to the police or to the FBI.

Some of the problems of the FBI were outlined by the speaker, with current emphasis upon bank robberies. It was in connection with the idea of bank robberies that Malone made the plea to citizens to make certain that "the atmosphere for crime does not exist."

The FBI also investigates complaints of police brutality, which Malone said were usually not too well founded. He opined that people were "too fast to condemn the police departments."

Investigations for the Selectice Service were also on the agenda of the FBI, and the speaker outlined various cases which had come to the attention of the Federal Bureau.

Malone concluded his remarks with the suggestion that citizens always be alert, and said the FBI was always ready to aid and investigate the problems that could lead to serious crimes.

W. KENDALL WINDRAM, son of William K. Windram of 181 Bayard Street, Port Ewen, is completing summer camp at Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa. The camp is run by a staff of 50 which includes faculty officers, specialists in the field of music, athletics and Indian lore, and Valley Forge Junior College cadets who serve as counselors. The program is open to boys 10 to 18 from all over the United States and several foreign countries.

Watts Children In the Country

CAMP ROBERTS, Calif. (AP) — Plucked from the asphalt playgrounds of Watts, the Los Angeles district torn by riots in 1965, an excited army of Negro youngsters begins a pastoral vacation today.

For two weeks 2,400 city children will work as well as play in the rolling, sun-baked hills 250 miles north of Los Angeles.

The approval of federal agencies and a dozen local government and private groups was needed for this experiment in the war on poverty.

Use of the long-time Army training base was authorized late Wednesday. The project, sponsored by the Watts Labor Community Action Committee, was prepared in a whirlwind.

"No project proposed in our community has ever received such wide acceptance," Mayor Samuel W. Yorty told the Los Angeles City Council in a rare appearance before the group Wednesday.

Yorty pleaded for $5,000 in city funds needed to pay 30 city bus drivers to take the poverty-area children to the camp in 48 school buses. The council approved the spending unanimously.

Already on hand before the first buses arrive were 30 cooks furnished by the AFL-CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards Union.

About 35,000 pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables were donated by members of the California Council of Growers. The produce was being collected at a dozen distribution points throughout northern and central California.

The summer work-play project was proposed by Ted Watkins, who heads the Watts labor group. It quickly won the backing of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and Mike Horowitz of President Johnson's Council on Youth Opportunities worked all of Thursday cutting through red tape to make final arrangements.

The youngest of the boys and girls were first in line with other groups leaving Los Angeles daily next week.

Watkins said children from poorer areas of Los Angeles in addition to Watts may also get the vacation.

Postman's Best Friend

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — When mail carrier Harry Hawrylak gets off the bus every morning to start his mail route, Apache, his unofficial watchdog and companion, is waiting there to accompany him. If a substitute mailman gets off the bus, the dog turns around and goes home.

Apache, who is owned by Mrs. Lydia P. Carter, stays with Hawrylak for the five hours it takes to cover the route. Then he follows his friend to the bus and waits until he gets aboard before heading home. The dog has been faithful to this routine for the past five years.

Indian Pow Wow To Feature Top Corps From East

The 1966 Pow Wow Champions, St. Lucy's Cadets of Newark, N. J., will be at Dietz Memorial Stadium Saturday night to defend their title against six of the top-rated corps in North America. This exciting event, which will start promptly at 8 p.m., is the Third Annual Pow Wow of Junior Champions, and promises to be the greatest drum and bugle corps contest ever held in Kingston.

St. Lucy's Cadets are the oldest Catholic Drum Corps in the nation. In 1966, the Corps began to create and use a distinctive method of presentation of marching and musical style, which has resulted in many wins throughout the '66-'67 seasons. Their repertoire varies from classical offerings to rhythms in blues, jazz and ragtime.

Famed in the drum corps world for their fierce competitive spirit, they can be counted upon to fight hard to retain this corps title of significance. Championship corps that will include the Toronto Optimists, Canadian national champions; Blessed Sacrament "Golden Knights," American Legion and VFW National champions; Garfield Cadets, 10-time American Legion National champions; "Mighty" St. Joseph, '67 New York State champions; Magnificent Yankees, '64 New York State American Legion champions; and the New York Kingsmen, Northeastern Circuit champions. During the tabulation of the scores following the contests, the host corps, Kingston Indians will give an exhibition of their 1967 field show.

The main gate box office will be open from 1-4 p.m. on Saturday for those who wish to buy their tickets in advance. The stadium gates will open for admission at 6 p.m. with auto triffic only permitted at the main (Washington Avenue) gate, while pedestrians may use the Forsyth Park, Joy's Lane, and the main gate for admittance to this colorful musical show.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING....

Wait for Price Reversal On Fast Runup Stocks

Q) "I am a young engineer, recently married, 24 years old. We have adequate savings and have extra money available for investment. We would like to build a portfolio to benefit ourselves and our hoped-for family, in the future. Should we concentrate on growth or speculative stocks or a mixture of the two? Any suggestions would be appreciated." R. C.

A) It is a genuine pleasure to help someone like yourself to provide for the future. Under different market conditions, I would be inclined to suggest a plan including both growth stocks and speculative issues. In the latter group I would favor science-related equities which were speculative only in the sense that they were volatile and had not yet established a strong earnings base. Many issues of this sort, which I have mentioned here earlier, have been run up sharply and are now selling at three times their level of a year ago and at relatively high multiples.

When and if prices come down again, I suggest you look at E G & G Gulton and Conrac. At present, I advise growth stocks which represent effective merchandising in the consumer field and are relatively unaffected by rising costs. I suggest Avon Products; Bristol-Myers; Baxter Laboratories.

Q) "I'm considering giving a mutual fund to my small grandchild. However, I see in your column that you don't approve of funds. What suggestion would you make?" A. K.

A) If you will allow me to say so, you are entirely wrong as to my opinion on mutual funds. I don't disapprove of this type of investment, far from it. What I do object to is lumping them together as if all were alike in their objectives and performance records. Funds—like all stocks—vary materially with regard to both these elements, and should be purchased only if in all respects they appear to meet your requirements. I advise you to consult a dealer as to the best fund for future growth.

Aircraft Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Export-Import Bank is loaning Britain $500 million to purchase U.S. military aircraft.

Bank officials said Thursday the loan agreement, signed last month, is a continuation of a program under way. But they declined to say the amount previously approved under the program.

Officials said the loan would be used to purchase F111 aircraft, formerly the TFX, F4 Phantom aircraft from the McDonnell Aircraft Co. and C130 transports from Lockheed Aircraft.

GOOD PICKINS'

(Contined From Page One)

only about one million bushels, the labor shortage is also considered to be critical and fruit growers are presently seeking 191 pickers in addition to workers on hand or crews coming in.

It has been estimated that Ulster may be facing a shortage of 800 to 1,000 pickers and herein rests the danger.

Seek Local Help

Ashton W. Hart, executive secretary of the Mid-Hudson Growers Co-Op, an organization founded in 1945 for the purpose of acquiring emergency farm help, said that "I want to stress the point that we always exhaust the available local labor first before we go for off-shore help."

"Off-shore help" refers to those workers who are natives of the islands south of Florida, excluding Puerto Rico, wherein the inhabitants are citizens of the United States.

Hart said that the actual picking of apples will take place within a six-week period and that it is difficult to "get people to travel great distances to work for six weeks."

It was pointed out, "Years ago, before the industrialization of the area, the economy was agriculturally based" and "there was more public concern", the public "was farm oriented."

Today, however, the area is "college and industrially oriented," consequently, the lack of public concern is much in evidence.

One long-time resident explained that at one time there was an "Apple Queen" who rode through the streets of Kingston as part of a huge float parade. Students and night-shift workers helped with the harvest and bringing in the crop was considered to be a celebration period.

All of this has changed now.

As part of the drive to get as many local workers as possible, Hart said, "We file an order with the State Employment Service and we make an estimate as to how many workers we will need to harvest the crops. When the State gets the order they contact recruiters and every state north and south, but east of the Mississippi (River), is contacted."

It was pointed out that there are "supply and demand states." This refers to states that may have an over-abundance of unemployed workers who fit into the farm worker category — the "supply states" — and those other states which suffer from the lack of such workers.

"We send representatives to an area that may have a large number of (potential farm workers) and we interview them along with the state employment people," Hart said, claiming that this was "normal procedure."

Another way of contacting workers is through the "crew leader" system wherein the sometimes quite powerful crew leader puts out the call to workers whom he knows, collects them, and brings them up to the crop area.

The Crew Leader

The crew leader has to be fingerprinted and licensed and one authority estimated that a good crew leader, working on a large crop with a good number of workers, can earn up to $10,000 in a two-month period.

Crew leaders earn money on the number of bushels brought in and in the number of hours they can get the people under them to work.

"Some leaders will also be involved in the picking," said Hart, adding that "they will work several crews sometimes, and, according to their degree of responsibility, will be in charge of the worker's welfare" which may include making sure the workers save some money from their labors and that they have a needed recreation period after the day's work is done.

As for the workers themselves, they can earn on the average of 25 cents per box of picked apples.

"A good picker can fill 100 boxes a day," Hart said, although "85 to 90 is the average."

It was added that a usual guarantee is $1.50 per working hour.

The good worker, then, can make about $150 a week, or around $900 for the six-week period.

Getting More Workers

"By mid-August we have depleted the State source (of farm help.)" Hart claimed, and the co-ops and independent growers sit down with the State again to review the situation.

"We come down to a net shortage figure" at this time.

It was stressed that "the dollar investment on those limbs is tremendous" and if, at the time growers get together with State officials, the labor shortage is an issue, and, in turn, the State cannot get any more workers for the upcoming harvest, "The State certifies, through its employment service, that the area in question is short X number of workers."

Hart went on to say that "if the Federal government agrees that a shortage exists, then they certify the fact and this opens the way for (the acquiring of out-of-state) farm workers."

Pointed out was the thought, "Farm workers are used only when all domestic sources are exhausted."

Hart suggested that the reasons for decided lack of local help is that "there is no large unemployment rate" in the county, that "many workers work in day shifts" and "the schools are opening" thereby having students sticking to the books and acclimating themselves to the school curriculum.

When the national supply of laborers is exhausted, then the off-shore people are contacted, and the fact of a national lack of such workers has to, also, be certified by the Federal government.

Hart, once again, stressed that the shortage of workers this year "is more serious than in other years."

Problems of the Grower

"There are many variables to consider when a grower attempts to determine how much his profit will be," Hart said.

Some of the problems, it was reported, was the amount of rain, bee pollination, the number of bugs in the area, the amount of pesticides to be used, the shifting cost of the use of refrigerated railroad box cars.

"Growers work on a five-year average when determining costs and profits," the co-op executive secretary said, adding, "As a rule of thumb, the grower may get 500 bushels per acre, although this may be a little on the high side, but if he has 100 acres planted, he can draw his average."

As for what the grower does after the apples are picked in September, and possibly through October and into November: "There is an orchard cleanup which includes the picking up of boxes and ladders. There is the spreading of rodent poison" also.

"Wire is erected around the trees and some growers begin to prune their trees in the fall and winter months."

It was pointed out that "some people are only growers, but others have a selling operation and some have their own storage bins."

The number of growers has been steadily decreasing over the years because of a number of factors including, labor, housing, transportation, and storage costs along with the fact, according to Hart, that the "grower is at the mercy of the market."

Hart mentioned that "labor co-ops are a necessary part of labor recruitment" and "many independent growers just don't have the contacts that the co-ops have."

Outside of the Mid-Hudson Apple Growers Co-Op, the other labor recruitment service in the county is the Mid-Hudson Fruit Growers Co-Op. Dutchess County has the Dutchess Harvester's Co-Op.

All of these organizations are currently wrestling with the labor shortage in order to bring in the profits upon which a good part of the valley thrives.

Traffic Stopper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The horn that blows at midnight in Los Angeles stops traffic.

The horn—a tenor trombone—blasts away at the coner of Riverside Drive and Los Feliz Boulevard, where Jeff Tate, 19, chooses to do his after-dark practicing.

Jeff, who lives in a small apartment, said "this is really better than practicing in a room because I know some of the sound gets lost outside."

It isn't lost on motorists.

"My husband and I were driving home from a cocktail party the other night," one woman recalled, "and all of a sudden we heard the music. When we first looked over and saw the young fellow playing a trombone, we thought we must be seeing things."

Jeff, a music major at the University of Redlands, explained the wide-open spaces are the only place he has to practice, next to Griffith Park.

Big Test Still to Come For the Conglomerates

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In just one day this week plans were disclosed for at least four corporate mergers or purchases involving stock valued at more than $560 million.

All eight companies had successful histories and are now well known and prosperous. But like hundreds of other companies this year and 2,400 last year they decided to merge their ambitions.

May Be Accelerating

The result is a basic change in the structure of American industry. And, it appears, the change may be accelerating, bringing problems to accountants, stockholders, antitrust lawyers, courts and competitors.

Single-product companies are being hungrily acquired by larger firms. But, rather than being devoured, they often are left intact and run as divisions of gigantic, multi-industry corporations.

To consumers of the company's products there may be little evidence that the company no longer is independent. But to those who follow corporate affairs it means another conglomerate merger.

Through this device scores of small, medium-size and even large companies are joined under one corporate roof. Perfumes, foods, metals, space contracting all might contribute to one annual report.

The number of products easily can run into the thousands. And the number of questions provoked by this trend probably equals the product count. Why, for example, do smaller companies seemingly have a death wish?

The broadest explanation is to say that, in this insecure age, corporations and people alike seek to assure their future through planning. Companies are relying less and less on chance. They are not gamblers.

A one-product company, for example, always knows that consumer choice might change, that new products might knock it out of business, that weather, wars, lawsuits and a dozen other factors might threaten it at any time.

In a conglomeration with other companies these threats are lessened. When the product of one division is slack because of seasonal factors the product of another might boom. One product protects the other.

Security One Reason

But security is only one reason.

Some companies have welcomed overtures from a conglomerate because they feel their own growth can be speeded by being part of a larger organization with its greater capital, management know-how, nationwide facilities. The benefits of bigness, in other words, accrue to the small firm.

More often the advantages belong to the large company, not the least of which is the tax write-off obtainable through the purchase of a company that has lost money in recent years.

Conglomerates also have developed in the past few years when already large corporations find themselves frustrated by antitrust laws from expanding within their own industries. This is a growing problem.

Large corporations today, for example, find it difficult to expand "vertically"—buying out a supplier or customer—or "horizontally"—buying out a competitor— without a protest from Washington.

So far the conglomerate structure has served these various desires of large and small companies. Many of them are highly profitable. The stock in some of them is eagerly purchased, even by conservative investors.

The big test is yet to come, however, for up to now conglomerates have not been forced to show their skills during a recession. Then, some critics say, two and two may only equal four—maybe not even that.

Saugerties Food Cards Date Set

The Saugerties Neighborhood Service Center said today food surplus recipients are requested to bring their cards to the center prior to Aug. 23 for the Aug. 25 distribution.

The center said the presentation of cards would be necessary for recipients to pick up their food.

The center is located at 81 Partition Street and is open from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m.

Season Closes With Dinner

The Dutch Reformed Church in Highwoods will celebrate the close of their summer season again with the Annual Fair and Roast Beef Dinner, slated to be conducted Labor Day.

The dinner will begin at noon sharp. Following dinner there will be entertainment.

This year's entertainment will consist of the K-Ray Trio, a group that specializes in Western music and today's popular sound.

In addition there will be many booths, displays and homemade articles.

The vacationing prince toured Marineland with his children, Caroline, 10, Albert, 9, and Stephenie, 2½. Their mother, Princess Grace, was elsewhere in Los Angeles.

Aircraft Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Export-Import Bank is loaning Britain $500 million to purchase U.S. military aircraft.

Bank officials said Thursday the loan agreement, signed last month, is a continuation of a program under way. But they declined to say the amount previously approved under the program.

Officials said the loan would be used to purchase F111 aircraft, formerly the TFX, F4 Phantom aircraft from the McDonnell Aircraft Co. and C130 transports from Lockheed Aircraft.

GOOD PICKINS'

(Contined From Page One)

only about one million bushels, the labor shortage is also considered to be critical and fruit growers are presently seeking 191 pickers in addition to workers on hand or crews coming in.

It has been estimated that Ulster may be facing a shortage of 800 to 1,000 pickers and herein rests the danger.

Seek Local Help

Ashton W. Hart, executive secretary of the Mid-Hudson Growers Co-Op, an organization founded in 1945 for the purpose of acquiring emergency farm help, said that "I want to stress the point that we always exhaust the available local labor first before we go for off-shore help."

"Off-shore help" refers to those workers who are natives of the islands south of Florida, excluding Puerto Rico, wherein the inhabitants are citizens of the United States.

Hart said that the actual picking of apples will take place within a six-week period and that it is difficult to "get people to travel great distances to work for six weeks."

It was pointed out, "Years ago, before the industrialization of the area, the economy was agriculturally based" and "there was more public concern", the public "was farm oriented."

Today, however, the area is "college and industrially oriented," consequently, the lack of public concern is much in evidence.

One long-time resident explained that at one time there was an "Apple Queen" who rode through the streets of Kingston as part of a huge float parade. Students and night-shift workers helped with the harvest and bringing in the crop was considered to be a celebration period.

All of this has changed now.

As part of the drive to get as many local workers as possible, Hart said, "We file an order with the State Employment Service and we make an estimate as to how many workers we will need to harvest the crops. When the State gets the order they contact recruiters and every state north and south, but east of the Mississippi (River), is contacted."

It was pointed out that there are "supply and demand states." This refers to states that may have an over-abundance of unemployed workers who fit into the farm worker category — the "supply states" — and those other states which suffer from the lack of such workers.

"We send representatives to an area that may have a large number of (potential farm workers) and we interview them along with the state employment people," Hart said, claiming that this was "normal procedure."

Another way of contacting workers is through the "crew leader" system wherein the sometimes quite powerful crew leader puts out the call to workers whom he knows, collects them, and brings them up to the crop area.

The Crew Leader

The crew leader has to be fingerprinted and licensed and one authority estimated that a good crew leader, working on a large crop with a good number of workers, can earn up to $10,000 in a two-month period.

Crew leaders earn money on the number of bushels brought in and in the number of hours they can get the people under them to work.

"Some leaders will also be involved in the picking," said Hart, adding that "they will work several crews sometimes; and, according to their degree of responsibility, will be in charge of the worker's welfare" which may include making sure the workers save some money from their labors and that they have a needed recreation period after the day's work is done.

As for the workers themselves, they can earn on the average of 25 cents per box of picked apples.

"A good picker can fill 100 boxes a day," Hart said, although "85 to 90 is the average."

It was added that a usual guarantee is $1.50 per working hour.

The good worker, then, can make about $150 a week, or around $900 for the six-week period.

Getting More Workers

"By mid-August we have depleted the State source (of farm help.)" Hart claimed, and the co-ops and independent growers sit down with the State again to review the situation.

"We come down to a net shortage figure" at this time.

It was stressed that "the dollar investment on those limbs is tremendous" and if, at the time growers get together with State officials, the labor shortage is an issue, and, in turn, the State cannot get any more workers for the upcoming harvest, "The State certifies, through its employment service, that the area in question is short X number of workers."

Hart went on to say that "if the Federal government agrees that a shortage exists, then they certify the fact and this opens the way for (the acquiring of out-of-state) farm workers."

Pointed out was the thought, "Farm workers are used only when all domestic sources are exhausted."

Hart suggested that the reasons for decided lack of local help is that "there is no large unemployment rate" in the county, that "many workers work in day shifts" and "the schools are opening" thereby having students sticking to the books and acclimating themselves to the school curriculum.

When the national supply of laborers is exhausted, then the off-shore people are contacted, and the fact of a national lack of such workers has to, also, be certified by the Federal government.

Hart, once again, stressed that the shortage of workers this year "is more serious than in other years."

Problems of the Grower

"There are many variables to consider when a grower attempts to determine how much his profit will be," Hart said.

Some of the problems, it was reported, was the amount of rain, bee pollination, the number of bugs in the area, the amount of pesticides to be used, the shifting cost of the use of refrigerated railroad box cars.

"Growers work on a five-year average when determining costs and profits," the co-op executive secretary said, adding, "As a rule of thumb, the grower may get 500 bushels per acre, although this may be a little on the high side, but if he has 100 acres planted, he can draw his average."

As for what the grower does after the apples are picked in September, and possibly through October and into November: "There is an orchard cleanup which includes the picking up of boxes and ladders. There is the spreading of rodent poison" also.

"Wire is erected around the trees and some growers begin to prune their trees in the fall and winter months."

It was pointed out that "some people are only growers, but others have a selling operation and some have their own storage bins."

The number of growers has been steadily decreasing over the years because of a number of factors including, labor, housing, transportation, and storage costs along with the fact, according to Hart, that the "grower is at the mercy of the market."

Hart mentioned that "labor co-ops are a necessary part of labor recruitment" and "many independent growers just don't have the contacts that the co-ops have."

Outside of the Mid-Hudson Apple Growers Co-Op, the other labor recruitment service in the county is the Mid-Hudson Fruit Growers Co-Op. Dutchess County has the Dutchess Harvester's Co-Op.

All of these organizations are currently wrestling with the labor shortage in order to bring in the profits upon which a good part of the valley thrives.

Traffic Stopper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The horn that blows at midnight in Los Angeles stops traffic.

The horn—a tenor trombone—blasts away at the coner of Riverside Drive and Los Feliz Boulevard, where Jeff Tate, 19, chooses to do his after-dark practicing.

Jeff, who lives in a small apartment, said "this is really better than practicing in a room because I know some of the sound gets lost outside."

It isn't lost on motorists.

"My husband and I were driving home from a cocktail party the other night," one woman recalled, "and all of a sudden we heard the music. When we first looked over and saw the young fellow playing a trombone, we thought we must be seeing things."

Jeff, a music major at the University of Redlands, explained the wide-open spaces are the only place he has to practice, next to Griffith Park.

Big Test Still to Come For the Conglomerates

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In just one day this week plans were disclosed for at least four corporate mergers or purchases involving stock valued at more than $560 million.

All eight companies had successful histories and are now well known and prosperous. But like hundreds of other companies this year and 2,400 last year they decided to merge their ambitions.

May Be Accelerating

The result is a basic change in the structure of American industry. And, it appears, the change may be accelerating, bringing problems to accountants, stockholders, antitrust lawyers, courts and competitors.

Single-product companies are being hungrily acquired by larger firms. But, rather than being devoured, they often are left intact and run as divisions of gigantic, multi-industry corporations.

To consumers of the company's products there may be little evidence that the company no longer is independent. But to those who follow corporate affairs it means another conglomerate merger.

Through this device scores of small, medium-size and even large companies are joined under one corporate roof. Perfumes, foods, metals, space contracting all might contribute to one annual report.

The number of products easily can run into the thousands. And the number of questions provoked by this trend probably equals the product count. Why, for example, do smaller companies seemingly have a death wish?

The broadest explanation is to say that, in this insecure age, corporations and people alike seek to assure their future through planning. Companies are relying less and less on chance. They are not gamblers.

A one-product company, for example, always knows that consumer choice might change, that new products might knock it out of business, that weather, wars, lawsuits and a dozen other factors might threaten it at any time.

In a conglomeration with other companies these threats are lessened. When the product of one division is slack because of seasonal factors the product of another might boom. One product protects the other.

Security One Reason

But security is only one reason.

Some companies have welcomed overtures from a conglomerate because they feel their own growth can be speeded by being part of a larger organization with its greater capital, management know-how, nationwide facilities. The benefits of bigness, in other words, accrue to the small firm.

More often the advantages belong to the large company, not the least of which is the tax write-off obtainable through the purchase of a company that has lost money in recent years.

Conglomerates also have developed in the past few years when already large corporations find themselves frustrated by antitrust laws from expanding within their own industries. This is a growing problem.

Large corporations today, for example, find it difficult to expand "vertically"—buying out a supplier or customer—or "horizontally"—buying out a competitor— without a protest from Washington.

So far the conglomerate structure has served these various desires of large and small companies. Many of them are highly profitable. The stock in some of them is eagerly purchased, even by conservative investors.

The big test is yet to come, however, for up to now conglomerates have not been forced to show their skills during a recession. Then, some critics say, two and two may only equal four—maybe not even that.

Season Closes With Dinner

The Dutch Reformed Church in Highwoods will celebrate the close of their summer season again with the Annual Fair and Roast Beef Dinner, slated to be conducted Labor Day.

The dinner will begin at noon sharp. Following dinner there will be entertainment.

This year's entertainment will consist of the K-Ray Trio, a group that specializes in Western music and today's popular sound.

In addition there will be many booths, displays and homemade articles.

Women Exploring Inner Space — Oceans

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Miami Herald Staff Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Women have left the driving to their men in America's outer space probes, but they needn't take a back seat in the exciting and equally important exploration of "inner" space—our oceans.

Opportunities are opening up for women in the fields of oceanography and marine biology faster than they can fill them.

Women constitute less than five per cent of the graduate students specializing in the marine sciences at American universities.

"We go after top-qualified oceanographers and other women in the environmental sciences with butterfly nets, we're so eager to get them," said Dr. Joanne Simpson, whose 25-year career as a physicist has included numerous key meteorological and oceanographic projects.

Dr. Thomas S. Austin, director of the National Oceanographic Data Center in Washington, D.C., agreed.

"There is phase of oceanography that women need be excluded from. It's an exciting new career potential filed with challenges for women," he observed. "The Russians, the Scandinavians, many of the European countries have contributed outstanding women to oceanography."

One reason why women haven't stampeded into underwater rsearch is th fact that it's tough and demanding.

To reach the top, a girl has to acquire a broad scientific education and a Ph.D. for practically every requisite.

"But there's no reason women can't do as well as a man at subjects like math and zoology, Dr. Simpson pointed out. "The trouble is, a lot of women are afraid to try."

Also, he handful of American women who have dedicated their lives to the marine sciences are usually unencumbered with husbands and families.

Dr. Simpson is an exception. She's married to a fellow scientist, Dr. Robert H. Simpson, newly-appointed chief of Miami's National Hurricane Center, and mothers a brood of five, ranging between daughters in graduate school and grade school.

Miami is a prime location for women interested in careers in the marine sciences.

Girls on their way up—some with master's degrees, others with only bachelor's degrees—populate many of the labs on Virginia Key. Five lab-oriented people are needed on shore for every one that goes to sea.

A half-dozen women work in oceanography or oceanology at Virginia Key's Tropical Atlantic Biological Laboratory (TABL), from baby-sitting with a sick seahorse to computer data processing.

The major project at TABL, tracking and studying tuna and other free-swimming marine life with the hope of harvesting and conserving stocks to help feed the world's hungry populations, excites young marine biologist Barbara Palko.

She spends part of her time diving for fish eggs and larvae with net and snorkel—usually the only woman signed aboard TABL's research ship, Undaunted, a converted Navy tugboat.

"You have to pull your weight," said Barbara. "You have to make the men on board forget you're a woman by working just as hard as they do. It's no place for a girl in tight stretch pants who wants to loll on the deck and sunbathe."

When she's not diving for fish larvae, Barbara keeps busy gathering and recording information on the temperature, depth and salinity of the ocean around her.

For Ohio-born Barbara, who "always got sick fishing on Lake Michigan," there's the mal de mer to contend with when the Undaunted starts to pitch and roll in the rough waters off the Bahamas.

Then, too, there's the pervasive odor of all those fish. When she's working on shore at the lab, she has such unglamorous tasks as cleaning the fish tank or grinding up fish—in a hand-operated grinder—for bait.

Her reward is her special project, the boxfish she has nurtured in her lab from fish eggs and larvae collected during her last voyage.

"It's exhilarating, too, to work in an all-male environment," noted Barbara. "What girl could complain about that?"

ANTIQUE SALE—One of the features of Sunday's picnic sponsored by the Ulster County Democratic Women's Club will be an antique sale. China, pressed glass, decanters, ironstone, brass, silver, oil paintings and prints, many of them new items, will be sold for the benefit of the club. Looking at one of the pieces are Mrs. Donald Quick, at left, and Mrs. Florence Shea Ludlow. The picnic is scheduled for 1 p. m. at upper Hasbrouck Park, Delaware Avenue, Kingston. Nectarines, Cheese Make Fine Team

Make the most of the lovely nectarines in the market. Serve them "as is" with a cheese ring. This combination makes a delightful snack to offer with before-dinner drinks or as an evening refresher.

CHEESE RING WITH NECTARINES

8 ounces mild cheddar cheese, finely grated
3 ounces cream cheese, softened
½ cup (about 2½ ounces) crumbled blue cheese
2 tablespoons dry sherry
2 teamspoons finely grated onion, pulp and juice
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
½ cup (about) diced roasted almonds
3 fresh nectarines

In a medium mixing bowl, with a wooden spoon, thoroughly work together until blended the cheddar cheese, cream cheese, blue cheese, sherry, onion and garlic powder. Form into a 12-inch long roll. (If made ahead, cover tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate.)

Shortly before serving, coat outside of cheese roll with almonds, pressing nuts with fingers if necessary. Shape into a ring, sealing ends togther. Place on serving dish; place 1 nectarine in center of ring. Slice remaining nectarines; arrange around cheese ring. Makes 2 dozen appetizer servings.

Old-time cooks used to add chopped beef marrow to chopped beef for hamburgers. Good—especially when served with golden-brown onion rings!

When you are baking a custard pie, pour all but about 1 cup of the custard mixture into the shell. Put the pie in the oven; now add the last cup of filling. Saves spills!

Coco Chanel Will Observe Birthday; Tops in Fashions

PARIS (AP) — Coco Chanel, the grande mademoiselle of Paris fashions, is having a birthday Saturday. Whether she is about to become 84, 85 or 86 is shrouded in feminine mystery—she likes to think of herself "up in the 70s."

Whatever her age, her energy and dynamism still mark the fabulous world of high fashion.

She has twice conquered the fashion world and still holds her own. A Chanel suit is a status symbol. Women have been known to keep them for 30 years and update them by maybe shortening the skirt, though Chanel has never been a champion of the miniskirt—she finds it grotesque.

Of her suits her enemies like to say: "It's still the same old thing." But she never has departed from the style she herself created—the luxury of ease and comfort, which spelled her initial approach to fashion.

She changes her colors and fabrics, introduces new detailing, sponsors wonderful tweeds, and launches new jewelry and hairdos. Basically her technique is her own.

Her influence was so great on the fashion world that when in 1954 she returned to the scene, other designers had undergone subconscious influence and designed clothes "a la Chanel." When her first collection appeared it was a nostalgic remembrance of things past, for she had picked up where she had left off 16 years before. It took her a couple of seasons to get back into stride, but almost from the first, clients began to order wardrobes.

Today there's nothing nostalgic about her designing. Creating fashion in her own way is her life. She cannot remain idle. Like an actor, she cannot leave the stage and has never given a farewell performance. "C'est plus fort qu'elle — she can't hlp it" say her workers who adore "Mademoiselle" regardless of the way she is inclined to scotch an entire group of dresses if she finds an imperfection. She has been known to throw out as many as 25 models at the last moment because they did not live up to her expectations.

At times, she says: "This is the last collection I'll design." It only means she's tired, and on she goes.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

Now is the time to save a few dollars.

During the summer, our bathing suits are left hither and thither.

DON'T leave chlorine or salt water in the bathing suit. They not only deteriorate the fabric but fade the color.

Any time you come back from swimming in salt water, chlorinated water, or any type of swimming pool (whether private or community), wash your bathing suit . . . not in just plain water, but with a good detergent . . . and rinse it well. This prevents fading and rotting.

NEVER sit, lie, or stretch out on concrete (that's cement) in any type of elasticized bathing suit. Always put a bath towel down FIRST. This prevents cutting of the fibers in the suit.

Save any way you can, especially when bathing suits are so expensive nowadays.

Dear Heloise:

When I make a quantity of iced tea for a picnic, I put it in my insulated jug. I make our tea the strength we like and I do not like it further diluted with ice cubes.

So . . . instead of putting the ice cubes loose in the tea, I put them inside a plastic bag and close it securely with a rubber band. Then I drop the bag and all inside the cooler and let it float in the tea.

This not only keeps the tea cold without diluting, but we can use the clean ice cubes when we need them.

This would also be great for other drinks such as lemonade or punch.

Dear Heloise:

When I misspell a word or a sentence needs changing, I no longer use an eraser.

I put a small piece of cellophane tape tightly over the word to be changed and yank it off swiftly. The writing and a little of the paper comes off but there is no smudge caused by an erasure.

Of course, only one layer can be removed, but I've found this to be a great help in making corrections.

Here is a suggestion that might prove helpful when traveling. Many motels provide coffee now. But who wants to eat cold rolls or muffins?

So I take along my electric heating pad.

The first thing in the morning I set it on high, put the rolls (wrapped in foil or wax paper) on the pad and fold it over once. If necessary a book can be put on top to keep it folded.

In a few minutes the rolls are warm.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

Do any of your readers have a solution for a kitchen that is overrun like ants with helping relatives or guests when the hostess is preparing a meal?

My relatives invade my kitchen to visit and pester me with suggestions, questions and offers of help. In the meantime, they are standing in front of the cabinet, sink, refrigerator . . . just any place I turn.

I try to politely send them to the living room, but they ignore my request until I am ready to scream . . . and usually do!

It is no better after a meal. They race to the kitchen, scrape dishes (always into the wrong container), begin to put away leftovers (again into the wrong containers), dry dishes and put them where it takes me two days to find them.

What can I do to convince them I'D RATHER DO IT MYSELF??

Honey, maybe we shouldn't have labeled this one "Letter of Laughter" because it's no laughing matter!

Anyone got an answer? If so, do write us in care of this paper. Letters do not have to be signed to appear.

No more troubles now that I have learned to use this method.

Women Exploring Inner Space — Oceans

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Miami Herald Staff Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Women have left the driving to their men in America's outer space probes, but they needn't take a back seat in the exciting and equally important exploration of "inner" space—our oceans.

Opportunities are opening up for women in the fields of oceanography and marine biology faster than they can fill them.

Women constitute less than five per cent of the graduate students specializing in the marine sciences at American universities.

"We go after top-qualified oceanographers and other women in the environmental sciences with butterfly nets, we're so eager to get them," said Dr. Joanne Simpson, whose 25-year career as a physicist has included numerous key meteorological and oceanographic projects.

Dr. Thomas S. Austin, director of the National Oceanographic Data Center in Washington, D.C., agreed.

"There is phase of oceanography that women need be excluded from. It's an exciting new career potential filed with challenges for women," he observed. "The Russians, the Scandinavians, many of the European countries have contributed outstanding women to oceanography."

One reason why women haven't stampeded into underwater rsearch is th fact that it's tough and demanding.

To reach the top, a girl has to acquire a broad scientific education and a Ph.D. for practically every requisite.

"But there's no reason women can't do as well as a man at subjects like math and zoology, Dr. Simpson pointed out. "The trouble is, a lot of women are afraid to try."

Also, he handful of American women who have dedicated their lives to the marine sciences are usually unencumbered with husbands and families.

Dr. Simpson is an exception. She's married to a fellow scientist, Dr. Robert H. Simpson, newly-appointed chief of Miami's National Hurricane Center, and mothers a brood of five, ranging between daughters in graduate school and grade school.

Miami is a prime location for women interested in careers in the marine sciences.

Girls on their way up—some with master's degrees, others with only bachelor's degrees—populate many of the labs on Virginia Key. Five lab-oriented people are needed on shore for every one that goes to sea.

A half-dozen women work in oceanography or oceanology at Virginia Key's Tropical Atlantic Biological Laboratory (TABL), from baby-sitting with a sick seahorse to computer data processing.

Nectarines, Cheese Make Fine Team

Make the most of the lovely nectarines in the market. Serve them "as is" with a cheese ring. This combination makes a delightful snack to offer with before-dinner drinks or as an evening refresher.

CHEESE RING WITH NECTARINES

8 ounces mild cheddar cheese, finely grated
3 ounces cream cheese, softened
½ cup (about 2½ ounces) crumbled blue cheese
2 tablespoons dry sherry
2 teamspoons finely grated onion, pulp and juice
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
½ cup (about) diced roasted almonds
3 fresh nectarines

In a medium mixing bowl, with a wooden spoon, thoroughly work together until blended the cheddar cheese, cream cheese, blue cheese, sherry, onion and garlic powder. Form into a 12-inch long roll. (If made ahead, cover tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate.)

Shortly before serving, coat outside of cheese roll with almonds, pressing nuts with fingers if necessary. Shape into a ring, sealing ends togther. Place on serving dish; place 1 nectarine in center of ring. Slice remaining nectarines; arrange around cheese ring. Makes 2 dozen appetizer servings.

Old-time cooks used to add chopped beef marrow to chopped beef for hamburgers. Good—especially when served with golden-brown onion rings!

When you are baking a custard pie, pour all but about 1 cup of the custard mixture into the shell. Put the pie in the oven; now add the last cup of filling. Saves spills!

WHETHER YOUR HAIR IS SHORT OR LONG you can have the feminine, gracious style of the romantic ante-bellum South by simply adding a fall. The fall (left) is styled in a cluster of large ringlet curls that cascade down the back below the shoulders. With a wiglet (right) styled in soft half curls, attached to the crown of the head and draped in a wavelike pattern half way down the back of the head, part of your own French knot is visible. The style is also ideal for dressy occasions and only takes minutes to put on.

Chavez Show Held Over

The exhibition of sculpture and paintings by Edward Chavez at The Polari Gallery in Woodstock is being held over until Aug. 26.

A new work has been added to this show—a delightfully metal fabricated fountain.

The exhibition will be followed by an opening on Sunday, Aug. 27th of the works by Cornelia Hartmann and Jacques Kupfermann, which will run through Sept. 19.

Hand Crafted Glass Exhibit, Aug. 27 At Cragsmoor

Roycraft Studios, Cragsmoor, Route 52, near Ellenville, will open the second in a series of one-man shows, Sunday, Aug. 27 from 2 to 6 p. m. with an exhibit of hand crafted glass by Maurice Heaton, a Long Island resident.

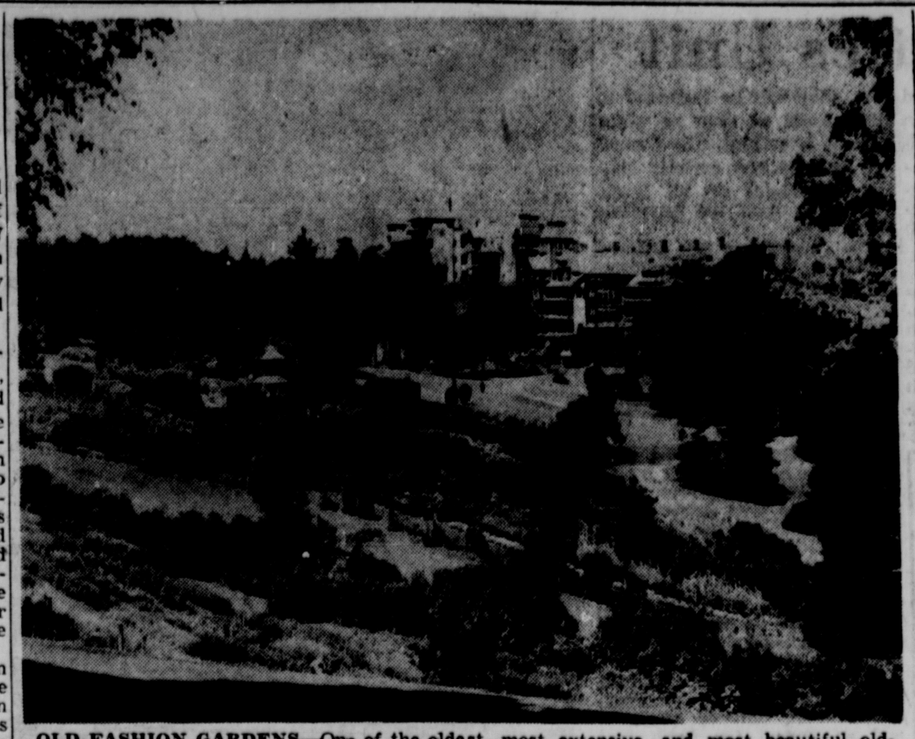

Mr. Heaton, a third generation of stained glass craftsmen, was born in Switzerland and came to America in 1914 where he worked with his father, Clement Heaton, making church windows. In 1941 he turned to the modern field of glass murals, lighting fixtures and glass accessories. In 1947 he invented a process of fusing crushed crystals of enamel to the undersurface of the glass, and he is recognized as the sole creator of a glass unique in texture and color.

He adapted the technique in 1961 to lamination, whereby the colored enamel is fused between two to six pieces of glass. This proved especially successful in large plaques and interlapped constructions, creating open spaces.

Maurice Heaton's work is in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Corning Glass Museum, Museum of Contemporary Crafts and others. It has been exhibited in most museums in the United States and in the countries of South America, Europe, India and Canada. An illustration of his glass appears in the latest Encyclopedia Britannica.

Mr. Heaton is a past vice president of the Architectural League of New York, past president and honorary life member of the Rockland Foundation and was a charter member and president of the Society of Designer Craftsmen, the first society of contemporary crafts in America.

The show will continue through Monday, Sept. 4.

They include a show garden of about one hundred beds planted with annuals and perennials: a rose garden, a rock-wall garden, an herb garden, pools and an extensive collection of flowering shrubs and specimen trees.

The Garden Holiday five-day program of lectures, greenhouse tours and demonstrations will include two illustrated lectures by Anne Wertsner Wood, author, traveller, lecturer and horticulturist. Buenos Aires Says 'No' to Opera; Washington Premier

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The opera "Bomarzo," which had a highly acclaimed premiere May 19 in Washington, was scheduled for a South American premiere in Buenos Aires Aug. 8, but the mayor of Buenos Aires banned it in July.

The reason, presumably, was press reports which called "Bomarzo" a "topless opera" because of two scenes in which dancers and one singer wore body stockings to give an impression of nudity. The mayor, Col. Eugenio Schettini, did not specify the reason.

Julius Rudel, who conducted "Bomarzo" in Washington, arrived to conduct in Buenos Aires the morning after the banning order had been signed. When he arrived, he knew nothing of the prohibition.

He says, "I was met at the airport by the composer, Alberto Ginastera, and TV cameramen. At first I though it was a joke. Then my mouth just fell open and that is the moment the photographers were waiting for."

Rudel, who is artistic director of the New York City Opera, said, "There apparently is a 'going against immortality' feeling in the government just now." "I don't think the mayor ever saw the score or libretto."

It was the first time such a thing had happened in the history of the Teatro Colon, the municipal opera house where the premiere was to take place.

Rudel said there were efforts to get the banning order rescinded. He stayed in Buenos Aires nine days in that hope, but there was no rescinding, "a terrible disappointment."

"With this censorship," continued Rudel, "there was remarkable freedom of the press. There was a hue and cry from all the papers and magazines. The National Academy of Arts and Letters was quoted a saying music can not be immoral.

"And there were tons of interviews, features and cartoons. One showed the mayor saying, 'Well, I don't say that you people can't see "Bomarzo." All you have to do is go to Washington.'"

One showed the Teatro Colon with 'Donald Duck' advertised and one man saying, 'That is the only thing that passed the censor.'

Grandparents—and the Young Child

Despite recent increases in numbers of children born in familes, the size of the American family is still small. Ordinarily, we think of family as mother, father, and the children, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. This places tremendous responsibility upon the parents to be all and do all that is necessary for the growth and development of children. While it is of first importance that little children be able to think of mother and father as their strongest support, to be able to widen the family group to include "My Grandmother" or "My Grandfather" builds a stronger picture of "My Family" in the eyes of the child. It also adds to the number of persons the child feels he can trust. Thus it builds confidence and security in the child because of more family members that he feels belong to him.

It comes as somewhat of a comfort to grandparents to hear that children need love and that they cannot have too much of the right kind of love. This has always been and still is one of the important functions of grandparents — simply to enjoy their grandchildren, to listen to them, and to love them as they are. Grandparents and grandchildren often have a greater amount of leisure time which can be shared.

Much has been said about the tiresome reminiscences and comparisons that older people often indulge in that many of today's grandparents hesitate to talk about the past. By so doing, they often deprive children of a very rich source of information and delight. "Please tell me about the olden days when you were young," is a frequent wish of children. Stories of grandmother's youth or of stories she may have heard can be a source of real pleasure to children. It can give genuine and personal meaning to the past that they are likely to gain in no other way.

The Bonus Years--Part 6

Aging Symptoms May Be Avoidable

Until recently, women and doctors agreed that the menopause is inevitable, along with hot flushes, sagging breasts, and brittle bones. Now, a few doctors are not so sure—and all women are hoping these doctors are right.

In the view of the medical men who maintain that menopause is avoidable, the climacteric is a deficiency disease as remediable as scurvy. The deficiency is of estrogen and progesterone, the essential female hormones produced by the ovaries.

Replace these hormones, say these doctors, and you can prevent the "disease" of menopause and eliminate its symptoms — the atrophy of reproductive structures, the aging of skin and hair, and the loss of tissue elasticity.

Some of these doctors believe the female hormones should not be given until menopause is under way, at which point they could relieve some discomforts.

Other doctors want to head off menopause completely. They would determine by means of regular smears what a woman's maturation or "femininity" index is. If these showed an estrogen deficiency, these doctors would start treatment even if the woman were in her twenties!

One doctor favors what is called cyclical therapy, which involves setting up an artificial menstrual cycle in women whose natural periods have already ceased. The length of the artificial cycle need not be 28 or 30 days but could well be longer. It would merely be necessary to take estrogen for a given number of days, add progesterone for the last 10 days of the cycle, and then stop the medication so the "menstrual" period could begin.

However, many doctors question whether the menses are psychologically necessary. And Dr. M. Edward Davis, professor emeritus of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Chicago argues that they are physically dangerous. Such induced bleeding could mask serious conditions such as cancer of the lining of the womb, of which an early symptom is bleeding.

Nevertheless, Dr. Davis believes strongly in estrogen replacement, not just during the climacteric but on a long-term basis "to help women retain their good health in their advancing years."

Other physicians are less enthusiastic about long-term estrogen replacement. They question whether estrogen really does what is claimed for it.

Reporting on a study of 200 postmenopausal women, Dr. Sherwin Kaufman of New York University Medical Center notes that while estrogen seemed to alleviate some menopausal symptoms, it was less effective with others.

Consistently relieved were three common symptoms: flushes, sweating, and certain vaginal changes. While estrogen-related symptoms were usually relieved by replacement therapy, Dr. Kaufman points out that many menopausal symptoms have nothing to do with hormonal changes. "Management of menopause," Dr. Kaufman insists, "is really management of middle age."

Dr. Robert Kistner of Harvard agrees. Estrogen, he says, will not make a woman younger, or eliminate her wrinkles, or give her a size 38 bust. There are many causes for depression besides an estrogen deficiency, particularly in middle age. A woman can be depressed because of the "empty nest" left by her grown children, or her husband's lessened or non-existent sexual desires, or a general feeling of superfluity.

Distinguished physicians also question whether the femininity index test is a reliable guide to estrogen levels. The patient's symptoms, they maintain, are more reliable. While some physicians claim that 85 percent of women in their later years are seriously deficient in estrogen, such doctors as Dr. Kistner believe that the figure is lower — from 50 to 75 percent.

In an article in Medical World News, the Harvard physician is quoted as saying, "When the insufficiency becomes apparent, it should be treated. This is a lot different from saying, 'Treat everyone.'"

There is even disagreement on the definition of a postmenopausal woman. Dr. Kistner says she is a woman whose menses have completely stopped for one year. Dr. Alvin Goldfarb of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia says the menses must have ended three years for a woman to be postmenopausal.

Neither the Food and Drug Administration nor the American Medical Association has taken a position on estrogen therapy. But it is evident that more and more doctors are now aware of the possibilities that exist for manipulating or at least softening the effects of menopause.

Although the medical profession is not yet certain whether estrogens should be supplied carefully or casually, on a wholesale or an individual basis, many doctors agree that at least some women can benefit from estrogen therapy some of the time.

Nevertheless, Dr. Davis believes strongly in estrogen replacement, not just during the climacteric but on a long-term basis "to help women retain their good health in their advancing years."

Other physicians are less enthusiastic about long-term estrogen replacement. They question whether estrogen really does what is claimed for it.

Reporting on a study of 200 postmenopausal women, Dr. Sherwin Kaufman of New York University Medical Center notes that while estrogen seemed to alleviate some menopausal symptoms, it was less effective with others.

Consistently relieved were three common symptoms: flushes, sweating, and certain vaginal changes. While estrogen-related symptoms were usually relieved by replacement therapy, Dr. Kaufman points out that many menopausal symptoms have nothing to do with hormonal changes. "Management of menopause," Dr. Kaufman insists, "is really management of middle age."

Dr. Robert Kistner of Harvard agrees. Estrogen, he says, will not make a woman younger, or eliminate her wrinkles, or give her a size 38 bust. There are many causes for depression besides an estrogen deficiency, particularly in middle age. A woman can be depressed because of the "empty nest" left by her grown children, or her husband's lessened or non-existent sexual desires, or a general feeling of superfluity.

Distinguished physicians also question whether the femininity index test is a reliable guide to estrogen levels. The patient's symptoms, they maintain, are more reliable. While some physicians claim that 85 percent of women in their later years are seriously deficient in estrogen, such doctors as Dr. Kistner believe that the figure is lower — from 50 to 75 percent.

In an article in Medical World News, the Harvard physician is quoted as saying, "When the insufficiency becomes apparent, it should be treated. This is a lot different from saying, 'Treat everyone.'"

There is even disagreement on the definition of a postmenopausal woman. Dr. Kistner says she is a woman whose menses have completely stopped for one year. Dr. Alvin Goldfarb of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia says the menses must have ended three years for a woman to be postmenopausal.

Neither the Food and Drug Administration nor the American Medical Association has taken a position on estrogen therapy. But it is evident that more and more doctors are now aware of the possibilities that exist for manipulating or at least softening the effects of menopause.

Although the medical profession is not yet certain whether estrogens should be supplied carefully or casually, on a wholesale or an individual basis, many doctors agree that at least some women can benefit from estrogen therapy some of the time.

Lindbloom Heads New Politics Unit

Eric Lindbloom, 27 Davis Avenue, Poughkeepsie, was elected chairman of the Mid-Hudson Council for New Politics at a recent meeting.

He succeeds Leonard Bard. Lindbloom, an IBM employe and former instructor of philosophy at the University of Michigan, last year was the independent peace candidate for congressman in the 28th district.

The Mid-Hudson Council for New Politics was organized early this year by a group of people "whose desire it was to control the decisions that affect their lives." The council's stated purpose is to "demand that those in political power—on the local, state and national levels—recognize the needs of all the people and understand the need for ending the war in Vietnam." The council is dedicated to working for the abolition of poverty and racial discrimination, and for improvements in housing and education throughout the community.

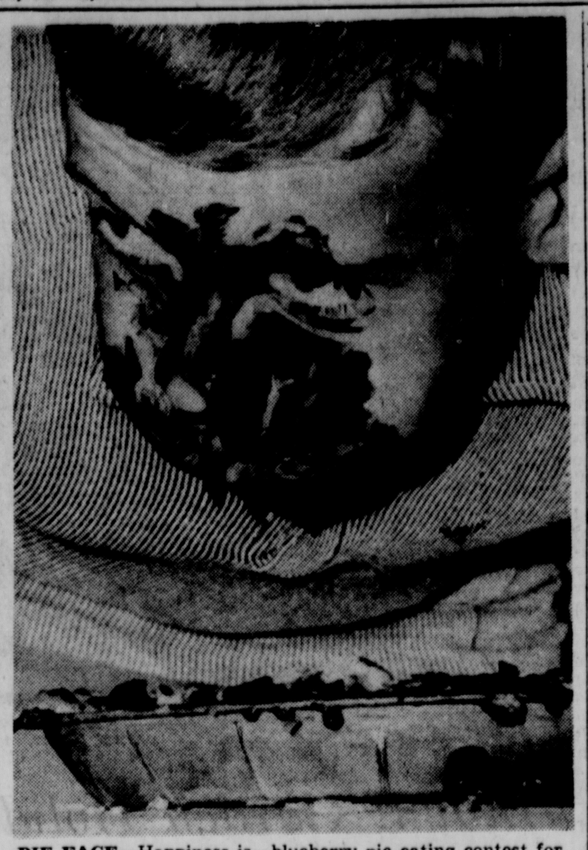

Plan Expansion

The Mid-Hudson Council includes approximately 200 members most of whom live in Dutchess County. Some members are residents of Ulster and Orange Counties. Although most of the present activities are based in the Poughkeepsie area, they will be expanded to other areas as soon as wider interest is evident. The council will endorse and actively support candidates on all levels who agree with the organization's aims.

The council has two officers elected by the general membership: the chairman, Lindbloom, and the publicity chairman, Miss Jo Ognibene, Newburgh. It operates primarily through committees whose chairmen are selected by the committees and who serve on the council steering committee with the two officers.

In addition to electing Mr. Lindbloom at its Aug. 9 meeting, the Council for New Politics voted to send delegates to the National Convention for New Politics in Chicago Aug. 31 to Sept. 5. A resolution was passed directing the delegates to support the formation of a "third party" to run a candidate for president in the 1968 national election.

In other business, the council heard reports on the progress of Vietnam summer projects and an appeal for funds for Sen. Wayne Morse's reelection campaign.

Handicapped Child Is Workshop Topic

Ten individual workshops, a general panel discussion and a feature length educational film have been scheduled for the Conference on the Emotional Problems of the Handicapped Child which will be held Sept. 8 and 9 at the State University College in New Paltz.

The complete program for the conference was made public today by Jerome M. Goodman and Mrs. Virginia B. Marx of St. Francis Hospital, who are co-chairmen of the event.

The conference will be sponsored jointly by St. Francis Hospital of Poughkeepsie, the Dutchess County Society for Mental Health Inc. and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick. The Mid-Hudson Parents Council for Handicapped Children will act as hosts.

The conference will be open to both lay and professional people interested in the emotional problems of all handicapped children. Registration will be held on Friday, Sept. 8, from 1:30 to 3 p. m. Guests are expected from Columbia, Greene, Schoharie, Orange, Ulster, Sullivan, Putnam and Dutchess Counties. They will be provided housing on campus. Anyone wishing to attend the session may obtain details from either Mr. Goodman or Mrs. Virginia Marx at St. Francis Hospital.

Bishops Urge Bombing Halt Of North Viet

Four Roman Catholic bishops have urged that the United States abandon its bombing of North Vietnam and name a time and a place for peace negotiations with all parties including the Viet Cong.

The appeal, which endorsed the National Negotiation Now!, campaign also called for support of internationally supervised free elections in South Vietnam, and reaffirmation of a U.S. offer of a billion-dollar economic development program through the United Nations.

Announcing their support for the program Wednesday were the Most Rev. Paul J. Hallinan, archbishop of Atlanta, Ga.; the Most Rev. John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J.; the Most Rev. Victor J. Reed, bishop of the Oklahoma City-Tulsa, Okla, Diocese, and the Most Rev. James P. Shannon, auxiliary bishop of St. Paul Minn.

State Leaders Speak At Magistrates Fete

Prominent jurists and state officials are listed as speakers for the 58th annual New York State Magistrates Conference scheduled for Sept. 10 through the 13th at the Granit Hotel, Kerhonkson, according to Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing.

Judge Poppel, a member of the convention committee, said this year's conference will be like a "training program" which he noted is particularly important with the advent of the new Justice Court Act and the new Penal Code.

A special committee is planning events for the ladies who attend the event.

Dr. Robert W. Miller, dean, Syracuse University Law School, will lecture on Evidence in Civil and Criminal Cases. District Attorney Richard Thaler of Tompkins County will speak on the topic, Narcotics in Our Schools, Colleges and Universities. Justice Morris J. Zweig's topic will be Criminal Provisions of New Justice Court Act.

Justice Eugene Salisbury of Buffalo topic will be The New Penal Code. Other speakers will include Prof. David D. Siegel, St. John's University Law School, Eugene J. Fox, assistant counsel of the Judicial Conference of the State of New York and State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Vincent L. Tofany.

"The conference should be one of the best in years and a large attendance is expected from the entire state," Judge Poppel said.

Viet War Constitutionality

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate hearings on the proper role of Congress and the White House in foreign affairs could develop into a flank attack on U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach defends the Johnson administration against assertions it has overstepped its constitutional role in directing foreign policy.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., denied he intended his Senate Foreign Relations Committee's hearings to become a forum in which to press his long-time opposition to Vietnam policy.

Fulbright has proposed the Senate declare Congress, 'as well as the President, must approve any overseas policy if it is to be deemed a national commitment.

During the past 25 years, he said at Wednesday's hearing, the White House has "acquired virtually unrestricted power" to commit the United States politically and militarily, without congressional authorization.

Fulbright also said "this war which I oppose so deeply" is tied closely to the constitutional question of congressional authority in world affairs.

He said the United States might not have intervened in Vietnam had congressional approval been required at the outset.

The State Department already has issued a policy paper declaring President Johnson has both constitutional and legislative authorization for the steps he has ordered in Vietnam.

It says the President, as Commander in Chief, has constitutional power to deploy American forces, and reports this has been done at least 125 times in U.S. history without declarations of war.

It also cites the so-called Gulf of Tonkin Resolution adopted by Congress on Aug. 7, 1964, approving and supporting Johnson measures to repel armed attack on U.S. forces and to prevent further aggression.

But historian Ruhl J. Bartlett of Tufts University told the Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday the President has no authority to send U.S. troops abroad without the approval of Congress.

He criticized the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution as a vaguely worded grant of broad powers.

Bartlett said it could be read as congressional authorization for almost any step in the Vietnam area, including an invasion of Communist China "to prevent further aggression."

On the Senate floor, Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., said he was worried about published hints of a possible invasion of North Vietnam.

"This step is where I get off," said Yarborough, who has not criticized administration policy. "Any land invasion of North Vietnam would be in my opinion an utterly indefensible step. It would be escalation gone mad."

Chairman Earle G. Wheeler of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the Senate preparednss subcommittee that U.S. aims in Vietnam do not include the conquest of the North.

"Moreover, an expansion of the war—geographically or in number of participants—is considered contrary to United States interest," Gen. Wheeler said. President Johnson recently approved addition of 45,000 to 50,000 men to U.S. troop strength in Vietnam by next year.

Wheeler said U.S. bombing of the Communist North "is achieving its objectives and is saving American and allied lives in South Vietnam."

Johnson cracked back Wednesday at one criticism by some of his Vietnam policy foes. He declared his confidence in the effort to hold free elections in South Vietnam and said "this effort ought to be welcomed and encouraged."

Some critics have attacked the way the ruling South Vietnamese military has administered the elections.

Johnson said the military leaders have pledged to support the outcome of the elections and added: "I take that pledge most seriously." He spoke at a ceremony honoring five U.S. government employes for service in Vietnam.

Polio Vaccine Urged By Link

Despite the fact that there is an effective vaccine against poliomyelitis there have been 15 cases of paralytic polio in the United States so far this year.

Four of these were adults and 11 were children nine years of age or younger. Two of the cases occurred in the State of New York. Thirteen of the 15 had never received any vaccine and one of the other two had only been partially immunized, according to Dr. Vernon B. Link, Commissioner of Health of Ulster County.

"If you or your children have never been vaccinated against polio," Dr. Link said, "see your physician immediately."

"At this time," said Dr. Link, "we do not know whether the vaccine will produce a life-long immunity or not. We do know, however, that unless people get the basic series, and unless infants are all vaccinated, that there is a possibility that a susceptible population will be created anew."

Dr. Link noted that the last paralytic polio case recorded in Ulster County was in 1964. The case occurred in Kingston. The health commissioner reported there has been a gradual decline of paralytic polio cases in the state since 1961 when 252 cases were recorded.

Other cases reported in this state, according to records in the office of Dr. Link were: 1962-53; 1963-11; 1964-9 and 1965 one case.

Compared to the many thousands of cases and deaths which used to occur in this state (4,215 cases and 901 deaths in 1961) two cases are not nearly as important, Dr. Link noted. "However, even one case is a failure," he said.

"If the people of this county and this state are to enjoy freedom from poliomyelitis, they have to become immune to the disease and stay immune. This means that everybody should get at least the basic series of two doses of trivalent vaccine. It is particularly important that all infants get their vaccine at 2 to 3 months of age so that each new generation becomes immune to the disease," Dr. Link added.

Two Cong Women Discuss War

By KELLY SMITH

THANH DIEN, Vietnam (AP) — She was 22, a thoughtful, compassionate black-eyed girl who had yearned all her life to be a nurse. She wanted to help, she said. And she pleaded to do so.

The Viet Cong asked her to help them. She did.

There was another girl, 18, a happy, teasing, teen-ager who was proud of long raven hair, who giggled with the boys and used to sneak from her house to meet a boy friend.

Her boy friend joined the Viet Cong. She did too.

Two women—now 26 and 20. Two girls who became women under fire, not so much because of political conviction as personal conviction. Not so much to fight as to love. Two girls who reached out to live the life of a girl and became women at war.

Both girls are now in a camp for Viet Cong returnees. Three weeks ago, both turned themselves in to governmnt forces, saying they were heartsick and tired of hiding, of war, and of bloodied friends.

Nguyen Thu Can, 26, and Tran Thu Anh, 20, had never met one another before they surrendered. Now they share a bunk at a Chieu Hoi—"Open Arms"—camp near Thanh Dien 30 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

They live in a barbed wire compound with 72 other VC returnees. Twice a day, they eat in an open-air dining room. There's a small library and dusty eat 24 hours a day. Like the rest, they have a reindoctrination period, undetermined at this point. They will stay another month—maybe two. And then?

Can sits on the straw mat of her bunk, wipes dirty perspiration from her forehead and stares a minute into space.

"I want to be a nurse. I always wanted to be a nurse. The VC said okay, you'll be nurse. I am not VC anymore, but I am a nurse."

She speaks softly, shyly, through an interpreter.

"I was not afraid of VC. I was happy there. When I joined VC everyone in my village was VC. Not now. We only ran and hid and it was tiring. Everyday, they teach me more about being a nurse.

"They teach communism too. Every day for a while. I didn't mind. I thought if they teach me what I want, I listen to what they want. They were very good to me."

Bunkmate Anh watches Can speaking. She swings her legs, smiles, flips her gold loop earrings as she combs through her hair. Anh is a spirited girl, more gregarious, more easily swayed.

She, too, speaks through an interpreter.

"There were lots of girls my age in the VC camp. We had lots of fun. Men and women had separate rooms. Men were very nice. We did many things together, we ate and talked and had a good time."

Then why leave? "I missed my family. I left for the VC when I got mad at my family. They wouldn't let me do all the things I wanted. I couldn't see my boy friend all I wanted.

"I am not mad anymore. I have nine brothers and sisters and I miss them. They are not VC. I know they worried. So I came home. I like the VC okay, but I got tired of so much moving and hiding."

Neither girl was wounded. Both saw fighting, U.S. planes, and both tended wounded men.

Both say they did not fear the Viet Cong when they joined. And both joined because they wanted to.

Today, both are afraid. Afraid of the VC, afraid of retaliation against their families, afraid of Americans.

Artillery heard while the girls were talking made them stop. Can squinted her eyes, twisted the shirt tail of her black pajamas and took a big breath. Anh put her arms around the bunk post and squeezed tightly. Can and Anh are probably not hard-core Communists or Viet Cong.

They are two of many young women who due to location, compassion, love of adventure get swept up in the movement—later to find themselves behind barbed wire. Some died.

They are two girls from villages unknown even outside Saigon. Today they are afraid. Tomorrow they may be nursing wounded again. Today they don't talk much, even among themselves.

Do they cry?

Can blushes and lowers her head. Yes.

MARRIAGE-MINDED—Cassius Clay, and Belinda Boyd, 17, leave the Bureau of Vital Statistics yesterday, where they obtained Miss Boyd's birth certificate before a marriage license could be issued. Miss Boyd, like Clay a Black Muslim, wears the garb of the sect. Her father walks behind the couple. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Lollipops For Expo's State Day

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Lollipops will be distributed Aug. 23 at the New York State Pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal as the world's fair observes New York State Day.

Ronald B. Peterson, state commerce commissioner, said Gov. and Mrs. Rockefeller plan to attend special festivities to mark the day.

In addition to the lollipops, marked "for friends of New York State," pavilion visitors will receive special souvenier seals commemorating the Rush-Bagot Agreement of 1817. The pact paved the way for the undefended border between the United States and Canada.

Her boy friend joined the Viet Cong. She did too.

Two women—now 26 and 20. Two girls who became women under fire, not so much because of political conviction as personal conviction. Not so much to fight as to love. Two girls who reached out to live the life of a girl and became women at war.

Both girls are now in a camp for Viet Cong returnees. Three weeks ago, both turned themselves in to governmnt forces, saying they were heartsick and tired of hiding, of war, and of bloodied friends.

Nguyen Thu Can, 26, and Tran Thu Anh, 20, had never met one another before they surrendered. Now they share a bunk at a Chieu Hoi—"Open Arms"—camp near Thanh Dien 50 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

They live in a barbed wire compound with 72 other VC returnees. Twice a day, they eat in an open-air dining room. There's a small library and dusty eat 24 hours a day. Like the rest, they have a reindoctrination period, undetermined at this point. They will stay another month—maybe two. And then?

Can sits on the straw mat of her bunk, wipes dirty perspiration from her forehead and stares a minute into space.

"I want to be a nurse. I always wanted to be a nurse. The VC said okay, you'll be nurse. I am not VC anymore, but I am a nurse."

She speaks softly, shyly, through an interpreter.

"I was not afraid of VC. I was happy there. When I joined VC everyone in my village was VC. Not now. We only ran and hid and it was tiring. Everyday, they teach me more about being a nurse.

"They teach communism too. Every day for a while, I didn't mind, I thought if they teach me what I want, I listen to what they want. They were very good to me."

Bunkmate Anh watches Can speaking. She swings her legs, smiles, flips her gold loop earrings as she combs through her hair. Anh is a spirited girl, more gregarious, more easily swayed.

She, too, speaks through an interpreter.

"There were lots of girls my age in the VC camp. We had lots of fun. Men and women had separate rooms. Men were very nice. We did many things together, we ate and talked and had a good time."

Then why leave? "I missed my family. I left for the VC when I got mad at my family. They wouldn't let me do all the things I wanted. I couldn't see my boy friend all I wanted.

"I am not mad anymore. I have nine brothers and sisters and I miss them. They are not VC. I know they worried. So I came home. I like the VC okay, but I got tired of so much moving and hiding."

Neither girl was wounded. Both saw fighting, U.S. planes, and both tended wounded men.

Both say they did not fear the Viet Cong when they joined. And both joined because they wanted to.

Today, both are afraid. Afraid of the VC, afraid of retaliation against their families, afraid of Americans.

Artillery heard while the girls were talking made them stop. Can squinted her eyes, twisted the shirt tail of her black pajamas and took a big breath. Anh put her arms around the bunk post and squeezed tightly. Can and Anh are probably not hard-core Communists or Viet Cong.

They are two of many young women who due to location, compassion, love of adventure get swept up in the movement—later to find themselves behind barbed wire. Some died.

They are two girls from villages unknown even outside Saigon. Today they are afraid. Tomorrow they may be nursing wounded again. Today they don't talk much, even among themselves.

Do they cry?

Can blushes and lowers her head. Yes.

MARRIAGE-MINDED—Cassius Clay, and Belinda Boyd, 17, leave the Bureau of Vital Statistics yesterday, where they obtained Miss Boyd's birth certificate before a marriage license could be issued. Miss Boyd, like Clay a Black Muslim, wears the garb of the sect. Her father walks behind the couple. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Lollipops For Expo's State Day

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Lollipops will be distributed Aug. 23 at the New York State Pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal as the world's fair observes New York State Day.

Ronald B. Peterson, state commerce commissioner, said Gov. and Mrs. Rockefeller plan to attend special festivities to mark the day.

In addition to the lollipops, marked "for friends of New York State," pavilion visitors will receive special souvenier seals commemorating the Rush-Bagot Agreement of 1817. The pact paved the way for the undefended border between the United States and Canada.

Betting On Super Schools

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Pittsburgh is taking one of the most daring gambles in American education.

If the city wins, it hopes to take a great step toward solving the knottiest problem in public education today—racial integration.

Together with a carefully coordinated program of urban renewal, the gamble could also refocus the thrust of city living and stop the flight of the middle class whites to the suburbs.

The gamble is built around five super high schools that will replace the 23 secondary schools and draw from communities of 150,000 gerrymandered to be microcosms of the entire city.

5-6000 Students

Architectually striking complexes for 5,000 to 6,000 students will be set in five, separate, 40-acre educational parks, accessible through pedestrain greenbelts, expressways and eventually rapid transit.

Open around the clock, the schools will serve as adult education centers, homes for theater and music groups and possibly headquarters for public health agencies and other government services.

The city believes that pleasant shops, well-kept homes and modern apartments will naturally gravitate to these glittering centers as they become magnets for the good things in city living.

Most of the 120 million cost, largest single investment of public money in the city's history, has already been committed. Millions are now being spent for the sites. The first school is to open in 1971, the others a little later.

The concept grew out of the same crisis that virtually every big city in the United States is facing: The steady exodus of white families from the inner population in the schools and the problem of how to integrate classrooms.

"We went through all the trials and errors that everybody else did," says Superintendent of Schools Sidney P. Marland Jr., a member of President Johnson's Task Force on Education.

Nothing Worked

"We tried open enrollment, forced busing, human relations councils, but we made only a minuscule dent and the problem we faced was massive," he says.

As 70,000 whites were leaving the city between 1950 and 1960, 40,000 Negroes moved in. Now 20 per cent of the city's 600,000 residents are Negro, but the percentage in public schools is 38.

"When you reach 50 per cent, it's too late to do anything," Marland says. "The whites start leaving in panic. Look at Washington where 90 per cent of schools are Negro. There's no way in the world to integrate them."

"Now, for the past 15 years the whole emphasis in public education in this country has been on elementary schools," he says. "We worked with elementary schools but we couldn't get anywhere. You can't eliminate the neighborhood school. In those grades, the primary concern of the parent is the safety of the child. They want the children to go to school nearby.

"So we turned the whole thing upside down and attacked it from the high school level."

City officials believe integration at the top will be assured by drawing the district lines to take in all social and economic groups. Marland hopes to balance the racial mix at one-third Negro, two-thirds white.

The old high schools—the newest was built 40 years ago—are to be converted to "middle schools" for students in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. These also will draw from wide areas, making integration possible by skipping over neighborhood lines.

IT WILL NOT SLOPE OR SAG!

Thanks to world-famous Springwall . . . with 24 unique patented side supports in every Quiltress set . . . you're guaranteed a mattress that will never slope in the center or sag at the edge, even when you rest your full weight there. With Springwall mattresses you get posture-right firmness the whole mattress through . . . you sleep in comfort from edge to edge.

Just one edge support device as in ordinary mattresses adds virtually nothing structurally to a mattress. Only Springwall construction surrounds your mattress with strength along the entire edge all around for perfect sleep comfort.

Because the sides are supported and free from sag, the sleeper sleeps right to the very edge. The greater sleep surface of a Springwall mattress allows more room to turn, more comfort and more refreshing sleep.

The pleasures of "edge sitting" were once taboo, because supported edges fell broke down. With Springwall you can phone, dress or relax sitting at the edge.

We can say it, but when science says it, that's fact. And Foster D. Snell, one of America's Foremost testing laboratories, has stated after testing all competitive brands that Springwall gives the most sleep support.

Skilled Hammer, Saw Earn A Fortune on Shoestring

How to get ahead on a "shoestring" if you're handy with tools—

Buy a rundown house or apartment building, modernize it and then either move in, rent it or take your profit by selling.

Some families handle this "nest-egg gathering" in another but similar manner.

They'll move into an older home, modernize it while occupying it and then, after a year or two, sell or rent and move into a similar situation to repeat the process.

In either case, says John Concord, home improvement consultant to Masonite Corporation, the do-it-yourself owner can work at his profession or job and carry on the modernization on weekends and evenings.

"Every hour he and his family spend on fix-up is like putting a large-denomination bill into the family treasury," Concord says. "The payoff will come when the house is sold or rented."

One way in which to make such "nest-egg gathering" profitable is to buy materials that are easy to use, maintain, look at and keep for years.

For example, Royalcote decorative panels are widely used in home modernization because they are economical and fulfill the other requirements of the ambitious home owner interested in his financial future.

Sixteen colors and patterns are available at lumber and building materials dealers. They go up like clockwork with simple tools and time-saving cartridge adhesive. Matching wood or metal moldings may be installed quickly to give a finished appearance.

Oftentimes, older homes require new exterior siding. For top appearance, Concord suggests the use of prefinished Colorlok X-90 Lap or Panel Siding, available in four colors. Surfaces are guaranted for 10 years and the board is guaranteed against damage for 25 years.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

ANTS AND EARWIGS: Two common pests around the home these days are ants and earwigs. Everyone knows what ants are. Earwigs are those pests with a pair of pincers on the tail end. It's seldom that anyone ever gets bitten by either an ant or earwig, yet they are a real nuisance. Ants crawl inside homes via cracks in walls, under doors and cellar ways. Earwigs gain entrance by means of flowers, fruits and vegetables brought inside. Also by means of newspapers, laundry and other items brought indoors.

CONTROL: Scatter some chlordane along the foundation of your home. That's about the only way you can keep these pests down.

LILAC DISEASES: Ever have a lilac bush suddenly turn black, wilt and die back several inches? This trouble is a blight due to bacteria and certain fungi. It's worse in wet weather since the organisms are spread by splashed water.

CONTROL: Prune out the infected shoots immediately and burn. Make the cut several inches below the blighted area, so as not to spread it with your cutting tool. Powdery mildew is worse this year due to ample rains. Dust the plants with sulfur or Karathane. Lilac borers may be present in some of your lilac twigs. The entire branch wilts and dies, and you may see "sawdust" at the base. Prune out infected shoots and burn. Any dead wood should be cut out also.

FREE: Want to know more about lilacs? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO GROW LILACS, DOGWOOD AND OTHER PLANTS. My guide has helped thousands of gardeners.

LAWN WEEDS: Creeping Charlie is a small weed which will take over your lawn in a jiffy. It has leaves about the size of a quarter, and wherever it touches the ground it takes root. If you mow it with a mower, pieces will even root.

CONTROL: try 2,4-D weedkiller on it. This may not always work. Handpulling is helpful and is the only thing you can do when the weed has invaded a flower bed. Bindweed is another serious pest and I haven't found a good cure for it. Some folk say that white distilled vinegar will check it. Please write and tell me if you have had success using it.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Please tell me if a fuchsia plant can be cut back now. Ours is outdoors now, tall and gangly."

Answer: Yes, you can cut the top back now to make it bushy. Start new plants by rooting the tips in a glass of water or in moist sand. We prefer new plants in fall, instead of bringing in the old mother plant.

Attic Gold Mine Await To Be Used

Many attics are gold mines of unused, waste space.

It's economically wise to convert such an area into something useful. It might be an extra room or even an apartment to be rented, suggests John Concord, home improvement consultant to Masonite Corporation.

Try Prefinished Paneling

Decorating and maintenance can be simplified by installing factory-finished Royalcote paneling, available in 15 colors and woodgrains. The panels damp-wipe clean, and common household stains may be removed with water and detergent applied with a cloth or sponge.

Installation has been simplified so that even an inexperienced amateur can do a professional looking job of paneling. Panels may be placed right over the attic wall studs, providing they're evened up with shims if necessary. Use Royalcote general purpose adhesive rather than nails; it's quicker and easier.

For more information on Royalcote paneling, write a postcard for a free folder, Form 6716, to the Home Service Bureau, Box B, Chicago, Ill. 60690.

Skilled Hammer, Saw Earn A Fortune on Shoestring

How to get ahead on a "shoestring" if you're handy with tools—

Buy a rundown house or apartment building, modernize it and then either move in, rent it or take your profit by selling.

Some families handle this "nest-egg gathering" in another but similar manner.

They'll move into an older home, modernize it while occupying it and then, after a year or two, sell or rent and move into a similar situation to repeat the process.

In either case, says John Concord, home improvement consultant to Masonite Corporation, the do-it-yourself owner can work at his profession or job and carry on the modernization on weekends and evenings.

"Every hour he and his family spend on fix-up is like putting a large-denomination bill into the family treasury," Concord says. "The payoff will come when the house is sold or rented."

One way in which to make such "nest-egg gathering" profitable is to buy materials that are easy to use, maintain, look at and keep for years.

For example, Royalcote decorative panels are widely used in home modernization because they are economical and fulfill the other requirements of the ambitious home owner interested in his financial future.

Sixteen colors and patterns are available at lumber and building materials dealers. They go up like clockwork with simple tools and time-saving cartridge adhesive. Matching wood or metal moldings may be installed quickly to give a finished appearance.

Oftentimes, older homes require new exterior siding. For top appearance, Concord suggests the use of prefinished Colorlok X-90 Lap or Panel Siding, available in four colors. Surfaces are guaranted for 10 years and the board is guaranteed against damage for 25 years.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

ANTS AND EARWIGS: Two common pests around the home these days are ants and earwigs. Everyone knows what ants are. Earwigs are those pests with a pair of pincers on the tail end. It's seldom that anyone ever gets bitten by either an ant or earwig, yet they are a real nuisance. Ants crawl inside homes via cracks in walls, under doors and cellar ways. Earwigs gain entrance by means of flowers, fruits and vegetables brought inside. Also by means of newspapers, laundry and other items brought indoors.

CONTROL: Scatter some chlordane along the foundation of your home. That's about the only way you can keep these pests down.

LILAC DISEASES: Ever have a lilac bush suddenly turn black, wilt and die back several inches? This trouble is a blight due to bacteria and certain fungi. It's worse in wet weather since the organisms are spread by splashed water.

CONTROL: Prune out the infected shoots immediately and burn. Make the cut several inches below the blighted area, so as not to spread it with your cutting tool. Powdery mildew is worse this year due to ample rains. Dust the plants with sulfur or Karathane. Lilac borers may be present in some of your lilac twigs. The entire branch wilts and dies, and you may see "sawdust" at the base. Prune out infected shoots and burn. Any dead wood should be cut out also.

FREE: Want to know more about lilacs? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO GROW LILACS, DOGWOOD AND OTHER PLANTS. My guide has helped thousands of gardeners.

LAWN WEEDS: Creeping Charlie is a small weed which will take over your lawn in a jiffy. It has leaves about the size of a quarter, and wherever it touches the ground it takes root. If you mow it with a mower, pieces will even root.

CONTROL: try 2,4-D weedkiller on it. This may not always work. Handpulling is helpful and is the only thing you can do when the weed has invaded a flower bed. Bindweed is another serious pest and I haven't found a good cure for it. Some folk say that white distilled vinegar will check it. Please write and tell me if you have had success using it.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Please tell me if a fuchsia plant can be cut back now. Ours is outdoors now, tall and gangly."

Answer: Yes, you can cut the top back now to make it bushy. Start new plants by rooting the tips in a glass of water or in moist sand. We prefer new plants in fall, instead of bringing in the old mother plant.

Attic Gold Mine Await To Be Used

Many attics are gold mines of unused, waste space.

It's economically wise to convert such an area into something useful. It might be an extra room or even an apartment to be rented, suggests John Concord, home improvement consultant to Masonite Corporation.

Try Prefinished Paneling

Decorating and maintenance can be simplified by installing factory-finished Royalcote paneling, available in 15 colors and woodgrains. The panels damp-wipe clean, and common household stains may be removed with water and detergent applied with a cloth or sponge.

Installation has been simplified so that even an inexperienced amateur can do a professional looking job of paneling. Panels may be placed right over the attic wall studs, providing they're evened up with shims if necessary. Use Royalcote general purpose adhesive rather than nails; it's quicker and easier.

For more information on Royalcote paneling, write a postcard for a free folder, Form 6716, to the Home Service Bureau, Box B, Chicago, Ill. 60690.

Legion Nine Stops Pleasant Valley, 6-2 in Tourney

Working Press

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

If you happen to be the "right" Harold, then George Salzman of Hunter would like to hear from you.

As Mr. Salzman relates it:

"I was returning home after fishing the Ashokan Dam Saturday night, and when nearing the gate to the road, I slipped and fell, with slight injury.

"One fisherman, Harold, as I recall it, a sportsman of Kingston, assisted me to my car. In the excitement, two of my rods and reels were gone. (Obviously, Harold's son must have inadvertently carried them to his car.)"

"Can you help me in this matter? The equipment was expensive." Well, Mr. Salzman, you've just gotten a free ad. Maybe Harold will show up.

ONE OF THE TRULY EFFICIENT publicity men in area sports is Phillip Siggia of St. Remy, who handles the press releases for the Ulster County Pistol League . . . Ditto for Fred Polizzi, of Mt. Marion who keeps us posted on pigeon flights from such faraway points as Deepwater, Del.; Winchester, Va.; Washington, D. C. and other points south of the Jersey Turnpike. When it comes to leagues, none can match the Saugerties Softball League in getting its message before the public . . . On an individual basis, however, Jules Albertini's performance over the years has been tremendous. At one time or anothr, Julie has been involved in City baseball and softball leagues, Little Leagues, American Legion and Babe Ruth baseball. He has personally delivered more boxscores to this department than all other persons combined. It s nice to see he is about to receive some long overdue recognition.

MAYBE YOU THINK BEING a golf professional is glamorous but Bill Kane, assistant pro at Wiltwyck Country Club, isn't buying. Now completing his first year as assistant to Scotty Robertson, Kane is quitting golf for the teaching world. He found golf professional's life "too tough and too demanding." . . . . Everytime Ron Swoboda gets a hit Old Casey Stengel looks better. Many times Casey said the boy would deliver if they just let him play . . . . The heart says Boston Red Sox but the mind picks Minnesota in the American League . . . . Boston, of course, is much easier to find than the Twin Cities . . . . National League rooters who suffered through the terrible ordeal of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1966 World Series haven't learned a thing . . . . They're already ridiculing American League chances in the 1968 fall classic—whether it be Red Sox, Twins or White Sox . . . . A year ago Hank Bauer got standing ovations in Baltimore restaurants. Now he's being offered (free) plane tickets to Baffin Land and points north.

BOWLERS, DO NOT BEWARE. We plan very few changes in the publication of scores this season . . . . Incidentally, The Freeman and Ferraro's Bowlerama are readying an important announcement right after Labor Day . . . . Towsend Clarke, Army's All-America linebacker, has been named honorary president of the Debbie Rifenbary Fan Club as prophesied in the last will and testament of the KHS Class of 1967 . . . . Sixteen-year-old Warren Shaw of Red Hook aced the par-3 155 yard hole at Red Hook in distinguished company last Saturday. He was playing with John Lewis, Alice Beehler and Bridgette Clows, national woman's champion of Switzerland. In addition to being a fine high school golfer, Shaw plays No. 1 single on the Red Hook High tennis varsity.

ONE OF THE SURPRISE CASUALTIES of the 1967 summer sports season is the Hudson Valley tennis tournament at State University, New Paltz. First Charlie Welbers, then Al Miller developed the tournament to the point where it was one of the prestige events in the Eastern area . . . . Cancellation of the tennis meet and Miller s acceptance of the soccer post at Hartwick College are probably not related but certainly coincidental . . . . The bumper crop of entries for the Ulster County championships now in progress at Forsyth Park reflects the fine efforts of the Kingston Tennis Association to elevate the sport in the Kingston area. Is the Recreation Commission readying a package proposal for the 1968 summer season in Kingston? If so, the city hall boys should find it quite interesting.

Soccer Doubleheader Set At Oehler's Field Sunday

It will be Old Timers Day at Oehler's Mountain Lodge Sunday, when Bill Oehler stages a special exhibition doubleheader starting at 1:30 p. m.

In the feature at 3:30 p. m., Oehler's Mountaineers, a blend of older Sport Club members and former stars take on the Bavarian varsity. Peter Fuchs returns to the Kickers' lineup for this one. The public is invited.

Locals Play Yorktown in Sunday Tilt

Scoring five runs in the fifth frame, Kingston Post No. 150 scored a 6-2 win over Pleasant Valley and advanced to the second round of the Beacon Invitational Legion Baseball tournament Thursday at Recreation Field in the Southern Dutchess city.

Lefty Frank McGowan hurled a complete game for the locals. He was touched for only four hits and didn't allow a run after the first inning.

Trailing by a 2-1 count, Kingston Post began the rally as McGowan drew a walk off loser Bob Rathbun. With one out, he reached second on a passed ball.

Mike Derrenbacher singled to knot the score and he went to second on the throw to the plate. A double by Pete Watzka delivered Derrenbacher. After Watzka went to third on an error, he tallied as Mike Weishaupt lofted a sacrifice fly to right.

Greg Rios kept the rally alive by walking and Ron Valle singled on the hit and run, sending Rios all the way to third. Rathbun then uncorked a pair of wild pitches to Rios and Valle.

Kingston will play Yorktown in a 4 p. m. game on Sunday.

Paul's Beats Center, 6-5

Paul's Shell advanced to the consolation finals of the Saugerties Softball League Yankee division playoffs with a 6-5 win over Community Billiard Center Thursday evening.

The winners snapped a 5-5 deadlock with a run in the last of the seventh. Barry Lindsay, who made his pitching debut when he relieved an ejected Gordon Freligh in the sixth inning, was the loser. Sam Tesoriero won it.

Paul's will meet the winner of Tuesday's game between Anton's and Southside for the consolation title.

The championship playoffs will begin on Monday with Ferroxcube playing Michael's Barber Shop in the first game of a best-of-three series.

Army Slates Football Practice

WEST POINT — Thirty days has September, April, June and November — and Army Coach Tom Cahill to get his 1967 football edition ready for its first game. That will be a home opener against Virginia here on Saturday, Sept. 23.

Over 100 candidates, including 19 lettermen, will report to Cahill on Wednesday, Aug. 23, for the initial workout. It will be two-a-day sessions until the Tuesday after Labor Day when classes start. One week will be spent at the Camp Buckner training site on the West Point reservation.

For the first time since 1959 the Cadets find themselves with more talent on offense than on defense. Nine starters from the 1966 team, which went 8-2 during the season and brought Coach-of-the-Year honors to Cahill, are back. Only at a guard and a tackle spot will the offensive staff have to pick replacements.

Things aren't as good on defense where six of the starters, including all-America linebacker Townsend Clarke, have graduated. There are three back on the front five but only one linebacker and one deep back return. And Army has a new defensive coaching staff, Dick Lyon, John McCauley and Bill Parcells having joined the staff last spring.

Neswiacheny Back

Captain Bud Neswiacheny from Somerville, N. J., has been given the title of "The General" and will direct the defense. While Neswiacheny will probably be listed as a defensive tackle in the lineup, he will play as a rover and could come up an end, tackle or linebacker. The other returnees on defense include end Bob Gora, tackle Elwood Cobey, middle guard Pat Mente, linebackers Jim Bevans and Kenny Johnson, and deep back Hank Tockzylowski. Johnson is a letterman but was not a starter.

The offensive backfield will be led by quarterback Steve Lindell, who was named ECAC sophomore - of - the - year. He'll be backed by another junior letterman, Jim O'Toole. Halfbacks John Peduto and Carl Woessner and fullback Charley Jarvis complete the quartet.

Ends Terry Young and Gary Steele give the Army a pair of fine receivers. They were one-two in that department in 1966. Tackle Keith Harrelson, guard John Neddahl and center Don Roberts are the other returning regulars.

The other two lettermen back are defensive tackle Steve Yarnell and kicking specialist Nick Kurilko. Kurilko is a punter.

Ticket Sales Brisk

Interest in Army football is at an all-time high with over 9,000 season tickets having been sold to date, according to Colonel Jerry G. Capka, director of athletics. Last year's total was 9,700 as the Cadets set home attendance arks for the fourth straight year.

The combination of an 8-2 record in 1966, Coach-of-the-Year honors to Tom Cahill in his first season at the Army helm, nine returning starters on offense and an attractive home schedule has resulted in an increased demand for tickets.

However, there are still seats available for all five home games. The season ticket plan offers a reduced rate ($25 for the five games), reserved parking and the option of purchasing one Army-Navy game ticket for each season ticket held.

The home schedule has Virginia on Sept. 23, Duke on Oct. 7, Rutgers on Oct. 21, Stanford on Oct. 28, and Utah on Nov. 11. Stanford is the homecoming game. Single game prices are $5 for Virginia and Utah, $6 for the other three.

Although there may be some revisions by the time the season opens, the state of Pennsylvania leads the list with nine players among the 53 currently listed members of the 1967 Army varsity football team.

Right behind the Keystoners are Minnesota with six and New York with five. Illinois and Texas are both represented by four players. Twenty states and the District of Columbia are represented. Florida is the farthest south, Utah the farthest west and Massachusetts to the northeast of the Military Academy.

Pennsylvania also leads in lettermen, four of the nine being varsity award winners. They include ends Terry Young (Reading) and Gary Steele (Levittown), fullback Charley Jarvis (Cornwells Heights) and kicking specialist Nick Kurilko (Wilson Borough).

GOOD DAY'S WORK: Gary Player, the little South African, is all smiles as he heads for the locker room after taking the first day lead with a 6-under-par 65 in the Greater Hartford Open at Weatherfield Country Club, Conn. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Near Perfect Round for Sperl

Bob Sperl of Saugerties missed an unprecedented perfect four rounds by a single round as he led the weekly Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club trapshoot with a .990 average. He fired rounds of 25, 24, 25, 25.

Runnerup was Bob Schmedake (24) with .920. Grover Ellsworth (24) had .900. Other leaders: Dan Hurley (23), .880; Jim Palkowics (22), .880; Harry Smith (22), .867; Sonny Barnes (23), .860.

The final Ulster County Circuit trapshoot will be held Sunday at Walker Valley Sportsmen's Club. This is the last opportunity to shoot the 200 rounds needed to be classified for the Ulster County championship trapshoot at Walker Valley on Sept. 24.

Opens With 6-Under-65

Fantastic Putter Gives Player Lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "I can't believe I shot a 65," said Gary Player of South Africa after becoming the first round leader at six-under-par in the $100,000 Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"I've been cutting trees, riding horses, driving a tractor on my farm for four weeks with only one practice round," Player said.

"Fantastic" was the way he described how his putter worked over the greens of Wethersfield Country Club as it gave him a one stroke lead over Terry Dill of Austin, Tex.

Player sank birdie putts from 35, 30, 20 and 18 feet during his round, and three others in the 8-12 foot range Thursday. Dill had similar putting luck in his 66, getting six birdies on putts ranging from 15 to 35 feet.

Dill ignored a request to tell more about his round at the press tent, saying: "Every time I have shot a good round this year and then gone to the press room, I've shot a 76 or 77 the next day."

Among those off to a good start Thursday was 22-year- old Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., with four-under-par 67. Lunn's best finish in his rookie year has been 32nd in the Minnesota Classic earlier this month. Also at 67 was Lee Trevino, an El Paso, Tex., club professional who learned just how attractive the pro tour might be when he earned $6,000 for finishing fifth in the U.S. Open in June.

Sleeping Dog Kicks Leo, Cubs in Teeth

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Leo Durocher kicked the sleeping dog, and it nearly bit off his leg.

Durocher, playing the percentages, ordered Philadelphia's Tony Gonzalez intentionally walked in the 12th inning of Thursday night's game to pitch to Rich Allen.

Now ordinarily that wouldn't qualify as a terribly safe move. But Chicago pitchers had retired Allen four times and, with Cookie Rojas on second carrying the winning run, a walk to Gonzalez did set up a potential double play that could get the Cubs out of the inning.

Instead, the strategy got them right out of the ball game.

Allen hammered his 20th home run, over the right field wall, giving the Phillies a 5-2 victory.

In the only other National League games, Houston blanked Los Angeles 4-0 behind Dave Giusti and New York split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh, winning 6-5 and then losing by the same score in 14 innings.

Rojas had opened the Phillie 12th with a single and was sacrificed to second. Then Durocher ordered the intentional walk to Gonzalez and Allen made him regret the move.

Fails in Ninth

Ferguson Jenkins, looking for his 17th victory, took a 2-1 lead into the ninth but singles by Johnny Callison, Clay Dalrymple and Gary Sutherland, tied it for Philadelphia.

The Cubs nicked Philadelphia starter Rick Wise for single runs in the fourth and sixth, with singles by Clarence Jones and Adolpho Phillips driving them across. Tony Taylor's sixth inning single drove in the Phillies' first run in the sixth and ended a scoreless earned run string at 25 innings for Jenkins.

Giusti scattered eight hits against the Dodgers and Ron Davis' three-run double drove in all the runs he needed.

The Astros loaded the bases in the fifth on singles by Julio Gotay and Doug Rader and a walk to Rusty Staub. Then Davis' long double scored all three runs. A wild pitch and Bob Aspromonte's single drove in Davis.

It was the first shutout this season for Giusti, who won his ninth game. After the game, the Astros announced the trade of Ed Mathews to the Detroit Tigers.

Elusive Homer

Bud Harrelson's first major league homer, an inside-the-park shot that eluded Pittsburgh rightfielder Al Luplow, broke a 4-4 tie in the eithth inning of the first game and helped the Mets to their victory.

Harrelson popped the ball into short right, and Luplow missed a shoestring catch and then lost the ball in the Pirate bullpen as Harrelson circled the bases.

Juan Pizarro, loser in the opener, came out of the bullpen and picked up the second game victory when Manny Mota singled Roberto Clemente across with the winning run in the 14th inning. Clemente, who drove in the tying run in the ninth inning, started the winning rally with a single.

The Mets collected 34 hits in the doubleheader—seven of them by Cleon Jones. Pittsburgh had 29 hits in the two games.

If you happen to be the "right" Harold, then George Salzman of Hunter would like to hear from you.

As Mr. Salzman relates it:

"I was returning home after fishing the Ashokan Dam Saturday night, and when nearing the gate to the road, I slipped and fell, with slight injury.

"One fisherman, Harold, as I recall it, a sportsman of Kingston, assisted me to my car. In the excitement, two of my rods and reels were gone. (Obviously, Harold's son must have inadvertently carried them to his car.)"

"Can you help me in this matter? The equipment was expensive." Well, Mr. Salzman, you've just gotten a free ad. Maybe Harold will show up.

ONE OF THE TRULY EFFICIENT publicity men in area sports is Phillip Siggia of St. Remy, who handles the press releases for the Ulster County Pistol League . . . Ditto for Fred Polizzi, of Mt. Marion who keeps us posted on pigeon flights from such faraway points as Deepwater, Del.; Winchester, Va.; Washington, D. C. and other points south of the Jersey Turnpike. When it comes to leagues, none can match the Saugerties Softball League in getting its message before the public . . . On an individual basis, however, Jules Albertini's performance over the years has been tremendous. At one time or anothr, Julie has been involved in City baseball and softball leagues, Little Leagues, American Legion and Babe Ruth baseball. He has personally delivered more boxscores to this department than all other persons combined. It s nice to see he is about to receive some long overdue recognition.

MAYBE YOU THINK BEING a golf professional is glamorous but Bill Kane, assistant pro at Wiltwyck Country Club, isn't buying. Now completing his first year as assistant to Scotty Robertson, Kane is quitting golf for the teaching world. He found golf professional's life "too tough and too demanding." . . . . Everytime Ron Swoboda gets a hit Old Casey Stengel looks better. Many times Casey said the boy would deliver if they just let him play . . . . The heart says Boston Red Sox but the mind picks Minnesota in the American League . . . . Boston, of course, is much easier to find than the Twin Cities . . . . National League rooters who suffered through the terrible ordeal of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1966 World Series haven't learned a thing . . . . They're already ridiculing American League chances in the 1968 fall classic—whether it be Red Sox, Twins or White Sox . . . . A year ago Hank Bauer got standing ovations in Baltimore restaurants. Now he's being offered (free) plane tickets to Baffin Land and points north.

BOWLERS, DO NOT BEWARE. We plan very few changes in the publication of scores this season . . . . Incidentally, The Freeman and Ferraro's Bowlerama are readying an important announcement right after Labor Day . . . . Towsend Clarke, Army's All-America linebacker, has been named honorary president of the Debbie Rifenbary Fan Club as prophesied in the last will and testament of the KHS Class of 1967 . . . . Sixteen-year-old Warren Shaw of Red Hook aced the par-3 155 yard hole at Red Hook in distinguished company last Saturday. He was playing with John Lewis, Alice Beehler and Bridgette Clows, national woman's champion of Switzerland. In addition to being a fine high school golfer, Shaw plays No. 1 single on the Red Hook High tennis varsity.

ONE OF THE SURPRISE CASUALTIES of the 1967 summer sports season is the Hudson Valley tennis tournament at State University, New Paltz. First Charlie Wolbers, then Al Miller developed the tournament to the point where it was one of the prestige events in the Eastern area . . . . Cancellation of the tennis meet and Miller s acceptance of the soccer post at Hartwick College are probably not related but certainly coincidental . . . . The bumper crop of entries for the Ulster County championships now in progress at Forsyth Park reflects the fine efforts of the Kingston Tennis Association to elevate the sport in the Kingston area. Is the Recreation Commission readying a package proposal for the 1968 summer season in Kingston? If so, the city hall boys should find it quite interesting.

Locals Play Yorktown in Sunday Tilt

Scoring five runs in the fifth frame, Kingston Post No. 150 scored a 6-2 win over Pleasant Valley and advanced to the second round of the Beacon Invitational Legion Baseball tournament Thursday at Recreation Field in the Southern Dutchess city.

Lefty Frank McGowan hurled a complete game for the locals. He was touched for only four hits and didn't allow a run after the first inning.

Trailing by a 2-1 count, Kingston Post began the rally as McGowan drew a walk off loser Bob Rathbun. With one out, he reached second on a passed ball.

Mike Derrenbacher singled to knot the score and he went to second on the throw to the plate. A double by Pete Watzka delivered Derrenbacher. After Watzka went to third on an error, he tallied as Mike Weishaupt lofted a sacrifice fly to right.

Greg Rios kept the rally alive by walking and Ron Valle singled on the hit and run, sending Rios all the way to third. Rathbun then uncorked a pair of wild pitches to Rios and Valle.

Kingston will play Yorktown in a 4 p. m. game on Sunday.

Paul's Shell advanced to the consolation finals of the Saugerties Softball League Yankee division playoffs with a 6-5 win over Community Billiard Center Thursday evening.

The winners snapped a 5-5 deadlock with a run in the last of the seventh. Barry Lindsay, who made his pitching debut when he relieved an ejected Gordon Freligh in the sixth inning, was the loser. Sam Tesoriero won it.

Paul's will meet the winner of Tuesday's game between Anton's and Southside for the consolation title.

The championship playoffs will begin on Monday with Ferroxcube playing Michael's Barber Shop in the first game of a best-of-three series.

Sleeping Dog Kicks Leo, Cubs in Teeth

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Leo Durocher kicked the sleeping dog, and it nearly bit off his leg.

Durocher, playing the percentages, ordered Philadelphia's Tony Gonzalez intentionally walked in the 12th inning of Thursday night's game to pitch to Rich Allen.

Now ordinarily that wouldn't qualify as a terribly safe move. But Chicago pitchers had retired Allen four times and, with Cookie Rojas on second carrying the winning run, a walk to Gonzalez did set up a potential double play that could get the Cubs out of the inning.

Instead, the strategy got them right out of the ball game.

Allen hammered his 20th home run, over the right field wall, giving the Phillies a 5-2 victory.

In the only other National League games, Houston blanked Los Angeles 4-0 behind Dave Giusti and New York split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh, winning 6-5 and then losing by the same score in 14 innings.

Rojas had opened the Phillie 12th with a single and was sacrificed to second. Then Durocher ordered the intentional walk to Gonzalez and Allen made him regret the move.

Fails in Ninth

Ferguson Jenkins, looking for his 17th victory, took a 2-1 lead into the ninth but singles by Johnny Callison, Clay Dalrymple and Gary Sutherland, tied it for Philadelphia.

The Cubs nicked Philadelphia starter Rick Wise for single runs in the fourth and sixth, with singles by Clarence Jones and Adolpho Phillips driving them across. Tony Taylor's sixth inning single drove in the Phillies' first run in the sixth and ended a scoreless earned run string at 25 innings for Jenkins.

Giusti scattered eight hits against the Dodgers and Ron Davis' three-run double drove in all the runs he needed.

The Astros loaded the bases in the fifth on singles by Julio Gotay and Doug Rader and a walk to Rusty Staub. Then Davis' long double scored all three runs. A wild pitch and Bob Aspromonte's single drove in Davis.

It was the first shutout this season for Giusti, who won his ninth game. After the game, the Astros announced the trade of Ed Mathews to the Detroit Tigers.

Elusive Homer

Bud Harrelson's first major league homer, an inside-the-park shot that eluded Pittsburgh rightfielder Al Luplow, broke a 4-4 tie in the eithth inning of the first game and helped the Mets to their victory.

Harrelson popped the ball into short right, and Luplow missed a shoestring catch and then lost the ball in the Pirate bullpen as Harrelson circled the bases.

Juan Pizarro, loser in the opener, came out of the bullpen and picked up the second game victory when Manny Mota singled Roberto Clemente across with the winning run in the 14th inning. Clemente, who drove in the tying run in the ninth inning, started the winning rally with a single.

The Mets collected 34 hits in the doubleheader—seven of them by Cleon Jones. Pittsburgh had 29 hits in the two games.

Army Slates Football Practice

WEST POINT — Thirty days has September, April, June and November — and Army Coach Tom Cahill to get his 1967 football edition ready for its first game. That will be a home opener against Virginia here on Saturday, Sept. 23.

Over 100 candidates, including 19 lettermen, will report to Cahill on Wednesday, Aug. 23, for the initial workout. It will be two-a-day sessions until the Tuesday after Labor Day when classes start. One week will be spent at the Camp Buckner training site on the West Point reservation.

For the first time since 1959 the Cadets find themselves with more talent on offense than on defense. Nine starters from the 1966 team, which went 8-2 during the season and brought Coach-of-the-Year honors to Cahill, are back. Only at a guard and a tackle spot will the offensive staff have to pick replacements.

Things aren't as good on defense where six of the starters, including all-America linebacker Townsend Clarke, have graduated. There are three back on the front five but only one linebacker and one deep back return. And Army has a new defensive coaching staff, Dick Lyon, John McCauley and Bill Parcells having joined the staff last spring.

Neswiacheny Back

Captain Bud Neswiacheny from Somerville, N. J., has been given the title of "The General" and will direct the defense. While Neswiacheny will probably be listed as a defensive tackle in the lineup, he will play as a rover and could come up an end, tackle or linebacker. The other returnees on defense include end Bob Gora, tackle Ellwood Cobey, middle guard Pat Mente, linebackers Jim Bevans and Kenny Johnson, and deep back Hank Tockzylowski. Johnson is a letterman but was not a starter.

The offensive backfield will be led by quarterback Steve Lindell, who was named ECAC sophomore-of-the-year. He'll be backed by another junior letterman, Jim O'Toole. Halfbacks John Peduto and Carl Woessner and fullback Charley Jarvis complete the quartet.

Ends Terry Young and Gary Steele give the Army a pair of fine receivers. They were one-two in that department in 1966. Tackle Keith Harrelson, guard John Neddahl and center Don Roberts are the other returning regulars.

The other two lettermen back are defensive tackle Steve Yarnell and kicking specialist Nick Kurilko. Kurilko is a punter.

Ticket Sales Brisk

Interest in Army football is at an all-time high with over 9,000 season tickets having been sold to date, according to Colonel Jerry G. Capka, director of athletics. Last year's total was 9,700 as the Cadets set home attendance arks for the fourth straight year.

The combination of an 8-2 record in 1966, Coach-of-the-Year honors to Tom Cahill in his first season at the Army helm, nine returning starters on offense and an attractive home schedule has resulted in an increased demand for tickets.

However, there are still seats available for all five home games. The season ticket plan offers a reduced rate ($25 for the five games), reserved parking and the option of purchasing one Army-Navy game ticket for each season ticket held.

The home schedule has Virginia on Sept. 23, Duke on Oct. 7, Rutgers on Oct. 21, Stanford on Oct. 28, and Utah on Nov. 11. Stanford is the homecoming game. Single game prices are $5 for Virginia and Utah, $6 for the other three.

Although there may be some revisions by the time the season opens, the state of Pennsylvania leads the list with nine players among the 53 currently listed members of the 1967 Army varsity football team.

Right behind the Keystoners are Minnesota with six and New York with five. Illinois and Texas are both represented by four players. Twenty states and the District of Columbia are represented. Florida is the farthest south, Utah the farthest west and Massachusetts to the northeast of the Military Academy.

Pennsylvania also leads in lettermen, four of the nine being varsity award winners. They include ends Terry Young (Reading) and Gary Steele (Levittown), fullback Charley Jarvis (Cornwells Heights) and kicking specialist Nick Kurilko (Wilson Borough).

Fantastic Putter Gives Player Lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "I can't believe I shot a 65," said Gary Player of South Africa after becoming the first round leader at six-under-par in the $100,000 Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"I've been cutting trees, riding horses, driving a tractor on my farm for four weeks with only one practice round," Player said.

"Fantastic" was the way he described how his putter worked over the greens of Wethersfield Country Club as it gave him a one stroke lead over Terry Dill of Austin, Tex.

Player sank birdie putts from 35, 30, 20 and 18 feet during his round, and three others in the 8-12 foot range Thursday. Dill had similar putting luck in his 66, getting six birdies on putts ranging from 15 to 35 feet.

Dill ignored a request to tell more about his round at the press tent, saying: "Every time I have shot a good round this year and then gone to the press room, I've shot a 76 or 77 the next day."

Among those off to a good start Thursday was 22-year-old Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., with four-under-par 67. Lunn's best finish in his rookie year has been 32nd in the Minnesota Classic earlier this month. Also at 67 was Lee Trevino, an El Paso, Tex., club professional who learned just how attractive the pro tour might be when he earned $6,000 for finishing fifth in the U.S. Open in June.

Near Perfect Round for Sperl

Runnerup was Bob Schmedake (24) with .920. Grover Ellsworth (24) had .900. Other leaders: Dan Hurley (23), .880; Jim Palkowics (22), .880; Harry Smith (22), .867; Sonny Barnes (23), .860.

The final Ulster County Circuit trapshoot will be held Sunday at Walker Valley Sportsmen's Club. This is the last opportunity to shoot the 200 rounds needed to be classified for the Ulster County championship trapshoot at Walker Valley on Sept. 24.

New Tiger Mathews Likes Detroit Park

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Eddie Mathews was grinning as he sat in the Houston dressing room.

"I've never seen the Detroit ball park," he said, and the grin stretched. "But I hear it's a good hitters' ball park."

Detroit Manager Mayo Smith was grinning even more. He'd just moved into third place in the miser-tight American League pennant race and found, in Mathews, the ideal replacement for injured third baseman Don Wert.

The trade of Mathews, one of the all-time great home run hitters, from the Astros to Detroit, was engineered late Thursday night shortly after the Tigers had arrived home from a 7-4, 10-inning victory at Boston that put them back in third place, three games back of leading Minnesota.

"We're going to find out in a hurry whether we'll have a shot at them," Smith said. "We have doubleheaders with them Tuesday and Wednesday and a single game Thursday."

Before that, the Tigers have a weekend series with Cleveland, which outlasted Washington 8-3 in 16 innings. Baltimore stopped New York 4-1 in the only other American League game scheduled Thursday.

Has 503 Homers

Mathews, 36, who has 503 career home runs, will be at third for the Tigers tonight for the series opener with Cleveland, replacing Wert who pulled a groin muscle Sunday and will be out for two or three weeks.

He had played first base most of the season at Houston, but has no chance of moving Norm Cash out of that position at Detroit and will play third.

Cash was key to Detroit's victory over Boston, dirving in the winning run with a two-out triple in the 10th. Two walks and two errors let in the other extra-inning runs. Willie Horton hit two homers and Al Kaline one before the Red Sox tied it with a three-run rally in the eighth.

Gene Brabender pitched a four-hitter, including Roy White's homer, and got key hitting support from Paul Blair in leading the Orioles over the Yankees. Blair broke up a scoreless duel in the seventh with a run scoring double and ignited a three-run ninth inning with a triple.

Vic Davalillo's bases-loaded triple was the highlight of a five-run, 16th inning rally that carried the Indians past Washington. Chuck Hinton opened the big inning with a single and was forced across by three straight walks. Davalillo delivered three more with his triple, then scored on Tony Horton's double.

Frank Howard hit his 30th homer of the season for the Senators.

Glasco-EK's Ralph Mayone Hurls His Third No-Hitter

Ralph Mayone of the Glasco-East Kingston Little League Braves has pitched his third no-hit game of the season.

In his last outing, Mayone allowed no hits but yielded an unearned run in a 16-1 romp over the Giants. He struck out 12 and walked seven.

Mayone was equally efficient at the plate with three singles in three trips. Mike Gage hit a single and double for the Braves, while Wayne Brocco and Fancis Van Gasbeck hit two singles apiece.

The winners picked up 17 safeties off three Gordon's chuckers with Vince Smedes, Joe Tremper and Richie Amato clouting home runs. Royal scored 10 runs in the sixth inning to put this one out of reach.

Amato made one of his infrequent starts and survived an eight-hit attack to post the decision. Smedes led the offense with two doubles and a single in addition to his roundtripper.

Vikings Play Second NAFL Game Tonight

The Hudson Valley Vikings will be looking for their second North Atlantic Football League victory tonight when they play the New Hampshire Colts at Orange County Fair Stadium. Game time is 8:15 p. m.

The Vikings, 3-0 overall, won their league opener with a second half rally that carried them to a 29-17 victory over the Connecticut Rockets.

The Colts, making their first league start, dropped an exhibition contest to the New Britain, Conn. Bees, 28-6. The Colts, however, have a fullback who may be the best at his position in the NAFL. He's Jetstream Smith who's had trials with both the Chicago Bears and Oakland Raiders.

Vikings management has announced new general admission rates to take effect with tonight's game.

General admission is now $2.00 per person, with children 14 and under, $1.00. Reserve sections remain at $3.00

The Vikings' aerial duo of quarterback Zeke Munro and split end Reggie Lee will again be operating. They combined for five completions last week for 99 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

The winners did the job early, getting four runs in the opening inning. Eric Assion pitched a five-hitter in outdueling Don Lackaye.

Hurley can insure its championship by beating Kiwanis Club Monday. The VFW nine has already won the National League crown and the winners will meet next Wednesday in the first game of a best-of-three playoff series.

Clay Schedules Sunday Wedding

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay, the sidelined world heavyweight champion, and his fiance will be wed in a Muslim ceremony Sunday—or before if the bride can finish arrangements in time, Clay's manager says.

Clay and 17-year-old Belinda Boyd, whose father, Raymond Boyd, also is a member of the Black Muslim sect, received their marriage license Thursday at the Cook County Clerk's Office.

It will be the second marriage for Clay, 25, who was divorced last year from Sonji M. Roi, now 27. That marriage broke up after 11 months when Clay contended his wife failed to maintain her promise to convert to his religion.

Belinda, the oldest of the four Boyd children, was graduated this year from the University of Islam, a school with grades 1 through 12. The Boyd family lives in suburban Blue Island.

Braves Contest At Torrington

Kingston Braves will play the Torrington Red Sox Sunday at Torrington instead of Deitz Stadium Saturday night, as previously announced.

The switch was necessitated because of the annual drum corps competition at the uptown park.

Kingston's remaining dates in the Interstate League will be announced.

Air Force Gal Leads Diving Events in AAU

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"This was just the beginning," gushed a pert blonde Air Force lieutenant Thursday after she won the one-meter springboard diving title at the annual Women's National AAU Swimming and diving championships.

Micki King, who nine months ago started a tour of duty with the ROTC detachment at the University of Michigan, was looking ahead to today's three-meter competition and a possible double triumph. She said she wouldn't be adverse to also winning the 10 - meter platform event, and an eventual Olympic berth.

The three-meter competition was one of six finals scheduled for today, the second of the four-day annual Nationals. Also up for grabs were titles in the 100-meter backstroke, 400-meter medley, 800-meter freestyle relay, and one of two men's events in the show, the 100-meter freestyle.

There was only the one event on Thursday's schedule and Miss King, who has been diving since she was 10 years old in Pontiac, Mich., won that with a score of 407.80. She upset Mrs. Joel Lenzi O'Connell, the defending one-meter champion of Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club.

Mrs. O'Connell totaled 382.85 in her unsuccessful bid for a third straight outdoor AAU title.

Lesley Bush, the Olympic platform diving champion, and indoor one-meter board queen, finished third with 377.90; Sally Sheffer of Philadelphia was fourth at 365.00, and Keala O'Sullivan was fifth with 363.75.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defending champion Peaches Bartkowicz hammered out a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Valerie Ziegenfuss and advanced to the semifinals of the 50th U.S. Girls Grass Court championship.

The winners picked up 17 safeties off three Gordon's chuckers with Vince Smedes, Joe Tremper and Richie Amato clouting home runs. Royal scored 10 runs in the sixth inning to put this one out of reach.

Amato made one of his infrequent starts and survived an eight-hit attack to post the decision. Smedes led the offense with two doubles and a single in addition to his roundtripper.

Joe Gorman's home run in the last of the third broke a 2-2 tie and Elmer's went from that point to post the easy triumph.

Vikings Play Second NAFL Game Tonight

The Hudson Valley Vikings will be looking for their second North Atlantic Football League victory tonight when they play the New Hampshire Colts at Orange County Fair Stadium. Game time is 8:15 p. m.

The Vikings, 3-0 overall, won their league opener with a second half rally that carried them to a 29-17 victory over the Connecticut Rockets.

The Colts, making their first league start, dropped an exhibition contest to the New Britain, Conn. Bees, 28-6. The Colts, however, have a fullback who may be the best at his position in the NAFL. He's Jetstream Smith who's had trials with both the Chicago Bears and Oakland Raiders.

Vikings management has announced new general admission rates to take effect with tonight's game.

General admission is now $2.00 per person, with children 14 and under, $1.00. Reserve sections remain at $3.00

The Vikings' aerial duo of quarterback Zeke Munro and split end Reggie Lee will again be operating. They combined for five completions last week for 99 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

Hurley Clinches Tie For American Title

Hurley clinched a tie for the American League championship of the Kingston Babe Ruth League by beating the KPA, 71, Thursday at Dietz Stadium.

The winners did the job early, getting four runs in the opening inning. Eric Assion pitched a five-hitter in outdueling Don Lackaye.

Hurley can insure its championship by beating Kiwanis Club Monday. The VFW nine has already won the National League crown and the winners will meet next Wednesday in the first game of a best-of-three playoff series.

Clay Schedules Sunday Wedding

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay, the sidelined world heavyweight champion, and his fiance will be wed in a Muslim ceremony Sunday—or before if the bride can finish arrangements in time, Clay's manager says.

Clay and 17-year-old Belinda Boyd, whose father, Raymond Boyd, also is a member of the Black Muslim sect, received their marriage license Thursday at the Cook County Clerk's Office.

It will be the second marriage for Clay, 25, who was divorced last year from Sonji M. Roi, now 27. That marriage broke up after 11 months when Clay contended his wife failed to maintain her promise to convert to his religion.

Belinda, the oldest of the four Boyd children, was graduated this year from the University of Islam, a school with grades 1 through 12. The Boyd family lives in suburban Blue Island.

Former Colgate Star Starts for Patriots

ANDOVER, Mass. (AP) — Ray Ilg, 220-pound rookie from Colgate University will start at middle linebacker for the Boston Patriots in an American Football League exhibition Sunday against the Buffalo Bills at Rochester, N.Y., the Patriots said Thursday.

Ilg will replace Nick Buoniconti who was injured in the Patriots' 33-3 loss to Baltimore's NFL Colts.

Braves Contest At Torrington

Kingston Braves will play the Torrington Red Sox Sunday at Torrington instead of Dietz Stadium Saturday night, as previously announced.

The switch was necessitated because of the annual drum corps competition at the uptown park.

Kingston's remaining dates in the Interstate League will be announced.

Air Force Gal Leads Diving Events in AAU

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"This was just the beginning," gushed a pert blonde Air Force lieutenant Thursday after she won the one-meter springboard diving title at the annual Women's National AAU Swimming and diving championships.

Micki King, who nine months ago started a tour of duty with the ROTC detachment at the University of Michigan, was looking ahead to today's three-meter competition and a possible double triumph. She said she wouldn't be adverse to also winning the 10-meter platform event, and an eventual Olympic berth.

The three-meter competition was one of six finals scheduled for today, the second of the four-day annual Nationals. Also up for grabs were titles in the 100-meter backstroke, 400-meter medley, 800-meter freestyle relay, and one of two men's events in the show, the 100-meter freestyle.

There was only the one event on Thursday's schedule and Miss King, who has been diving since she was 10 years old in Pontiac, Mich., won that with a score of 407.80. She upset Mrs. Joel Lenzi O'Connell, the defending one-meter champion of Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club.

Mrs. O'Connell totaled 382.85 in her unsuccessful bid for a third straight outdoor AAU title.

Lesley Bush, the Olympic platform diving champion, and indoor one-meter board queen, finished third with 377.90; Sally Sheffer of Philadelphia was fourth at 365.00, and Keala O'Sullivan was fifth with 363.75.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defending champion Peaches Bartkowicz hammered out a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Valerie Ziegenfuss and advanced to the semifinals of the 50th U.S. Girls Grass Court championship.

Mrs. King Cops Tennis Victory

MANCHESTER, Mass. (AP) — Top-seeded Billie Jean King, the Wimbledon queen from Long Beach, Calif., resumed her quest for a third Essex Country Club Women's Tennis Championship today in a quarter-final match with seventh-seeded Virginia Wade of England.

Mrs. King, the Essex winner in 1964 and '65, wasted little time in advancing through the third round Thursday as she whipped Esme Emanuel of South Africa 6-1, 6-2.

Defending champion Maria Bueno of Brazil, seeded No. 2, sailed through her third round match Wednesday. Her quarter-final opponent was Winnie Shaw, British Wightman Cup player from Scotland.

Other quarter-finals sent Rosemary Casals of San Francisco against eighth-seeded Kerry Melville of Australia, and Mrs. Joyce Williams of England against Karent Krantzcke of Australia in a duel of unseeded players.

Writers Trot To Bold Viking

MONTICELLO — Ugo Bottoni or Italy was scheduled to drive Bold Viking in the featured U.S. Harness Writers Trot, Monticello Chapter, last night. He reported having "eaten too much in the dining room before the race, I can't drive." As a result American teamster Dave Tovin was up behind Bold Viking, and boldly coming through the stretch, the 3-2 choice won in 2:05.1.

Busy Bomber cut out the mile most of the way but his half-length lead coming into the stretch melted as Bold Viking came on strong, and Cee Zam closed quickly to take second. Underpass was third.

Quite incidentally, another Viking was in the race, Karsten Buer, Norway's ace harness driver who will appear in Roosevelt Raceway's International trot Saturday, was aboard Victor Rodney. He came dead last.

Excitement came early on the card. Gee Willie with Carl Ernst $31.00, won the opener and J. C. Mike driven by Vincent Ferriero $30.20, won the second. The 7-8 daily double combination paid a hefty $437.40.

Westbury Cops Senior Series

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Westbury, N.Y., won the Senior Little League World Series Thursday night, going through the four-day double elimination tournament undefeated.

The New Yorkers bowled over West Des Moines 11-3 in the title game on the pitching of Vinnie Machynski, whose only lapse was in the fourth inning when the Iowans scored all their runs. The 5-foot-6 right-hander settled down after that and never allowed a hit for his second series victory.

Westbury collected 13 hits off three West Des Moines pitchers including five in a seven-run second inning when th champs were aided by a walk, a sacrifice, two errors and a hit batsman.

Catcher Joe Daddio had three singles and a double in four trips for Westbury, and Machynski pitched a five-hitter.

Graebner Defends Top Tennis Seeding

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Clark Graebner, Beechwood, Ohio, who had to default from doubles because of a throat infection, was scheduled to defend his No. 1 seeding today in quarter-finals of the 86th Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Graebner and his Davis Cup doubles partner Marty Riessen, Evanston, Ill., the United States' No. 1 team, were forced to default to Collen Robertson of Australia and Lamar Roemer of Houston in Thursday's second round doubles play.

The Nos. 3 and 4 seeds advanced without trouble Thursday, Riessen taking Bob Siska of San Francisco 6-2, 6-2, and Bill Bowrey of Australia eliminating Ray Moore of South Africa 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

Miss Whitworth Women's Leader

PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — Shirley Englehorn, who stuck with golf despite two accidents that threatened to cripple her for life, has become the sentimental favorite to win the Women's Western Golf Open.

Kathy Whitworth, who has captured five tournaments this year and leads the money winners with $19,567, had a two-stroke lead over 26-year-old Miss Englehorn entering today's second round.

Kathy, who has taken nearly every women's title but the Western Open since turning pro eight years ago, shot a four-under-par 71 Thursday over the wind-lashed Pekin Country Club Course.

Shirley, chasing her first tournament triumph for 1967, was second with a 73. The Caldwell, Idaho, lass suffered a spine injury when thrown from a horse in 1960 and then smashed a hip and an ankle in an auto crash in Arizona in 1965.

Sandra Palmer, who was in the auto crash with Shirley but was unhurt, and Susie Maxwell, winner of two titles this year, share third place with 74. Betsy Cullen, former amateur star who turned pro in 1963, made her bid with a 75.

See Damascus Breezing In 98th Travers Stakes

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Damascus, winner of eight of his 11 starts and $532,096 this year, figures to have little serious opposition Saturday when he seeks the 98th running of the $75,000-added Travers at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., for his eighth stakes triumph of the season.

Dr. Fager, who holds a one-half length decision over Damascus in their lone meeting last spring, had figured to make the 1¼ miles of the Travers a meeting at the summit of 3-year-olds and possibly decide the divisional title. But the good Doctor came up with a virus early in the Saratoga meeting and trainer Johnny Nerud lost no time withdrawing him from the classic.

So that leaves Damascus from Mrs. Edith Bancroft's stable carrying topweight of 126 pounds and giving six to much-traveled Reason to Hail, and Gala Performance, winner of last Friday's Jim Dandy; nine to the fleet Tumiga and 12 to High Tribute.

Damascus never was better. In his last start two weeks ago, the son o Sword Dancer—Kerala won the American Derby at Arlington Park with a record closing of 1:46 4-5 for 1⅛ miles. Before scoring by seven lengths in the Derby, Damascus won the Bay Shore, Wood Memorial, Belmont Stakes and Dwyer at Aqueduct, the Preakness at Pimlico and the Leonard Richards at Delaware Park.

Third in Derby

He finished third in the Kentucky Derby, was beaten by older Exceedingly in the duPont Handicap at Delaware and bowed at Dr. Fager in the one-mile of the Gotham.

Money-wise, the $100,000-added Washington Park Handicap over one-mile at Arlington Park outranks the Travers. It was trainer Lucien Laurin's original intention to start Tumiga, third in the Jim Dandy after stumbling at the start, in the Arlington feature.

Handsome Boy, conqueror of Buckpasser in the Brooklyn Handicap and also winner of Monmouth Park's Haskell, and Pretense, first in the $100,000 Santa Anita and $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicaps, figure to be the top choices in the probable field of 12.

Pretense, to be ridden by Johnny Sellers, has been assigned the heaviest impost of 128 pounds. Handsome Boy, with Eddie Belmonte Riding, will carry 122.

Philadelphia Handicap

Other top races on the national card include, the one-mile on the truf of the $25,000-added Philadelphia Handicap at Atlantic City, the 1⅛miles of the $31,000-added Buckeye Handicap at Randall Park, the $17,500-added Bing Crosby Handicap over six furlongs at Del Mar and the six furlongs of the $15,000-added Granite Stakes for 2-year-olds Rockingham Park.

Some of the best grass course performers in the country are expected to be in a field of 12 or 13 for the Atlantic City headliner. War Censor is topweighted at 126 pounds, with Niarkos assigned 121, Canal 120, Lucky Turn 118 and Exceedingly 116.

Randall Park officials are looking for a field of 14 in the Buckeye, making it worth $35,460. The winner is guaranteed $21,000 no matter the number of starters. If he goes, Bonny Johnny will be the highweight under 121 pounds.

Native Diver, top weighted at 130 pounds, likely will be favored in the Big Crosby.

Millers on Top, 8-4, Over Boo's

Taking advantage of six errors, Miller's Rexall gained the finals of the Saugerties Softball League Met division playoffs with an 8-4 triumph over Boo's Tavern.

The winners will meet Viking Lounge in the first game of a best-of-three playoff Monday at 8 p. m. Consolation games in the circuit will take place Tuesday and Thursday.

Eddie Jabs hurled a three-hitter in outpitching Barney Boyt. The winners had nine hits.

Concede Perfect Freight Chance in International

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Perfect Freight seldom the favorite, might break the domination of foreign horses and win the $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot for the United States at Roosevelt Raceway Saturday night.

Only Su Mac Lad, twice and Speedy Scot have been able to win this global spectacular for Uncle Sam, and Roquepine of France is expected to make it three in a row for the foreigners in this ninth edition of the harness racing classic.

Perfect Freight once again isn't given much chance even though the Jimmy Dennis-reined colt beat Roquepine in the United Nations Trot at Yonkers Raceway in June and only last Saturday won the American Trotting Championship at Roosevelt.

"He always seems to be downgraded because he's been in against real tough opposition," said owner Arthur Brown of New York today.

"I like the horse in the International and I hope for racing luck so we can win again," Brown continued. "This is a sort of mixed up race. There's no way of telling how the race will go since you're in against foreign horses who haven't raced here.

"That's what makes this sort of race so exciting. I think we've got a chance and don't know how good because I don't know about the other horses. I do know our horse is in condition and I have confidence in our driver, Dennis."

Dennis will take Perfect Freight away from post position No. 4 as the co-second choice at 7-2 with Real Speed, the other U.S. entry owned by William and Betty Feld of Chicago Ridge, Ill. Roquepine, a 6-year-old mare who will be driven by owner Henri Levesque is the even money choice out of the No. 1 post for the 1¼ mile test.

Rounding out the nine-horse field are two Canadian trotters, Governor Armbro and Fresh Yankee Sweden's Xanthe, Norway's Scott Protector France's Oscar R.L. and Italy's Graianella.

Women's Golf In Semi-finals

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A pair of 28-year-old roomates, resisting the youth movement at the USGA Women's Amateur Golf Championship, and a pair of poised youngsters collide today in the semifinals.

Phyllis, "Tish" Preuss, the medalist from Pompano Beach, Fla., and Jean Ashley, the 1965 champion from Chanute, Kan., meet in the match of the older girls.

While 19-year-old Lou Dill of Deer Park, Tex., and 20-year-old Peggy Conley of Seattle, Wash., are paired in the other bracket.

Miss Preuss, winless in 10 women's amateurs, did her part to subvert the youthful takeover when she eliminated Jane Bastanchury, 19, of Whittier, Calif., 1-up, in Thursday's quarter-finals.

Miss Ashley, who is rooming with Miss Preuss, scored a relatively easy victory over 18-year old Martha Wilkinson of Fullerton, Calif., 3 and 2.

Miss Dill, the daughter of a golf pro, ousted the youngest quarter-finalist, 16-year-old Marjanne Cox of Santa Ana, Calif., with a 2-up triumph.

And Miss Conley, an art student at the University of Washington, edged a veteran, Mrs. Scott Probasco of Chattanooga, Tenn., 1-up.

Writers Trot To Bold Viking

MONTICELLO — Ugo Bottoni or Italy was scheduled to drive Bold Viking in the featured U.S. Harness Writers Trot, Monticello Chapter, last night. He reported having "eaten too much in the dining room before the race, I can't drive." As a result American teamster Dave Tovin was up behind Bold Viking, and boldly coming through the stretch, the 3-2 choice won in 2:05.1.

Busy Bomber cut out the mile most of the way but his half-length lead coming into the stretch melted as Bold Viking came on strong, and Cee Zam closed quickly to take second. Underpass was third.

Quite incidentally, another Viking was in the race, Karsten Buer, Norway's ace harness driver who will appear in Roosevelt Raceway's International trot Saturday, was aboard Victor Rodney. He came dead last.

Excitement came early on the card. Gee Willie with Carl Ernst $31.00, won the opener and J. C. Mike driven by Vincent Ferriero $30.20, won the second. The 7-8 daily double combination paid a hefty $437.40.

Westbury Cops Senior Series

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Westbury, N.Y., won the Senior Little League World Series Thursday night, going through the four-day double elimination tournament undefeated.

The New Yorkers bowled over West Des Moines 11-3 in the title game on the pitching of Vinnie Machynski, whose only lapse was in the fourth inning when the Iowans scored all their runs. The 5-foot-6 right-hander settled down after that and never allowed a hit for his second series victory.

Westbury collected 13 hits off three West Des Moines pitchers including five in a seven-run second inning when th champs were aided by a walk, a sacrifice, two errors and a hit batsman.

Catcher Joe Daddio had three singles and a double in four trips for Westbury, and Machynski pitched a five-hitter.

Graebner Defends Top Tennis Seeding

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Clark Graebner, Beechwood, Ohio, who had to default from doubles because of a throat infection, was scheduled to defend his No. 1 seeding today in quarter-finals of the 86th Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Graebner and his Davis Cup doubles partner Marty Riessen, Evanston, Ill., the United States' No. 1 team, were forced to default to Collen Robertson of Australia and Lamar Roemer of Houston in Thursday's second round doubles play.

The Nos. 3 and 4 seeds advanced without trouble Thursday, Riessen taking Bob Siska of San Francisco 6-2, 6-2, and Bill Bowrey of Australia eliminating Ray Moore of South Africa 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

Miss Whitworth Women's Leader

PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — Shirley Englehorn, who stuck with golf despite two accidents that threatened to cripple her for life, has become the sentimental favorite to win the Women's Western Golf Open.

Kathy Whitworth, who has captured five tournaments this year and leads the money winners with $19,567, had a two-stroke lead over 26-year-old Miss Englehorn entering today's second round.

Kathy, who has taken nearly every women's title but the Western Open since turning pro eight years ago, shot a four-under-par 71 Thursday over the wind-lashed Pekin Country Club Course.

Shirley, chasing her first tournament triumph for 1967, was second with a 73. The Caldwell, Idaho, lass suffered a spine injury when thrown from a horse in 1960 and then smashed a hip and an ankle in an auto crash in Arizona in 1965.

Sandra Palmer, who was in the auto crash with Shirley but was unhurt, and Susie Maxwell, winner of two titles this year, share third place with 74. Betsy Cullen, former amateur star who turned pro in 1963, made her bid with a 75.

See Damascus Breezing In 98th Travers Stakes

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Damascus, winner of eight of his 11 starts and $532,096 this year, figures to have little serious opposition Saturday when he seeks the 98th running of the $75,000-added Travers at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., for his eighth stakes triumph of the season.

Dr. Fager, who holds a one-half length decision over Damascus in their lone meeting last spring, had figured to make the 1¼ miles of the Travers a meeting at the summit of 3-year-olds and possibly decide the divisional title. But the good Doctor came up with a virus early in the Saratoga meeting and trainer Johnny Nerud lost no time withdrawing him from the classic.

So that leaves Damascus from Mrs. Edith Bancroft's stable carrying topweight of 126 pounds and giving six to much-traveled Reason to Hail, and Gala Performance, winner of last Friday's Jim Dandy; nine to the fleet Tumiga and 12 to High Tribute.

Damascus never was better. In his last start two weeks ago, the son o Sword Dancer—Kerala won the American Derby at Arlington Park with a record closing of 1:46 4-5 for 1⅛ miles. Before scoring by seven lengths in the Derby, Damascus won the Bay Shore, Wood Memorial, Belmont Stakes and Dwyer at Aqueduct, the Preakness at Pimlico and the Leonard Richards at Delaware Park.

Third in Derby

He finished third in the Kentucky Derby, was beaten by older Exceedingly in the duPont Handicap at Delaware and bowed at Dr. Fager in the one-mile of the Gotham.

Money-wise, the $100,000-added Washington Park Handicap over one-mile at Arlington Park outranks the Travers. It was trainer Lucien Laurin's original intention to start Tumiga, third in the Jim Dandy after stumbling at the start, in the Arlington feature.

Handsome Boy, conqueror of Buckpasser in the Brooklyn Handicap and also winner of Monmouth Park's Haskell, and Pretense, first in the $100,000 Santa Anita and $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicaps, figure to be the top choices in the probable field of 12.

Pretense, to be ridden by Johnny Sellers, has been assigned the heaviest impost of 128 pounds. Handsome Boy, with Eddie Belmonte Riding, will carry 122.

Philadelphia Handicap

Other top races on the national card include, the one-mile on the truf of the $25,000-added Philadelphia Handicap at Atlantic City, the 1¼miles of the $31,000-added Buckeye Handicap at Randall Park, the $17,500-added Bing Crosby Handicap over six furlongs at Del Mar and the six furlongs of the $15,000-added Granite Stakes for 2-year-olds Rockingham Park.

Some of the best grass course performers in the country are expected to be in a field of 12 or 13 for the Atlantic City headliner. War Censor is topweighted at 126 pounds, with Niarkos assigned 121, Canal 120, Lucky Turn 118 and Exceedingly 116.

Randall Park officials are looking for a field of 14 in the Buckeye, making it worth $35,460. The winner is guaranteed $21,000 no matter the number of starters. If he goes, Bonny Johnny will be the highweight under 121 pounds.

Thirteen juveniles will go to the post in the Rockingham headliner with Four Fingers, top-weighted at 119 pounds, the likely choice over such promising colts as Helio's Tune, Mibeju and Mezzo Forte.

Native Diver, top weighted at 130 pounds, likely will be favored in the Big Crosby.

Millers on Top, 8-4, Over Boo's

Taking advantage of six errors, Miller's Rexall gained the finals of the Saugerties Softball League Met division playoffs with an 8-4 triumph over Boo's Tavern.

The winners will meet Viking Lounge in the first game of a best-of-three playoff Monday at 8 p. m. Consolation games in the circiut will take place Tuesday and Thursday.

Eddie Jabs hurled a three-hitter in outpitching Barney Boyt. The winners had nine hits.

Concede Perfect Freight Chance in International

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Perfect Freight seldom the favorite, might break the domination of foreign horses and win the $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot for the United States at Roosevelt Raceway Saturday night.

Only Su Mac Lad, twice and Speedy Scot have been able to win this global spectacular for Uncle Sam, and Roquepine of France is expected to make it three in a row for the foreigners in this ninth edition of the harness racing classic.

Perfect Freight once again isn't given much chance even though the Jimmy Dennis-reined colt beat Roquepine in the United Nations Trot at Yonkers Raceway in June and only last Saturday won the American Trotting Championship at Roosevelt.

"He always seems to be downgraded because he's been in against real tough opposition," said owner Arthur Brown of New York today.

"I like the horse in the International and I hope for racing luck so we can win again," Brown continued. "This is a sort of mixed up race. There's no way of telling how the race will go since you're in against foreign horses who haven't raced here.

"That's what makes this sort of race so exciting. I think we've got a chance and don't know how good because I don't know about the other horses. I do know our horse is in condition and I have confidence in our driver, Dennis."

Dennis will take Perfect Freight away from post position No. 4 as the co-second choice at 7-2 with Real Speed, the other U.S. entry owned by William and Betty Feld of Chicago Ridge, Ill. Roquepine, a 6-year-old mare who will be driven by owner Henri Levesque is the even money choice out of the No. 1 post for the 1¼ mile test.

Rounding out the nine-horse field are two Canadian trotters, Governor Armbro and Fresh Yankee Sweden's Xanthe, Norway's Scott Protector France's Oscar R.L. and Italy's Graianella.

Women's Golf In Semi-finals

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A pair of 28-year-old roomates, resisting the youth movement at the USGA Women's Amateur Golf Championship, and a pair of poised youngsters collide today in the semifinals.

Phyllis "Tish" Preuss, the medalist from Pompano Beach, Fla., and Jean Ashley, the 1965 champion from Chanute, Kan., meet in the match of the older girls.

While 19-year-old Lou Dill of Deer Park, Tex., and 20-year-old Peggy Conley of Seattle, Wash., are paired in the other bracket.

Miss Preuss, winless in 10 women's amateurs, did her part to subvert the youthful takeover when she eliminated Jane Bastanchury, 19, of Whittier, Calif., 1-up, in Thursday's quarter-finals.

Miss Ashley, who is rooming with Miss Preuss, scored a relatively easy victory over 18-year old Martha Wilkinson of Fullerton, Calif., 3 and 2.

Miss Dill, the daughter of a golf pro, ousted the youngest quarter-finalist, 16-year-old Marjanne Cox of Santa Ana, Calif., with a 2-up triumph.

And Miss Conley, an art student at the University of Washington, edged a veteran, Mrs. Scott Probasco of Chattanooga, Tenn., 1-up.

4 Standard Officials Are Attending Furniture Meet

Four officials of the Standard Furniture Company are attending the Second All Industry Furniture Conference in Washington, D. C.

The conference is attended by all segments of the home furnishing industry—manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers—and is sponsored by the National Retail Furniture Association, and the leading furniture marketing organizations of the United States.

The whole purpose of the team from Standard in attending the conference is to learn more about what Standard's customers of today and tomorrow want, need, desire and look for when contemplating the purchase of something for their home. The more knowledge the executives have, the better they will be able to plan and purchase the merchandise for the "Changing Consumer."

The conference focuses on "Your Changing Consumer," and the most effective ways to serve the changing needs of America's homemakers. For the past year research for this conference has been under way on studies of the present consumer, the trend of the consumer's desires and the problems she has encountered in fulfilling those desires. The research has been conducted by three nationally famous firms. Social Research, Inc., reported how the housewife functions, why home furnishings are important to her, what brings her to market and to a purchasing decision.

The second report was conducted by National Family Opinion to get the factual information about the homemaker. How she thinks and what she plans in the way of purchases of home furnishings. This study concerned itself with actual purchases the housewife has made and the report will be used in analyzing consumer behavior and consumer expectations to give guide lines to manufacturers and retailers.

The third report conducted by Arthur D. Little of Cambridge, Mass. is a study of the factors that influence consumer demand. It delves into the questions of why a customer buys—what influences her the most: is it styling, quality, advertising, display, service, price or whatever else. Why is it that a customer does not buy?

These studies are coordinated with an imposing list of speakers who are well known both within and outside the furniture industry. The All Industry Home Furnishings Conference is attended by leading home furnishings dealers from all over America and by manufacturers and reprensentatives of wholesale associations as well.

Area Engineer Is Listed for Session Talks

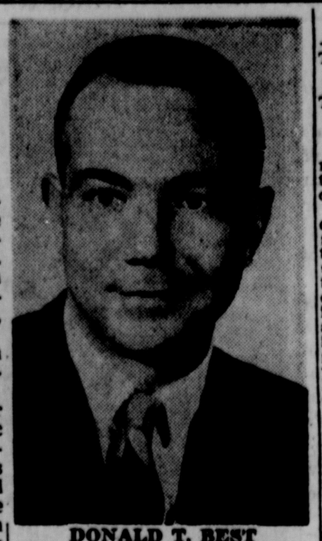

Representing Ferroxcube Corporation of Saugerties at the High Density Recording Technical session on Thursday, Aug. 24, at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, Calif., will be Donald T. Best, chief engineer, Magnetic Recording.

Best will present a paper on High Density Digital Recording.

The engineers, gathered for the Annual Western Eletronic Show and Convention (WESCON), will hear Best discuss recording head shape as related to short readback-pulse response for a recorded flux transition and the problems involved in obtaining the shape.

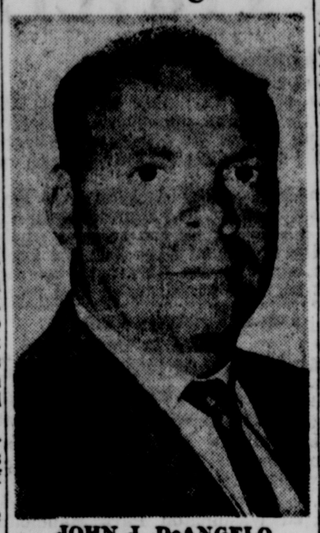

In his talk, Best will note that a logical solution to overcome the shape problem is to employ conventional head configurations, using dense ferrites in combination with glass bonded gaps. Alternative means of obtaining high densities by employing modulation methods and non-saturation recording are also to be covered.

Best, who obtained his Master of Science in Electrical Engineering at the University of Pennsylvania, is a graduate of Villanova University. Actively engaged in research and development in the area of magnetic recording for more than 17 years, Best has authored numerous papers and co-authored several others. He holds four patents with about 25 others either applied for or disclosed.

STANDARD OFFICIALS—Four representatives of the Standard Furniture Company executive staff are attending a conference in Washington, D. C. 4 Standard Officials Are Attending Furniture Meet

Four officials of the Standard Furniture Company are attending the Second All Industry Furniture Conference in Washington, D. C.

The conference is attended by all segments of the home furnishing industry—manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers—and is sponsored by the National Retail Furniture Association, and the leading furniture marketing organizations of the United States.

The whole purpose of the team from Standard in attending the conference is to learn more about what Standard's customers of today and tomorrow want, need, desire and look for when contemplating the purchase of something for their home. The more knowledge the executives have, the better they will be able to plan and purchase the merchandise for the "Changing Consumer."

The conference focuses on "Your Changing Consumer," and the most effective ways to serve the changing needs of America's homemakers. For the past year research for this conference has been under way on studies of the present consumer, the trend of the consumer's desires and the problems she has encountered in fulfilling those desires. The research has been conducted by three nationally famous firms. Social Research, Inc., reported how the housewife functions, why home furnishings are important to her, what brings her to market and to a purchasing decision.

The second report was conducted by National Family Opinion to get the factual information about the homemaker. How she thinks and what she plans in the way of purchases of home furnishings. This study concerned itself with actual purchases the housewife has made and the report will be used in analyzing consumer behavior and consumer expectations to give guide lines to manufacturers and retailers.

The third report conducted by Arthur D. Little of Cambridge, Mass. is a study of the factors that influence consumer demand. It delves into the questions of why a customer buys—what influences her the most: is it styling, quality, advertising, display, service, price or whatever else. Why is it that a customer does not buy?

These studies are coordinated with an imposing list of speakers who are well known both within and outside the furniture industry. The All Industry Home Furnishings Conference is attended by leading home furnishings dealers from all over America and by manufacturers and reprensentatives of wholesale associations as well.

Two Area Stores Named by Scene As Stylesville

GQ Scene, published for the third time this month, tells teen-age men what their compatriots will be doing and wearing this year. Highlighting the "switched on way to dress," with the new Mod fashions as well as old standards, Scene tells teen men how to dress the part, from school to skiing to "swinging evenings."

Area Engineer Is Listed for Session Talks

DONALD T. BEST

Representing Ferroxcube Corporation of Saugerties at the High Density Recording Technical session on Thursday, Aug. 24, at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, Calif., will be Donald T. Best, chief engineer, Magnetic Recording.

Best will present a paper on High Density Digital Recording.

The engineers, gathered for the Annual Western Eletronic Show and Convention (WESCON), will hear Best discuss recording head shape as related to short readback-pulse response for a recorded flux transition and the problems involved in obtaining the shape.

In his talk, Best will note that a logical solution to overcome the shape problem is to employ conventional head configurations, using dense ferrites in combination with glass bonded gaps. Alternative means of obtaining high densities by employing modulation methods and non-saturation recording are also to be covered.

Best, who obtained his Master of Science in Electrical Engineering at the University of Pennsylvania, is a graduate of Villanova University. Actively engaged in research and development in the area of magnetic recording for more than 17 years, Best has authored numerous papers and co-authored several others. Dear Abby

He's Really for the Birds

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Irving and I have been married for 9 years and we have four children. Irving has a hobby which takes up all his time. He's a pigeon fancier. He belongs to pigeon clubs, goes to meetings, gets all the literature, and of course, we keep pigeons.

If we go anyplace, it's over to some other pigeon fancier's house. I sit in the car while Irving looks at the birds and talks pigeon talk.

The last time we were somewhere that didn't have something to do with pigeons was at the Elks club last New Year's eve. Irving doesn't care to socialize with anyone unless they have pigeons.

Maybe I'm dumb, Abby, but even tho it seems like all I am is a housekeeper, baby sitter, and someone to sleep with, I still love him. Please tell me what to do.

SICK OF PIGEONS

* * *

DEAR SICK: Your husband is obviously for the birds, but yours is a legitimate squawk! Tell Irving that he had better straighten up and fly right, or his selfishness will come home to roost.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our 12-year-old son sent for some kind of "art course" he saw advertised in a magazine. He signed his father's name to the contract, agreeing to return it within 10 days if he decided not to keep it.

To make a long story short, this art school wrote to us demanding payment of $88 for the course. They claim they never got it back. Our son insists that he sent it back after keeping it only 2 days, but he doesn't have a receipt or anything to prove it. Now what do we do?

We knew nothing about this until we received a letter demanding payment. Our son then confessed what he had done. Please help us. Eighty-eight dollars means a lot to us right now.

WORRIED PARENTS

* * *

DEAR WORRIED: A minor is not bound by a contract. Neither are his parents bound by a forged signature. Write to the art school advising them of your son's age and the forgery. If they pursue the matter further, and serve you with a summons or complaint, see an attorney to file an answer to that complaint.

Or consult your local legal aid society. And tell your son that if he ever pulls a stunt like that again he will have to pay for it by the sweat of his brow. P.S. It should also teach him to "insure" that which is being returned in the mail.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend has had a very rough life, but it wasn't all his fault. His daddy ran off and left his mamma when he was just a baby, and he was pushed off on one relative and then another all his life. Anyway, he has been in a lot of trouble since he was a kid. In fact he is only 26 and he's been in prison. He is out now and wants to start a new life.

He has always wanted to be a police officer and he would make a good one as he's real good with guns. I heard that a man who has served time can't be a police officer. I can't believe that in this wonderful country, after a person has paid his debt to society they would hold his record against him to that extent. Can you tell me if this is true? HIS FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: This could be a local ruling, but in most communities one who has served a prison term is disqualified from becoming a law officer.

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

Forecast for Saturday, August 19, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): Not wise to depend upon promises or friends. Stick to familiar course. Those loyal in the past remain so. Some who approach with wild scheme should be cast aside. Be sensible.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Be conservative. Take no unnecessary chances. Don't gamble possessions. Play cards close to chest. Accent on reponsibility, obligations. Do what is necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Remember health resolutions. Take care of basic needs. Avoid extremes. Be moderate. Long journey could well be put off to personal benefit. Means don't reach too far afield.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be honest with yourself concerning funds, investments. Know how far you want to go, when to stop. Relations with member of opposite sex require review. Key is to be realistic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your desire to expand is commendable. But be sure you have necessary material. Showmanship is fine. But you also require solid backing. Some close to you may be hesitant. Find out now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): May be difficult to put finger on basic project. Some things appear to slip away. Be patient. What you seek tends to come to you. Means no day to force issues. Be calm, collected.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Those around you appear confused. You possess vital key. Utilize it. Open door to opportunity, success. Invest in your own ideas, talents, products. Social contacts prove fruitful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on quick decisions, action. But element of deception is present. Measure words. Don't commit yourself too quickly. Finalize deal which has been pending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Day features movement, journeys, messages. Make meanings clear. Some tend to misinterpret motives. Mail no letters in anger. Some confusion exists among relatives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Avoid extravagance. Set good example. You recently made money request. Now others expect you to fulfill promises. Do so. Advice from source at home prove valid. Follow it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Get ready to meet tests, challenges. Some try to weigh you down with burdens. But assert your freedom, independence. Those you helped in past try to take advantage of you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Be diplomatic. If you extend hand of friendship it is accepted. Otherwise you invite difficulties. Special activity with associates, co-workers is favored.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are forceful, dynamic and independent. Follow through on original ideas. That's your road to fulfillment, success. Current cycle favors romance, travel.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for AQUARIUS, PISCES, ARIES. Special word to VIRGO: deliberate action is best course, preferable to ring-around-rosy-type program.

The unlucky expert caught us by the arms. As usual his eyes were filled with tears and his voice cracked time and again as he told his sad story.

"I was playing in a mixed pair game with a partner who could be depended on to avoid playing no-trump contracts as much as possible. Therefore she opened one spade and raised me to three no-trump after I had pulled myself together and responded to her spade opening."

"What's so sad about that?" we asked. "You probably made a lot of tricks."

"I went down one trick," he moaned. "And there was no way for me to make my contract."

We looked over the hand carefully. Finally we saw that if West happens to open the ten of club's there is no play for the contract. We asked if that had happened and he replied:

"It certainly did. The Professor was sitting West and he must have led it in an effort to impress his favorite pupil, who was sitting East. I did the best I could by playing dummy's jack of clubs. The pupil thought awhile and might well have tried to preserve her queen of clubs for the dim and distant future but finally played it. There was a long pause after I played my four spot and eventually someone told her that her queen had held the trick. Another pause and back came the three of clubs. West played the king and I held off with dummy's ace but another club knocked it out. I led dummy's queen of diamonds in the hope that West would hold the ace. East had no problem this time. She grabbed the ace and cashed her last two clubs."

The unlucky expert staggered away and we have to admit that he was unlucky this time. If North plays the hand a club lead from East can't hurt him. He will make at least four no-trump. The same applies if South plays the hand and West leads any card but the ten of clubs.

That Girl Matures Quickly

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After "That Girl" proved a comedy success and a sort of personal triumph last season for the dark-haired, dark-eyed girl who played the title role, ABC executives suggested that the series be called "The Marlo Thomas Show."

Since that tag means stardom in television, Marlo's immediate rejection of the idea is an indication of how much this woman in her mid-20s has matured in a few months.

Loves Dad, But

It was, in fact, only a year ago when furiously engaged in advance promotion and publicity for her first television series, Marlo was getting progressively more discouraged.

"Everytime I have an interview, the only thing they ask is about my father," mourned the oldest daughter of entertainer Danny Thomas.

"I love my father, but I don't want to spend my life giving interviews about him."

It has been months since she was in that situation. Danny is invariably mentioned, but now Marlo is an important television star in her own right. She also is president of her company, Daisy Productions, lives like a successful career girl in her own apartment in the Hollywood Hills and inhabits a star-type two-room dressing suite on the Desilu lot where the series is filmed.

"I'd forgotten about being annoyed," she said. "It's amazing how fast you heal up once a source of irritation disappears."

She turned down the suggestion about retitling the show, she said, "because that's what the show is about, that girl. It is not about Marlo Thomas."

A famous, affluent parent can help only up to a point. He can steer his child in the right direction, advise about associates. But television stars and successful shows are made by the public not influence. And on the heels of Marlo's victory over television have come a four-year movie contract with an important studio, endless offers of starring roles in "specials" and a Christmas show in which she will costar with her father.

Stardom Hard Work

Television stardom, for all its rewards, is hard work and Marlo is a hard worker. She routinely spends a 14-hour day at the studio, goes to bed early and arises at dawn.

She's a contract bridge nut, and usually arranges a Friday night game since Saturday and Sunday are free—except to learn lines.

"But by about the second hand, I'm so tired from the earlier part of the week that I'm falling asleep over the cards," she said.

"But it's worth it. It's worth every bit of it. I love it."

Marlo Thomas may be a star on her own, but she's inherited a lot of her father's determination and vitality.

Telephones have gotten so automated; recorded voices when you've dialed a wrong, various tones when "line is busy," or something has gone a-miss.

Which brings up a good question; what if buzzers buzzed, bells rang, and protesting voices spoke up, when we humans did or started to "dial the wrong number," do something wrong?

The millionaire, whose daughter the young man had just saved, was insistent that he accept a cash reward. Finally, to save an embarrassing situation, our hero said casually:

John—Well, if you insist, just give me a golf club.

"Have bought you the Westend Golfer's Club, and am now negotiating for the Sunnyside Links."

She turned down the suggestion about retitling the show, she said, "because that's what the show is about, that girl. It is not about Marlo Thomas."

A famous, affluent parent can help only up to a point. He can steer his child in the right direction, advise about associates. But television stars and successful shows are made by the public not influence. And on the heels of Marlo's victory over television have come a four-year movie contract with an important studio, endless offers of starring roles in "specials" and a Christmas show in which she will costar with her father.

Stardom Hard Work

Television stardom, for all its rewards, is hard work and Marlo is a hard worker. She routinely spends a 14-hour day at the studio, goes to bed early and arises at dawn.

She's a contract bridge nut, and usually arranges a Friday night game since Saturday and Sunday are free—except to learn lines.

"But by about the second hand, I'm so tired from the earlier part of the week that I'm falling asleep over the cards," she said.

"But it's worth it. It's worth every bit of it. I love it."

Marlo Thomas may be a star on her own, but she's inherited a lot of her father's determination and vitality.

Which brings up a good question; what if buzzers buzzed, bells rang, and protesting voices spoke up, when we humans did or started to "dial the wrong number," do something wrong?

TINTYPE SPECIALIST—Edwardian photographer, John Dornes of Monroe, will be on hand for the Kingston Rotary Club Antique Show Saturday at the New York State Armory, North Manor Avenue. A specialist in old time photography, Dornes creates modern portrait in the style of 100 years ago. He supplies costumes of the period to be worn by the sitters. All subjects are posed in the serious manner of the 19th century and the resulting portrait is processed and matted in a glass and gilt frame as were the original daguerreotypes. The antique show is being held in conjunction with the Rotary barbecue, which annually attracts some 1,200 guests. The barbecue to be held from 3 to 7 p. m., is prepared and served by Rotarians. For many years it was held at the former Harry Beatty farm on Hurley Avenue. Proceeds go toward Kingston Rotary local civic programs.

Head of Patterns Urges Transit Bill Support

C. David Loeks, president of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, Inc., today urged the region's voters to support Governor Rockefeller's proposed $2.5 billion transportation bond issue when it comes up for a statewide referendum in November.

Effect on Region

Loeks said the governor's program mentions at least three major local highways where work would be accelerated, and "whose completion would have a profound effect on future development in the Mid-Hudson Region, not only in terms of business and industrial growth, but also in terms of housing, cultural and recreational opportunities."

These arteries include Interstate 84 from the Connecticut border to Port Jervis in Orange County, the East-West arterial network in the Poughkeepsie area and the Hudson River Expressway in Northern Westchester, Putnam and Southern Dutchess Counties.

Loeks and Lelan F. Sillin Jr., chairman of Pattern's Board and Carl M. Beery, board treasurer, have agreed to serve on a special statewide committee, "Citizens for Transportation Progress," which is working to insure passage of the bond issue. Heading the group is Andrew Heiskell, chairman of the Board of Time, Inc.

In his letter of invitation to Pattern's three officers, Heiskell pointed out that the proposal already has achieved bipartisan support in both houses of the State Legislature, and the need now exists to "inform the public . . . of the increasing significance of transportation in our lives; the economic, physical, recreational, and cultural growth of the state hinges in great measure on the outcome of the bond issue.

"It is our intention," he continued, "to enlist a distinguished group of leaders of industry, labor, finance; education, the arts and civic affairs to join together to help insure passage of the bond issue, which will provide the state with better highways, commuter rail, bus, subway and airport facilities.

Integrated Approach

"The state is bringing to this problem a balanced and integrated approach involving all forms of transportation and designed to meet the individual needs of the various regions of the state and of our communities. . . ."

Loeks said that discussions with district state highway officials, revealed that the program would not only speed completion of the routes already mentioned, but also stimulate highway development generally throughout the region.

The program also includes $1 billion for mass transportation, which according to the governor's statement on this subject could include "improvements for commuting services for the New York Central Railroad serving Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess counties" as well as "improving bus facilities for Rockland and Orange counties and transportation centers at strategic locations."

Loeks noted that, "Such a statewide commitment to mass transportation has benefits extending far beyond the areas where the actual facilities are constructed. Transit provides the best return from public investment in transportation in congested areas, because it is the most efficient and economical means of moving large numbers of people into and out of the cores of large metropolitan areas. Thus, money which would otherwise be spent on highways can be made available for other modes of transportation in other parts of the state. And, of course, there is direct benefit to those of us in the Mid-Hudson Region who travel to these areas for business operations, work, recreation and culture.

Seven General Airports

The program also includes $250 million to be applied to the financing of New York State's airport plan. This plan includes in addition to the four general aviation facilities presently within the seven-county Mid-Hudson Region, seven additional general aviation airports.

The transportation bond issue propsal has been brought to the attention of Pattern's Board of Directors and the matter is slated for consideration at the September meeting of its Executive Committee.

CAMP ADVENTURE—Members of the summer recreation program sponsored by the Ulster County Community Action Committee in Kingston depart on four-mile hike down Hunter Mountain. The event was part of a week's camp experience for non-Scouters at Camp Tri-Mount under the Boy Scout's Invitation to Adventure program. Participating in the hike are (front row) Gary Salmi, Clifford Marshall, Dennis Sickler, Henry Jones, John Klonowski and David Mitchell; (second row) Donald Glass, Frank Denter, Tony Lindsay, Steve Conway and Ray Adorno; (third row) Bruce Safford, Jack Brinnier and Sandy Whitman of the scout staff; Sergio Mapes, Phillip Emerick and Thomas Rafaldi of the scout staff and William Brandt. Kingston leaders are Sheldon Brown and James Fitzgerald.

Bell Sees Blaine Convention Key

H. Clark Bell, Constitutional Convention delegate of Ulster and Dutchess Counties (38th Senatorial District) in a statement released today, said the new proposed Constitution may rise or fall, depending on how the controversial Blaine Amendment repealer is submitted to the people. Bell favors separate submission of this issue to the voters.

Bell writes: "In its most productive week, a four-day working week, the Convention passed 10 propositions, eight of which dealt with the method of estimating, presenting and approving the state budget and related financial issues. The Convention also passed a proposition reaffirming in substance Article 10, Section 3 of the Constitution, which is generally referred to as the Savings Bank Article.

"After two full days of debate, the Convention passed, by a vote of 132-49, a proposition repealing the so-called Blaine Amendment and substituting the language of the First Amendment in its place. The Blaine Amendment, which prohibits direct or indirect aid to non-public schools, is the most controversial and emotional issue of the Constitutional Convention."

In the statement Bell said: "The Proposal calling for repeal of the Blaine Amendment and substitution of the Federal First Amendment standards guaranteeing separation of church and state is the central issue of the Constitutional Convention. Under the Federal First Amendment limited aid to individual students is permissible as long as such aid does not amount to the establishment of a state religion or interference in the free exercise of religion.

"The delegates to the convention have expressed their judgment and have overwhelmingly voted for repeal of the so-called Blaine Amendment and substitution of the Federal First Amendment standard. However, the people of the State of New York must make the final decision. The people can approve or disapprove the proposed new Constitution at the November election. Whatever the decision, the 18 million people of the state will have to live with the results for the next generation.

Fearful of One Choice

"On such a fundamental and crucial issue, as repeal of the Blaine Amendment, I feel that the people of the State of New York have the right to vote separately and individually so as not to confuse the Blaine Amendment with the remainder of the new proposed Constitution. If the people are given but one choice—that is to vote "Yes" or "No" on an entire Constitution, which includes the Blaine Amendment repealer, I am fearful that the entire work product of the Convention will be jeopardized. The division is great. Many citizens may cast their votes according to their feelings on this one issue without regard to the merits of the remainder of the new Constitution. To jeopardize the entire work product of the Convention, the cost of which is estimated at approximately $10 million, does not make good sense — governmentally, politically or socially.

"I urge all citizens who wish to vote on this issue separately and individually to communicate their desire to the president of the Convention, Anthony J. Travia and the Minority Leader, Senator Earl W. Brydges at their offices—State Capitol, Albany.

Syracuse Vandals, Curfew Continue Second Night

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Police Chief John F. O'Connor, sworn in to office at the height of the second night of racial unrest in this progressive, central New York city, said today he would set up a "police peace corps" from non-white areas to assist in quelling possible outbreaks.

The 48-year-old O'Connor, until recently a divisional commander of the New York City Police Department, said Negro participants in the new group could wear identifying arm bands and would "hit the streets" the same as police officers.

On Streets Tonight

"They will be on the streets tonight," he pledged.

O'Connor made the statement as an uneasy calm replaced nearly eight hours of sporadic looting and vandalism by hit - and - run gangs of Negro youths.

"As of early this morning, the situation is under control and has improved," said O'Connor, whose predecessor had resigned last month to take a federal job in Washington, D.C.

O'Connor took command as hundreds of police and sheriff's deputies, using tear gas for the first time to disperse unruly gatherings, enforced a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed by Mayor William F. Walsh, who earlier had declared a state of emergency in the city.

The outburst Thursday night and early today, similar to the initial outbreak Wednesday night, erupted shortly after dark when jeering Negro youths smashed store windows and pelted police with rocks and bottles.

Police, moving swiftly, gained control of the situation early.

For the next several hours, sporadic incidents, involving smaller bands of Negroes and some individuals, kept police patrols on the move to widely scattered locations.

Second Injury

A policeman was injured when he was struck in the head by a rock.

He was only the second person reported injured during the two days of outbrusts.

Police said they could not verify numerous reports of gun shots from different sectors of the city. At least 27 persons were arrested Thursday night and today, including at least six on charges of illegal possession of guns.

The arrests brought to more than 55 the number of persons taken into custody since Wednesday night.

Police said the disturbance appeared "less intense" than the preceding night.

Several minor fires were reported but fire officials said they had no way of knowing whether they were tied in with the vandalism. At one point, police were kept busy for more than an hour shutting off at least 15 fire hydrants that had been turned on by vandals in the Jackson and South McBride Street area on the south side.

Many businesses, mainly restaurants and taverns, were closed at the request of the mayor. The city's International League baseball team said Friday night's game here with Rochester would begin at 5:30 p. m., two hours earlier than normal, at the request of police.

Walsh said it had not been determined when the curfew would be lifted.

Kingston Building Inspector Outlines Local Requirements

City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe today outlined some of the requirements of his office in a letter to The Freeman.

Radcliffe said, "The Building Inspector's job, is a very important job and yet, unfortunately, it's importance is too often overlooked by the local governing body as well as by the genreal public.The answer to this could be that the general public does not realize all the separate and definite angles that must be considered by the department before a building permit is issued."

Lists Reasons

"First," Radcliffe said, "a plan of the building, showing the size and shape of the proposed building is needed, also a plot plan showing the street, number of street where building is to be located, location of the building on the lot, complete usage of the building and type of the material to be used in the construction."

"Reasons for this: each section of the city is in a specified Zone, namely: family, two and three story multiple residences, shopping center, commercial, manufacturing or limited office; each of these buildings is a zone of their own which is governed by the size of the lot, set back from street, side and rear yard or if they are commercial or manufacturing and in a fire zone. They must be constructed to comply with regulations set down in the fire protective regulations."

"In your own home," Radcliffe explained, "the footings under your foundation must comply with the building code. The floor timbers, ceiling timbers, rafters, must comply in size to the width of your house to be able to safely carry any load you might place on them. The plumbing system must be constructed to meet the building code. Also, Board of Health regulations must be obeyed. The electrical systems must comply with the building code and pass the inspection of the state underwriter's requirements."

Check on Features

"Your building inspector must be sure all of these features are in your plans before a permit can be issued. After work is started, he carefully inspects and checks your job periodically until it is completed."

"Some property owners and some contractors think that it is all legal to do any kind of alteration on the interior of a building, without a building permit," Radcliffe said. "This is not so. The city ordinance reads as follows: Section 8 (a) No Person, Firm or Corporation shall commence the erection, construction, enlargement, alteration, removal, improvement, demolition, conversion, or change in the nature of the occupancy or any building or structure, or cause the same to be done, without first obtaining a separate building permit from the superintendent of buildings for each such building or structure: except that no building permit shall be required for the performance of ordinary repairs which are not structural in nature."

"It is the desire and duty of the building department to assist all property owners in any way possible to help you get your home or place of business erected, altered, improved, etc. so that it will be safe and comply with the code regulations," Radcliffe concluded.

The building department office is located in City Hall, hours 8:15 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Saugerties Man Unhurt in Crash

Vincent Schaffer, 27, of Saugerties, escaped injury at 2:50 a. m. today when his car went out of control on Malden Turnpike, entered the driveway of a Katsbaan residence and went through a garage door.

State Trooper Richard Dempsey said the owner and operator of the car was cited for driving too fast for conditions. Schaffer is slated to appear at a later date before Justice of the Peace Calvin Cody, Town of Saugerties.

Schaffer, troopers reported, was driving east on the turnpike when he lost control. The car went along the shoulder of the highway, entered the driveway at the home of Stephen N. Nickolich and went through the garage door, which was closed at the time.

Nicholich's son said the garage door was damaged but a car parked inside was only "scratched."

Acquit Mother, In 'Hug, Kiss' Knifing of Man

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — An all-male jury has acquitted Margaret Mitchell, 26, of Niagara Falls, of first and second degree manslaughter in the stabbing of a man she claimed tried to hug and kiss her.

The Niagara County Court jury gave its decision Thursday involving Mrs. Mitchell, a mother of seven, after 1½ hours of deliberation.

Mrs. Mitchell, who had been charged with second - degree murder in the knifing of James Dobbs, 41, of Niagara Falls, father of eight, on Aug. 26, 1965 in her apartment, was declared innocent at her second trial. A deadlocked jury ended the first trial in May after eight hours of deliberation.

Police said Mrs. Mitchell told them that Dobbs approached her "to kiss and hug me" and "came against a knife" when she was slicing eggs for a salad.

Visiting Judge Frederick Marshall of Erie County Court told the jury Thursday that there was not evidence of premeditation to find the woman guilty of second - degree murder, the charge on which she had been indicted.

Mrs. Mitchell lives at 4-7 F Center Court.

"The state is bringing to this problem a balanced and integrated approach involving all forms of transportation and designed to meet the individual needs of the various regions of the state and of our communities. . . ."

Loeks said that discussions with district state highway officials, revealed that the program would not only speed completion of the routes already mentioned, but also stimulate highway development generally throughout the region.

The program also includes $1 billion for mass transportation, which according to the governor's statement on this subject could include "improvements for commuting services for the New York Central Railroad serving Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess counties" as well as "improving bus facilities for Rockland and Orange counties and transportation centers at strategic locations."

Loeks noted that, "Such a statewide commitment to mass transportation has benefits extending far beyond the areas where the actual facilities are constructed. Transit provides the best return from public investment in transportation in congested areas, because it is the most efficient and economical means of moving large numbers of people into and out of the cores of large metropolitan areas. Thus, money which would otherwise be spent on highways can be made available for other modes of transportation in other parts of the state. And, of course, there is direct benefit to those of us in the Mid-Hudson Region who travel to these areas for business operations, work, recreation and culture.

Seven General Airports

The program also includes $250 million to be applied to the financing of New York State's airport plan. This plan includes in addition to the four general aviation facilities presently within the seven-county Mid-Hudson Region, seven additional general aviation airports.

The transportation bond issue propsal has been brought to the attention of Pattern's Board of Directors and the matter is slated for consideration at the September meeting of its Executive Committee.

Bell Sees Blaine Convention Key

H. Clark Bell, Constitutional Convention delegate of Ulster and Dutchess Counties (38th Senatorial District) in a statement released today, said the new proposed Constitution may rise or fall, depending on how the controversial Blaine Amendment repealer is submitted to the people. Bell favors separate submission of this issue to the voters.

Bell writes: "In its most productive week, a four-day working week, the Convention passed 10 propositions, eight of which dealt with the method of estimating, presenting and approving the state budget and related financial issues. The Convention also passed a proposition reaffirming in substance Article 10, Section 3 of the Constitution, which is generally referred to as the Savings Bank Article.

"After two full days of debate, the Convention passed, by a vote of 132-49, a proposition repealing the so-called Blaine Amendment and substituting the language of the First Amendment in its place. The Blaine Amendment, which prohibits direct or indirect aid to non-public schools, is the most controversial and emotional issue of the Constitutional Convention."

In the statement Bell said: "The Proposal calling for repeal of the Blaine Amendment and substitution of the Federal First Amendment standards guaranteeing separation of church and state is the central issue of the Constitutional Convention. Under the Federal First Amendment limited aid to individual students is permissible as long as such aid does not amount to the establishment of a state religion or interference in the free exercise of religion.

"The delegates to the convention have expressed their judgment and have overwhelmingly voted for repeal of the so-called Blaine Amendment and substitution of the Federal First Amendment standard. However, the people of the State of New York must make the final decision. The people can approve or disapprove the proposed new Constitution at the November election. Whatever the decision, the 18 million people of the state will have to live with the results for the next generation.

Fearful of One Choice

"On such a fundamental and crucial issue, as repeal of the Blaine Amendment, I feel that the people of the State of New York have the right to vote separately and individually so as not to confuse the Blaine Amendment with the remainder of the new proposed Constitution. If the people are given but one choice—that is to vote "Yes" or "No" on an entire Constitution, which includes the Blaine Amendment repealer, I am fearful that the entire work product of the Convention will be jeopardized. The division is great. Many citizens may cast their votes according to their feelings on this one issue without regard to the merits of the remainder of the new Constitution. To jeopardize the entire work product of the Convention, the cost of which is estimated at approximately $10 million, does not make good sense — governmentally, politically or socially.

"I urge all citizens who wish to vote on this issue separately and individually to communicate their desire to the president of the Convention, Anthony J. Travia and the Minority Leader, Senator Earl W. Brydges at their offices—State Capitol, Albany.

Syracuse Vandals, Curfew Continue Second Night

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Police Chief John F. O'Connor, sworn in to office at the height of the second night of racial unrest in this progressive, central New York city, said today he would set up a "police peace corps" from non-white areas to assist in quelling possible outbreaks.

The 48-year-old O'Connor, until recently a divisional commander of the New York City Police Department, said Negro participants in the new group could wear identifying arm bands and would "hit the streets" the same as police officers.

On Streets Tonight

"They will be on the streets tonight," he pledged.

O'Connor made the statement as an uneasy calm replaced nearly eight hours of sporadic looting and vandalism by hit-and-run gangs of Negro youths.

"As of early this morning, the situation is under control and has improved," said O'Connor, whose predecessor had resigned last month to take a federal job in Washington, D.C.

O'Connor took command as hundreds of police and sheriff's deputies, using tear gas for the first time to disperse unruly gatherings, enforced a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed by Mayor William F. Walsh, who earlier had declared a state of emergency in the city.

The outburst Thursday night and early today, similar to the initial outbreak Wednesday night, erupted shortly after dark when jeering Negro youths smashed store windows and pelted police with rocks and bottles.

Police, moving swiftly, gained control of the situation early.

For the next several hours, sporadic incidents, involving smaller bands of Negroes and some individuals, kept police patrols on the move to widely scattered locations.

Second Injury

A policeman was injured when he was struck in the head by a rock.

He was only the second person reported injured during the two days of outbrusts.

Police said they could not verify numerous reports of gun shots from different sectors of the city. At least 27 persons were arrested Thursday night and today, including at least six on charges of illegal possession of guns.

The arrests brought to more than 55 the number of persons taken into custody since Wednesday night.

Police said the disturbance appeared "less intense" than the preceding night.

Several minor fires were reported but fire officials said they had no way of knowing whether they were tied in with the vandalism. At one point, police were kept busy for more than an hour shutting off at least 15 fire hydrants that had been turned on by vandals in the Jackson and South McBride Street area on the south side.

Many businesses, mainly restaurants and taverns, were closed at the request of the mayor. The city's International League baseball team said Friday night's game here with Rochester would begin at 5:30 p. m., two hours earlier than normal, at the request of police.

Walsh said it had not been determined when the curfew would be lifted.

Kingston Building Inspector Outlines Local Requirements

City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe today outlined some of the requirements of his office in a letter to The Freeman.

Radcliffe said, "The Building Inspector's job, is a very important job and yet, unfortunately, it's importance is too often overlooked by the local governing body as well as by the genreal public.The answer to this could be that the general public does not realize all the separate and definite angles that must be considered by the department before a building permit is issued."

Lists Reasons

"First," Radcliffe said, "a plan of the building, showing the size and shape of the proposed building is needed, also a plot plan showing the street, number of street where building is to be located, location of the building on the lot, complete usage of the building and type of the material to be used in the construction."

"Reasons for this: each section of the city is in a specified Zone, namely: family, two and three story multiple residences, shopping center, commercial, manufacturing or limited office; each of these buildings is a zone of their own which is governed by the size of the lot, set back from street, side and rear yard or if they are commercial or manufacturing and in a fire zone. They must be constructed to comply with regulations set down in the fire protective regulations."

"In your own home," Radcliffe explained, "the footings under your foundation must comply with the building code. The floor timbers, ceiling timbers, rafters, must comply in size to the width of your house to be able to safely carry any load you might place on them. The plumbing system must be constructed to meet the building code. Also, Board of Health regulations must be obeyed. The electrical systems must comply with the building code and pass the inspection of the state underwriter's requirements."

Check on Features

"Your building inspector must be sure all of these features are in your plans before a permit can be issued. After work is started, he carefully inspects and checks your job periodically until it is completed."

"Some property owners and some contractors think that it is all legal to do any kind of alteration on the interior of a building, without a building permit," Radcliffe said. "This is not so. The city ordinance reads as follows: Section 8 (a) No Person, Firm or Corporation shall commence the erection, construction, enlargement, alteration, removal, improvement, demolition, conversion, or change in the nature of the occupancy or any building or structure, or cause the same to be done, without first obtaining a separate building permit from the superintendent of buildings for each such building or structure: except that no building permit shall be required for the performance of ordinary repairs which are not structural in nature."

"It is the desire and duty of the building department to assist all property owners in any way possible to help you get your home or place of business erected, altered, improved, etc. so that it will be safe and comply with the code regulations," Radcliffe concluded.

The building department office is located in City Hall, hours 8:15 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Saugerties Man Unhurt in Crash

Vincent Schaffer, 27, of Saugerties, escaped injury at 2:50 a. m. today when his car went out of control on Malden Turnpike, entered the driveway of a Katsbaan residence and went through a garage door.

State Trooper Richard Dempsey said the owner and operator of the car was cited for driving too fast for conditions. Schaffer is slated to appear at a later date before Justice of the Peace Calvin Cody, Town of Saugerties.

Schaffer, troopers reported, was driving east on the turnpike when he lost control. The car went along the shoulder of the highway, entered the driveway at the home of Stephen N. Nickolich and went through the garage door, which was closed at the time.

Nicholich's son said the garage door was damaged but a car parked inside was only "scratched."

Canadian Shipping On Lakes Halts

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian shipping along the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River came to a halt gradually Thursday after bargainers for Canada's inland seamen and 32 shipping companies broke off talks.

Negotiating teams working on package offers ended discussions about 6 p.m. and declared a stalemate.

Leonard McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers' International Union, which claims 5,400 members, said the union is determined to satisfy four basic demands — the main one being a 40-hour work week.

More than 1.3 million separate species of plants and animales populate the earth.

Acquit Mother, In 'Hug, Kiss' Knifing of Man

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — An all-male jury has acquitted Margaret Mitchell, 26, of Niagara Falls, of first and second degree manslaughter in the stabbing of a man she claimed tried to hug and kiss her.

The Niagara County Court jury gave its decision Thursday involving Mrs. Mitchell, a mother of seven, after 1½ hours of deliberation.

Mrs. Mitchell, who had been charged with second-degree murder in the knifing of James Dobbs, 41, of Niagara Falls, father of eight, on Aug. 26, 1965 in her apartment, was declared innocent at her second trial. A deadlocked jury ended the first trial in May after eight hours of deliberation.

Police said Mrs. Mitchell told them that Dobbs approached her "to kiss and hug me" and "came against a knife" when she was slicing eggs for a salad.

Visiting Judge Frederick Marshall of Erie County Court told the jury Thursday that there was not evidence of premeditation to find the woman guilty of second-degree murder, the charge on which she had been indicted.

Mrs. Mitchell lives at 4-7 F Center Court.

Green will appear before the court after it convenes in September.

An autopsy report showed that Sgt. Frederick A. Vaughn died Aug. 5 of a cerebral hemmorhage produced by "blows to the head." Vaughn also was stationed at Plattsburgh.
